THE CATHOLIC REGISTERS OF THE BRAMBRIDGE (AFTERWARDS HIGHBRIDGE) MISSION, IN HAMPSHIRE, 1766–1869.*

TRANSCRIBED AND EDITED BY RICHARD COVENTRY BAIGENT, F.R.HIST.S.

Among the centres in Hampshire where the Faith found a home in the troublous days was Brambridge,† situated on the east bank of the river Itchen, in a direct line between Winchester and Southampton. It is distant about five miles south of the former, and about seven miles north of the latter. The names of the Wells and Smythe families, and that of Mrs. Fitzherbert, are always connected with the mansion, and the neighbourhood has many interesting associations, some of which are described below.

Two miles north is the village of Twyford, so well known in connection with the Catholic school maintained there from 1696 to 1745—the precursor of Old Hall and St. Edmunds. A school is reputed to have been founded in the reign of James II at Silkstead,‡ near Twyford, of which the Rev. Wm. Husband, alias Bernard, was the master in 1692. This is said to have been removed in 1696 to a house at Twyford known as Segar's Buildings, formerly belonging to Anthony Segar, and sold after his death in 1693. In 1696 the school was conducted by the Rev. John Banister, alias Taverner. A vague tradition says that it was the boys at Segar's School who cheered and pursued Charles II on his way from near Southampton, walking to see how the building of his new palace at Winchester was progressing. If so, this would mean that Segar's School was in existence earlier than 1696.§ A Father William Lane, S.J., who was Superior of the College of St. Thomas of Canterbury (the Hampshire District), is stated by Brother Henry Foley, in his Records of the English Province of the Society of Jesus, v. 820, to have been serving here in 1700, and for some years. [In 1741 he is found at Padwell, on Bishop Challoner's visit to that mission.] He was here again in 1747; died at Winchester in 1752, aged 80. In an anonymous pamphlet entitled The Present State of Religion in England, 1733, p. 19,

* The Registers of Brambridge and Highbridge were examined in the year 1857 by my uncle, the late Francis Joseph Baigent, of Winchester (1830–1918), who made a number of extracts and relative notes in a quarto paper book. Some of these notes, and others from papers left by him, have been transcribed below, his initials being appended thereto.—R.C.B.

† The name is sometimes found as "Bambridge," even in this Register. A discussion of the two forms by the present writer, with historical examples, will be found in Notes and Queries, clii, 255-6.

‡ Silkstead is now a hamlet, partly in Hursley parish and partly in that of Compton, containing only one small farmhouse and a few cottages. Probably owing to confusion with Prior Silkestede's chapel in Winchester Cathedral, it is sometimes supposed that a priory formerly existed here, but there appears to be no evidence of such a foundation.

§ The Story of Twyford School. By C. T. Wickham (Winchester: 1909). See also The Twyfordian, xvii (April, 1911), pp. 6–9.

it is stated that upwards of one hundred boarders were educated at Twyford at that date, under the care and direction of Father Fleetwood. This was Walter Fleetwood, born in London 9 March 1699; entered the Society of Jesus 30 June 1735; in 1746 he was serving the missions in St. Ignatius' College (the London District); and in 1767 was at Everingham Park, co. Yorks.; died at Liége 10 July 1774 (Foley, Records S.J., vii, 262). The further fortunes of this school can be perused in the late Canon Edwin H. Burton's History of St. Edmund's, Old Hall, and in Mgr. Bernard Ward's History of St. Edmund's College. Brambridge House is in the parish of Twyford, and the parish registers contain many references to the Wells family, of which an account will be found at the end of this contribution.

Owslebury is a village nearly three miles eastwards from Twyford, of which it was a chapelry until 1836, when it became a vicarage. In this parish is situated the manor of Marwell, where the Bishops of Winchester had a residence, from which were dated, in medieval times, many of their institutions and other ecclesiastical documents. The site of the palace and chapel, with the burial ground, forms a rectangular area, almost entirely surrounded by a moat, distant about half-a-mile from the present Marwell Hall. "Tradition asserts that the old house, built probably in the early part of the sixteenth century, was the scene of the marriage between Henry VIII and Lady Jane Seymour, the sister of the lord of Marwell. Edward VI is also said to have visited Marwell Hall, and the initials E.R. were carved in stone over the porch of the old house" (Victoria County History of Hampshire, iii, 332).

The following relation appears in the Ecclesia Restaurata : History of the Reformation, by Peter Heylyn, 1st edit., 1661, p. 4: "There goes a story that the Priest Officiating at the Altar, in the church of Ouslebury (of which Parish Marvell was a part), after the Mass had been abolished by the King's Authority, was violently dragged thence by this Sir Henry [Seymour], beaten, and most reproachfully handled by him, his servants universally refusing to serve him as the instruments of his Rage and Fury; and that the poore Priest having after an opportunity to get into the Church, did openly curse the said Sir Henry, and his posterity, with Bell, Book, and Candle, according to the use observed in the Church of Rome. Which, whether it were so or not, or that the maine foundation of this Estate being laid on Sacrilidge, could promise no long blessing to it; Certain it is, that his posterity are brought beneath the degree of poverty. For, having three Nephewes, by Sir John Seimour, his only Son; that is to say, Edward, the eldest, Henry and Thomas, younger sons, besides severall daughters, there remaines not to any of them one foot of Land, or so much as a penny of money to supply their necessities, but what they have from the Munificence of the Marquesse of Hartford, or the charity of other well disposed people, which have affection, or Relation to them." Bp. John Milner, in making a quotation from the above passage, adds: "The tradition of the country is, that the priest was afterwards shot, as he was officiating at the altar; and a hole is shewn in the wall which is said to have been made by the bullet that killed him" (Hist. of Winchester, 1st edit., 1798, i, 346).

A little over a mile north-west of Brambridge, across the Itchen, is the parish of Otterbourne, where lived the authoress, Miss Charlotte Mary Yonge. Two miles farther on, in the same direction, is Hursley, to which Otterbourne was a chapelry in medieval times.

Compton is a village nearly two miles north-west of Twyford. An article in the Hampshire Chronicle of 4 November 1905, states that:

"Compton had two or three divisions. The principal division was that called Compton-Wacelin, and was held for many years by a family of that name, who were chief stewards to the Bishopric. It afterwards became the property of a family of the name of Philpotts, and the Philpotts held it for many generations, but they did not accept the changes made in religion at the time of Queen Elizabeth, and therefore were constantly harassed by fines for not going to church, which used to cost them £20 a month, and if the wife did not attend it cost them a further £20. The paying of these fines crushed them out." In the Will of Dame Elizabeth Philpot, dated 12 November 1508, proved 29 April 1509 (In Libro Bennet, 13), occurs the following entry: "Item, I bequethe to the parish of Compton, a mass-book with a chalice." A Sir John Philpott, of Hants, was knighted at Whitehall 23 July 1603, before the coronation of James I; Sir George Philpott, of Hants, was knighted at Hampton Court between 30 August and 17 October 1606. In the Lay Subsidy Rolls of the Exchequer, co. South'ton, 1628, 4 Car. I, Compton, occurs: "Recusant Convict' Sir John Philpott, knight; lands, 30*l.* assessment 12*l.*"—F.J.B.

About five miles south is South Stoneham, between which and Brambridge lies the village of Bishopstoke (formerly "Stoke Episcopi"), to which the ex-friar, John Bale, was collated as Rector on 26 June 1551, by John Poynet, Bishop of Winchester (1550–1553), and he is so shown in the record of the Visitation held in September 1551.* "To the accident of Bishopstoke being near Southampton, did John Bale, a certain notorious bishop of Ossory, owe his episcopal dignity. He was rector of Bishopstoke, and, taking advantage of a royal visit to Southampton, contradicted by his appearance the false report which the king had heard of his death. In his satisfaction at finding Bale still alive, Edward VI offered, and in fact obliged him to accept, the bishopric of Ossory, then vacant."† On Queen Mary's accession, John Bale left Ireland and fled to the Continent, but returned on her death, and became prebendary of Canterbury, where he died in 1563. He was a coarse and virulent controversialist (see article by Dr. Mandell Creighton in the Dictionary of National Biography). Of a very different type was Thomas Gawen, appointed rector of Bishopstoke in 1643. He was educated at Winchester College, and proceeded to Oxford, where he took his M.A. in 1639, and received Anglican Orders. He figures in John Walker's Sufferings of the Clergy as having been ejected in 1645 during the Puritan ascendancy. He was restored on the accession of Charles II, but about this time scruples he had formerly entertained with regard to his religion became so strong that he quitted all his preferments, became a Catholic, and went to France to avoid persecution. He returned later to England, and in 1679 was a sufferer through the Titus Oates' plot; thereafter he lived in retirement at Westminster till his death, at the age of 72, in 1683. ‡ In one of the parish register books is the following entry: "March 28, 1788. By order of the Bishop of the diocese, a very exact account was transmitted of the number of Souls in this parish, viz., 388 males, 358 females, total 746: the number of Papists 7."—F.J.B.

Situated about six miles south-east from Brambridge is Botley, where William Cobbett lived for many years. Upham is about four miles to the east. An entry in the Register of John White, Bishop of Winchester (1556–1559), shows that on the 2nd November, 1558, Master John Marshall, "in Legibus Baccalaureus," was collated to the parish church of Upham.—F.J.B. He was admitted a scholar at Winchester in 1545, at the age of eleven, and entered New College, Oxford, in 1549. About the year 1556 he became a master at Winchester College under Thomas Hyde, but in 1560, following the example of his principal, he refused the Oath of Supremacy, sacrificed his preferments, and fled to Louvaine. He was afterwards Canon of St. Peter's in Lille, and died there 3 April 1597. In the parish register of Upham, under the year 1682, is entered a baptism: "William Hunt, the son of William Hunt (Recusant) & Mary his wife. Baptiz. Sept. 16."—F.J.B. The following entry in the Winchester Catholic Registers is of interest:

"1758. 23 Dec. Nata est Sara, filia Roberti et Elizabethæ Barnet de Upham hujus comitatus quam sine cæremoniis baptizavit R. P. Hickins, O.S.F." Father Joseph Hickins was approved for preaching and hearing confessions in 1728. He was sent on the English mission in 1732; confessor of Aire* in 1740; and at Bruges in 1741; titular guardian of Bristol in 1746; of Newcastle in 1747; of Coventry in 1753. In 1758 he was at Shirefield,† Hampshire. Was titular guardian of Greenwich 1768–1771. In the latter year he was declared a jubilarian, and died in 1772 or 1773 at Douai (The Franciscans in England, by Father Thaddeus, O.F.M., 1898). The ceremonies were afterwards supplied:—

"1763. 22 Aug. Saræ, natæ 23 Dec. 1758, filiæ Roberti et Elisabethæ Barnet de Upham sacras cæremonias Patricius, pastor ecclesiæ Wintoniensis adhibuit, et nomen imposuit. Matrina, Eleanora Stubington" (reprinted from C.R.S. i, 164, 166).

The hamlet of Brambridge was included in the medieval parish of Twyford, but became part of the ecclesiastical district of Colden Common in 1843. The following account appears in the Victoria County History of Hampshire‡ (iii, 334): "Upon the foundation of Corpus Christi College, Oxford, in 1515–16, Brambridge . . . . . probably passed into the possession of the college under the endowment by Bishop Fox, for in 1535 Corpus Christi College was receiving an annual rent of 24*s.* from land here (Valor Eccl.—Rec. Com.—ii, 245). In 1609–10 Brambridge was granted to John Peirson, together with the lands belonging to the recusants Ursula Uvedale, Richard Bruning, and Thomas Welles (Pat. 6 Jas. I, pt. 3, m. 19). Charles I granted Brambridge to Gilbert Welles in 1636 (ibid., 11 Chas. I, pt. 2, m. 23), and his widow married Sir William Courtenay, who was a recusant and compounded for his Brambridge estates in 1648 (Cal. of Com. for Comp., iii, 1841–2). Brambridge remained in the Welles family until towards the end of the eighteenth century, when, in accordance with the will of Henry Welles (2 August 1762), it passed to his cousin, Walter Smythe, second son of Sir John Smythe, bart., of Acton Burnell, Shropshire (Recov. R. Trin. 19 Geo.

‡ It is interesting to note that the section on "Ecclesiastical History," in vol. ii (1903, pp. 1–232), of this monumental work, was written by the Rev. John Charles Cox, LL.D., F.S.A., Anglican rector of Holdenby, Northants. He was received into the Church at Downside Abbey on 25 April 1917, and died at Sydenham 23 February 1919, aged 75 years.

Walter Smythe's eldest daughter was the famous Mrs. Fitz-Herbert, wife of George IV, who spent the early years of her life, before and after her education in France, at Brambridge, until her marriage to Edward Weld, of Lulworth Castle, Dorset." It is hoped to include an account of the Wells and Smythe families in a later volume.

It may seem a little surprising that with the steadfast mission of Brambridge only a few miles off, there is so little evidence of the Faith in the town of Southampton at that time. But the few Catholics living there probably resorted to the mission at Padwell, a manor about a mile out of the town, on the main road running north to Winchester. It adjoined the manor of Bevois Hill, by which its name has been practically absorbed (see an investigation of the history of these two manors, by Dr. F. J. C. Hearnshaw, in the Hampshire Field Club Papers, v, 109). Bishop Challoner, in 1741, visited Padwell, where he found a congregation of thirty, under the charge of Father William Lane, S.J. In his next Visitation, that of 1749, the mission is not mentioned, and had probably ceased to exist.* The story of this mission, however, belongs to the history of Southampton, the Catholic Registers of which commence in 1805.

Speaking of Brambridge House, the late Henry Moody (who was Curator of the Museum—at that time in Jewry Street—Winchester), in his Antiquarian and Topographical Sketches of Hampshire (1846), states that " it was formerly the seat of a Catholic family of the name of Wells, the last of whom was warmly attached to the dynasty of the Stuarts, having committed himself by some unwarrantable expression, was obliged to seek refuge and secrecy in the house of another Catholic family, of the name of Smythe, in Shropshire. When the day of trouble had passed by, and the offence forgiven or passed over, he was allowed to return to his patrimonial estates. With a generous and noble mind he did not allow to pass unrequited the benefactor who gave him refuge in the storm, and, being without family himself, he settled, at his death, his estate at Brambridge on the family of his friend."

" The house . . . . . was a comfortable, roomy mansion, without any pretension, the sort of house that a country squire of moderate means might occupy; it dated from Charles II's reign, and was approached by a double avenue of limes."† One of the rooms had been " fitted up as a chapel in the latter part of the eighteenth century by the Smythe family. Later, when the Relief Acts made it possible, they built a small chapel in the village, endowed about 1782 by Mrs. Fitzherbert."‡ No note, however, of the change of locality is given in the body of the Registers. The avenue " is said to be the finest in Hampshire, and consists of four rows of lime trees; the branches of the outside trees droop to the ground, while the branches in the rows or side aisles, are drawn up like the shafts in the vaulting of a cathedral. It is said that Charles II planted the avenue when he lived at Brambridge for a time while his palace at Winchester was being built."§ Charles Smythe, while his brother Walter was detained a prisoner by Napoleon I from 1803 to 1814, "caused all the limes in the avenue at Brambridge to be pollarded, and sold the tops for gun-stocks. Nevertheless, the trees are still magnificent, making three aisles, all the branches inwards rising up perpendicularly, those without sweeping gracefully down, and all budding and fading simultaneously. The pity is that the modern house should not have been built at one end or the other, so that they actually form a passage that leads to nothing."* This avenue, five hundred yards in length, stands at the back of the mansion, at right-angles to the road from Twyford to Allbrook, but there is no entrance to the park at this point.

The present mansion is built in the Italian style, with a frontage to the north-west. It stands on the road to Otterbourne from Brambridge village (a small collection of houses to the east), at a point where the road makes a bend at right-angles (otherwise it would run into the river, which is here fairly swift). On passing the frontage of the grounds, the road bends again and continues, in its original direction, to Otterbourne.

In the time of the Smythe family "there was only a footbridge across the Itchen at Brambridge. Carts and carriages had to ford the river, not straight across, but making a slight curve downwards; this led to awkward accidents. There was a gentleman dining with Mr. Walter Smythe, who was pressed to sleep at Brambridge, but declined, saying that he liked to have all his little comforts about him. When daylight came the poor man was found seated on the top of his chaise, the water flowing through the windows below, for the post-boy had taken a wrong turn, and, being afraid to move, had been forced to remain in the river till the morning." A far worse disaster befell the Newton family on their way to a funeral. It is described by one of the bearers: "When the cart turned over, the corpse was on the foot-bridge. It was a very wet day, and the wind was blowing furiously at the time. It had a great effect on the cart, as it was a narrow cart with a tilt on, and there was a long wood sill at the side of the river. That dropping of the sill caused the accident. I think there were five females in the cart and the driver. The water was as much as four feet deep and running very sharp, so myself and others went into the water to fetch them out, and when we got to the cart they were all on the top of the other, with their heads just out of the water. They could not go to church with the corpse, and we had a hard job to save the horse from being drowned, as his head was but just out of the water."†

The greater part of the mansion was destroyed by fire on 15 February 1872, while in the possession of Mr. (afterwards Sir Thomas) Fairbairn. The account in the Times newspaper of the following day stated that "the house, an old mansion, was formerly the residence of the Hon. Mrs. Craven, but about ten years ago passed into the hands of Mr. Fairbairn, who has just spent 25,000*l.* in repairs . . . . . the mansion was destroyed with the exception of the drawing-room and the conservatory . . . . . scarcely any portion of the mansion but the walls is left."

The hamlet of Highbridge lies to the south, on the other bank of the Itchen. The mission is recorded under that designation in the year 1824, when it makes its first appearance, without comment, in the Laity's

* John Keble's Parishes, by Miss Charlotte Mary Yonge, 1898.

Directory. The dedication of the chapel is stated to have been to St. Patrick. The mission continued to be styled as " Highbridge " in the Laity's Directory and the later Catholic Directory, but it is as " Brambridge "—in connection with the Wells family—that it occupies a place in the Catholic history of the Penal times.

The last resident priest at Highbridge was the Rev. John Singleton, who died there on 24 May 1839. The mission was thereupon served from Winchester by the Rev. Joseph Alberry, chaplain to the Benedictine convent at that time occupying " Bishop's House " (now the " Royal Hotel "), and he continued to do so until he accompanied the community on its migration to East Bergholt in 1857. After this event the chapel was served from Southampton until 1883, and its dedication is given as St. Joseph's. It was again served for a short period from Winchester, but was closed on the establishment of a new mission at Eastleigh, just on two miles distant.

Brother Henry Foley, in his Records S.J., states that Brambridge was one of the very early missions of the Society of Jesus. In the Public Record Office State Papers, Dom. Eliz., vol. ccxlviii, no. 30, Benjamin Beard, an informer, is found writing to Morgan Jones, of Gray's Inn: " The two Jesuits lately with Mrs. Yates have gone to Mr. Wells at Brombridge, which Wells is ordered by Council, with divers other recusants of Hampshire, to confine himself to Ely. They will return before Easter to London, where they always abide about Chancery Lane and Southampton House. . . . . If the others are missed at Wells' house, they may be at Thomas Shelley's at Mapledurham,* where Mr. Strange dwells; Strange and Wells are great friends, and shift such persons between each other." (This passage is quoted by Foley with some slight variations.)

The earliest Jesuit Father of whom there seems to be any certain record as serving the mission of Brambridge is Father Theodore Lewis, S.J., alias Francis Shelley. He was born in Hampshire, probably in Winchester, in 1633–4, the son of Dr. William Lewis, a Protestant minister and Master of the Hospital of St. Cross, near Winchester, and was a convert to the Catholic religion. He entered the Society of Jesus at Watten, about two leagues from St. Omer, in Flanders, 7 September 1654, under the assumed name of Francis Shelley, and was professed of the four vows in 1672. He was sent to the English Mission in the " Residence of St. Thomas of Canterbury " (Hampshire District) in 1665, served in it for many years, and was its Rector from 1678 to 1691. At the outbreak of the Orange Revolution he retired to a place of concealment, and the following item appears in the accounts of the Hants District: " 1688. For diet and other charges, whilst I absconded . . . . . 06 . 00 . 00." Among other effects made over by this convert to the District of St. Thomas was his library valued at £1,500, which his father left him, but which his brother John got possession of and sold. There are two ancient documents in the collection of Stonyhurst MSS., both dated in 1677, the one being a release by Theodore of his share in the farm and rectory of Itchen Stoke, Hants, to his brother, John Lewis, esq., of Winchester, who by the other deed grants an annuity to Theodore of £25 a year. Both are witnessed by Father Antony Hunter, the confessor, who died in Newgate a prisoner for the Faith, after four years imprisonment, on 3 February 1684, aged 78; he was Superior of this District from 1672 to 1679 (Joseph Gillow, Biographies). Besides the library mentioned, the old College accounts state that by his father's will he took a little farm in Montgomeryshire, being the remainder of what was sold to a Sir Maurice Williams, valued at £10 per annum. There were also the farms, copyhold under the Duke of Bolton, called Stoke and Hampeth, connected with Theodore. Old accounts, as far back as 1681, show the receipt of the rents by the College, and large sums paid for renewal, and to purchase the claim of Mr. John Shelley. John Lewis, brother of Theodore, received an annuity from the College of £80 for his claims, and a sister received £5 annually. From 1692 onwards Father Lewis was Procurator of the College. He was residing with Mr. Charles Wells at Brambridge in 1692 (Kirk, Biographies, 1909, p. 151), and died there, according to Foley, 31 July 1707, aged 74. "There are still extant (1860) several books, formerly belonging to the Brambridge (or Highbridge) Mission, with his name inscribed upon their title pages as belonging to him."—F.J.B.

Although not mentioned as having been at Brambridge, there was a Father Bonaventura Codrington, D.D., who is stated in Kirk's Biographies to have resided mostly with a Mr. Barlow, of the village of Compton, which is in the neighbourhood. He was from Douay, and returned on the Mission about 1677. "In 1692 he had been on the Mission, says Mr. Ward, secretary to the Chapter, fourteen years or upwards, most of which time he spent in Hampshire. He was a very faithful labourer, exceedingly zealous and diligent. He died 3 January 1727 (O.S.)—Chapter Collection, I, p. 324" (quoted by Kirk).

Father John Gray, S.J., according to Foley, Records, S.J., was serving the mission of Brambridge during 1691. He entered the Society in 1677 and returned to work on the English mission about 1690. The Catalogues of the English Province show that he was serving in the Hampshire District in 1693. By 1696 he had been transferred to the Suffolk District. He died in England in 1705.

Father Peter Curzon, S.J., was of the old Catholic family of Curzon, of Waterperry, near Oxford; born in Oxfordshire July 31 or August 11, 1686–7; entered the Society 7 September 1706, and was made a Spiritual Coadjutor 2 February 1717. In 1724 he was chaplain to Mr. Wells, at Brambridge, and was there when Bishop Challoner visited the mission in 1741.* Father Curzon died at Winchester on 25 February 1765-6, and was buried in the Catholic cemetery of St. James there, where his tombstone, sketched by F.J.B. on 19 June 1866, bears the following inscription:

Here lieth
S^R^ PETER CURSON, BAR^T^
who Departed this Life
Feb^y^ 25^th^ 1765
Aged 80.

"He was the youngest son of Sir John Curzon, Baronet, and succeeded to the Baronetcy on 28 May 1750, on the death of his brother, Sir Francis Curzon, who died s.p."—F.J.B.

* With Father Curzon (Courson), at the time of the Visitation, the Bishop found another priest named Hide. This may perhaps have been Father Richard Hyde, S.J., Procurator of St. Omer's College, who possibly was on a visit to England at the time; two years later he became Rector of St. Omer's, and died while still in office on a later visit to England, 27 February 1744.

Bishop Challoner's notes of his Visitation of June–July, 1741, show that Brambridge was of considerable size, as missions then went (see Canon Edwin Burton's Life and Times of Bishop Challoner, 1909, i, 158). The bishop remained there four days. On the second day he visited Twyford—" a place unique in the fact that it possessed the only Catholic school in the whole of his district, or, for the matter of that, in the south of England." At that time there were thirty-two boys there. In 1749 Dr. Challoner paid a second visit to Hampshire, and found at Brambridge a congregation of over a hundred.

Gregory Martin, O.S.F., was approved for preaching and hearing confessions in 1725, and also appointed professor of philosophy. He came on the mission in 1729. He was titular Guardian of Cambridge 1735–1738; of Canterbury in 1741; of Oxford in 1743; again of Oxford 1746–1749; Definitor 1749–1752; of Oxford in 1753; again of Oxford 1758–1761, about which time he was at Brambridge, Hampshire; titular Guardian of Canterbury 1764–1767. He died a jubilarian at Douai in 1773 (Father Thaddeus, The Franciscans in England, 1898).

Father Thomas Lewis, S.J., vere Thomas Culcheth, son of Thomas Culcheth, esq., of Culcheth, Lancs., was born in that county on 21 April 1741. He made his humanity and higher studies and theology at the Jesuits' English College, Valladolid, where he was ordained Sub-deacon, and then entered the Society at Watten 28 January 1763. Ordained Priest, he was sent to England, and served the missions of Lindley, Wappenbury, and Wardour Castle, and subsequently Chideock, Dorset, for twenty-one years. After supplying for brief intervals at Exeter, and at New Hall, Chelmsford, he returned to Chideock, where he died 5 September 1809, aged 68. He was buried in the Arundell family vault attached to the parish church, borne on the shoulders of six brothers named Tucker, belonging to the congregation. Father Lewis is shown in the present Registers as having administered Baptism on two occasions in 1766. He may have been there on supply, but was not yet attached to the mission, and in the Catalogue for 1767 appears as Prefect of Discipline in the College which, expelled from St. Omer's in 1762, had found a temporary refuge at Bruges. In 1768 he was sent to the College of St. George (Worcester-Warwick District).

Thomas Hawkins, S.J., alias Thomas Perkins, was son of Catholic parents, Thomas Hawkins and Johanna Saxby, of Sussex; born at Slindon 21 December 1722. He studied his humanities at St. Omer's College; entered the English College, Rome, on 5 November 1741 for his higher course; took the College Oath 29 July 1742; was ordained Sub-deacon 17 December 1746, Deacon 22 January, and Priest 12 February 1747; joined the Society of Jesus at Watten 21 October following. In the Province Catalogue for 1750 he appears as supply chaplain to the English Benedictine nuns at Brussels. From 1754 to 1764 he was attached to the mission of St. Chad (Staffordshire District), of which he was appointed rector about 1758. In 1767 he was on the Hampshire mission. From 1768 to his death, 9 July 1789, he was chaplain at Oxburgh to the Bedingfield family. He is shown in the present Register as having administered the rite of Baptism on four occasions in 1767–8.

[All the foregoing particulars of priests, except where otherwise noted, are based on Brother Henry Foley's Records of the English Province S.J., and the Province Catalogues.]

Dom William Walmesley, O.S.B., vere William Augustine Caldwell, the son of Paul Caldwell, was born in Lancashire in 1735. He was clothed 10 July 1753; gave up the habit, but re-entered, was clothed again, and professed at St. Gregory's, Douay, 25 March 1757. Was sent on the Mission to the South Province (Province of Canterbury). He was Definitor of the Province 1806, and Cathedral Prior of Ely 1814. Was at Brambridge, Hants, 1764, till his death there, 8 January 1815, aged 79 (Chronological Notes of the English Congregation of the Order of St. Benedict, by Dom Benet Weldon, 1881; Necrology of the English Congregation of the Order of Saint Benedict, by the Rev. T. B. Snow, M.A., 1883; Obit Book of the English Benedictines, a new edition of the preceding, revised by Dom Henry Norbert Birt, 1913).

The first entry in the Register of Brambridge in his handwriting is an Obituary record dated 8 March 1768; his last entry in the Register is that of a Baptism on 21 August 1814, and a note of his death in the Obituary shows that he died at Alresford, so he was probably unable to continue duty at Brambridge for the last few months of his life.

Father John Singleton's first entry in the Register is that of the death of his predecessor, as noted above. "A Mr. John Jones was priest at Stratford, Essex, for eighteen months. His successor was Mr. John Singleton, who had just reached England from the College at Valladolid, where he had been educated and ordained. Mr. Jones made his last entry in the baptismal register [of Stratford] on January 4th, 1801, and on the Epiphany he was replaced by Mr. Singleton, whose stay lasted till the end of September, 1802. For the next eight years he was at St. George's Fields, until August, 1810, when he was sent to Kelvedon (Hatch) Hall as chaplain to the Wright family. That post he abandoned of his own account, for what reason does not transpire, in May, 1814, but six months later he was appointed to St. Patrick's, Highbridge, Winchester, where he remained till his death, 24th May, 1839" (Father J. L. Whitfield, in the Brentwood Diocesan Magazine, August, 1921, p. 122). He was the last resident priest at Highbridge, and was buried in the Catholic cemetery of St. James, Winchester, on 28th May 1839.

Father Joseph Alberry thereupon served the mission from Winchester, to which he appears, from the Laity's Directory, to have been appointed in 1837 as assistant to Father James Delaney. In 1840 he is shown as attached to the Convent at "Bishop's House," which was opposite to the presbytery. In 1843 we have the following entry in the Catholic Directory against the Highbridge Mission—"Rev. Joseph Alberry. Mass at 10." This continues down to 1857, after which his name is omitted, consequent on his transfer to East Bergholt with the Community. Father Alberry is shown as at Crayford from 1859 to 1877. In 1878 he appears as still at Crayford, but retired. His death took place on 4 April 1878, at the age of 71 years. Subjoined are some little entries found in a file composed partly of the Laity's Directory and partly of the Ordo Recitandi which belonged to him:

1832. [Written twice in pencil on title-page] "Ann Alberry" [probably his mother]: "Jos. Alberry, Bungay." ["Mrs. Ann Alberry" was buried in St. James' Cemetery, Winchester, on 8 May 1841.] [In calendar, written in pencil against 21 August] "Came to Winton."

1834. [On title-page in pencil] "Joseph Alberry."

1835. [On title-page in pencil] "Joseph Alberry. A Conventual present" [repeated in 1836].

1845. "Thursday the 11 of Sept: let my Stable to Mr. Baspoole for 5/- per month."

1846. [Opposite 17 May, in pencil] "17. Pd the flyman for 5 weeks £1 10 0." [Opposite 31 May] "Gave the flyman for twice to Highbridge 12 [s.]: no fly during the month of June." [Opposite 19 July] "19. Pd the Flyman £1 10 0 for Highbridge 5 weeks or Sundays." [Opposite 4 October, in pencil] "4. Pd Flyman £3 1 0."

The remaining clergy whose names appear in the Register after 1856 —Robert Mount, Neil Crispin and Hendrik K. E. Van Doorne—belonged to the Southampton mission, the history of which remains to be written.

The little chapel at Highbridge occupied the upper floor of a wing at the back of a small house, brick-built and tiled, facing eastwards, and distant about a mile from the mansion; a joint in the brick-work shows that it was an addition made after the house had been built. It is situated on the western side of the road from Brambridge to Allbrook and Eastleigh. The accompanying plate gives a representation of the chapel-house, from a water-colour drawing kindly lent by the Very Rev. Canon J. H. King. The drawing, 9½ by 7 inches, is mounted on a card, on the back of which is written, in pencil: "The Catholic Chapel at Highbridge, near Eastleigh. The Chapel was the part of the building on which is the cross. It ceased to be used as a chapel in 1884, when the Rev. L. Gunning began to say Mass at St. Mary's Home, Eastleigh, which Home was founded by Miss Simeon. This picture was made in June, 1897." Near to this house is a small four-roomed, thatched cottage of brick and timber, in which dwells Mr. George Marsh, whose baptism on Christmas Day, 1849, is recorded in the Register, and who, as a boy, used to attend Mass in the chapel; several entries relating to the family will be found in the Registers. He has lived in the cottage since the disposal of the house, where his father had lived for thirty-six years. Before his father occupied the house a Mr. Hawkins is said to have lived there. A large meadow, liable to be flooded, intervenes between the cottage garden and the river. Across the river, on the Brambridge side, is a large area which has been excavated for gravel; beyond this there is only a farm-house until the mansion is reached.

On the southern side of the chapel-house is a cornfield, which extends by the side of the road for half-a-mile until it meets the Itchen Canal, which here runs parallel with the railway from Winchester to Eastleigh. On the opposite side of the road is a similar stretch of water-meadows. The district, however, is being opened out, and a motor-omnibus service now runs from Eastleigh to Brambridge Village; the road is being widened and straightened; a strip is to be cut off from George Marsh's front garden; a lofty elm-tree in the hedge fronting the chapel-house is marked for destruction, together with a yew-tree on the opposite side of the road, and the house itself will probably soon be modernised, if not pulled down, while the neighbourhood—at present so rural—will most likely be discovered to offer eligible building sites.

On the discontinuance of the mission the property was purchased by a florist who is still living there. The chapel, now used as a store-room, is about 29 by 15 feet, with two windows on each side, fitted with a wooden framework dividing each window into three lights and moulded to imitate ecclesiastical stone tracery. There is a similar window, but of only two lights, at the end. The ceiling is formed partly by the sloping sides of the roof, and partly by a flat portion running from end to end between them, the whole being covered with blue paper, bearing gilt stars. Access to the chapel from the outside was obtained by an enclosed staircase, with a door at the foot and another at the entrance to the chapel. The altar was at the end adjoining the house, and had three steps. In the left-hand corner is a door leading into a small chamber, about eight feet square, with no communication to the house, which was used as a sacristy. By the side of this door is another one leading into the house. The windows are filled with decoration, most of which has partially perished, between double sheets of glass; there are, however, three panels still in good preservation, representing the Annunciation, the Visitation, and the Blessing of Children. Across the middle is an arch, with very narrow sides, running up the walls and across the ceiling, papered to look like marble; probably the altar-rails were beneath it marking off the sanctuary. The chapel was seated with benches. There was formerly over the Altar an oil painting, said to represent the Ascension. In the present church at Eastleigh are an old mahogany Tabernacle and four brass candlesticks, supposed to have been brought from the Highbridge chapel.

Among the volumes preserved in the presbytery library at Winchester are several bearing the names of "Wells" and "Smythe," some with Walter Smythe's armorial bookplate; some others are marked "Highbridge." There is likewise a thick quarto missal (Plantin, Antverpiæ, 1734), bound in red morocco, gilt back and sides, in excellent condition: on the fly-leaf is the following in the neat handwriting of Father Walmsley:

> "Walter Smythe's Anniversary to be kept on Jan^{ry} 14 and four Masses annually to be said by the Incumbent of this Chapel for the Repose of his Soul and those [altered to that] of Mary his Wife and the rest of his family after their respective deceases. The above to be an Obligation as long as this Chapel exists at Highbridge.
> Henry Well's Anniversary is Nov: 30th to be kept Dec. 1st.
> Mary Smythe the widow of the above Walter Smythe died Jan^{ry} 26, 1807."

Inserted at the end is a leaflet of four pages (page 4, apparently blank, is pasted to the inside of the end-paper), commencing: "To the Catholic Clergy, Secular and Regular, residing in the Western District." It contains an exhortation to pray for the Royal Family, with appropriate prayers, in Latin and English, commencing with Psalm 19, and continuing with the same prayers as to-day. It concludes as follows:

> "The great humanity of Government towards us, suggests a propriety of behaviour on our part, in using the present indulgence with caution, prudence, and moderation. We therefore strongly recommend to you that line of conduct, and to be careful in avoiding what may tend to raise disputes or give offence.
> ✠Charles Ramaten.*
> July 3, 1778."

As the old mission was not far from Winchester many of the surnames are also to be met with, as might be expected, in the Catholic registers of that city (see C.R.S. i, 148–243), and the two series should be read together.

Thanks are rendered to His Lordship the Bishop of Portsmouth for sanctioning the transcription of the Registers; also to the Rev. James C. Connolly, of St. Joseph's, Southampton, for facilities courteously afforded for the work of transcription, and for having very kindly checked the proofs with the original. Acknowledgment is due for much helpful information furnished by the Very Rev. Canon King, the Rev. John Doran and the Rev. C. A. Newdigate, S.J.

* Dr. Charles Walmesley, O.S.B., Bishop of Rama in partibus, D.D. of the University of Paris, became Vicar Apostolic of the Western District in 1770 and died at Bath in 1797. He was of singular ability in mathematics, and was consulted by the British Government on the alteration of the Calendar.

THE CHAPEL-HOUSE AT HIGHBRIDGE, HANTS.

FROM A WATER-COLOUR DRAWING MADE IN 1897

The Registers.

The mission Registers, now preserved at St. Joseph's presbytery, Bugle Street, Southampton, are contained in a small quarto book of plain white paper, the leaves measuring $7\frac{7}{8} \times 6\frac{3}{8}$ inches; it is unpaged (pagination is supplied below), and ruled perpendicularly in red—now faded—as for a cash book. The binding is in boards (on which are the remains of marbled paper), with parchment back and corners. As Henry Wells died on 30 November 1763, the mansion had passed into the possession of the Smythe family before the earliest date in the Register.

The book has been turned over before being started, so that the cash columns are on the wrong side of the page. On the outside of the first cover of the volume, as thus reversed, is written, in a bold hand, in black ink:

Register of
Baptisms
Confirmations
Burials*
at Bambridge† [or Highbridge]
near Bishopstoke, Hampshire.

Above this has been written, in a fainter ink, by another hand:

From 30 Nov: 1766
to 23 April 1871.‡

The other cover is endorsed, in the same handwriting as that on the front cover:

Baptisms, &c.
Highbridge.

The book commences with the baptismal entries, which take up 29 leaves, both sides of the paper being written upon; the last leaf, however, has only been used so far as the upper half of its first page. A number of blank leaves then follow, and in the middle of the book comes the Register of Confirmations, occupying both sides of one leaf and a quarter of the next. The lower right-hand corners of the leaves have been cut away down to this point, and the word "Confirmations" is written on the portion of the page thus left visible.

For the Register of Deaths the book has been turned over and used from the other end (thus bringing the cash columns into their proper position); three leaves are used for this. One leaf is then left blank, after which follows the Register of Marriages, which fills both sides of the next leaf; the pages between this and the list of Confirmations are left blank, except that on one of them is a list, in the handwriting of Father Walmesley, of articles belonging to the mission in 1814. Several small memoranda have been fastened into the book on blank pages.

* There could not have been any burials actually at Brambridge or Highbridge; most of the interments probably took place at Twyford or in the Catholic cemetery at Winchester.

‡ The entries are here printed as far as the year 1869.

Baptisms.

From the uniformity in the small, neat, and regular handwriting, and the colour of the ink, it would seem that all the entries down to, and including that of the 22nd September 1797, were written at one time, on or about that date, and may have been copied from some other list. "The earliest date belongs to the Baptisms (1766). All the entries down to the year 1814 are in the handwriting of the Reverend William Walmesley, O.S.B. The first seven entries of Baptisms are transcripts by Mr. Walmesley, and as they give the names of his two immediate predecessors are not unworthy of notice."—F.J.B.

The names have been repeated in the margin—evidently by Father Walmesley at a later date—until the 3rd August 1774, after which date the surname was underlined in the entry instead. This has been continued up to 26 January 1807; thereafter the marginal names have been resumed, with some exceptions, until 14 March 1813. From 20 May 1815 the surnames have again been written in the margin, apparently at the same time as the respective entries were made. The duplication of names in the margins which occurs in the original is not repeated here, but the first three entries are given as specimens.

Confirmations.

The list of Confirmations comes next, and occupies 2¼ pages. It had been transcribed by F.J.B. as far as the list of 1796 with the following remark: "These are entered on a leaf in the middle of the Register Book, and in the handwriting of the Rev. William Walmesley, O.S.B." There is a further note by F.J.B. as follows:

"On another page of the Highbridge or Bambridge Register, in the handwriting of the Revd Joseph Alberry:

¶ There is no list of Confirmations so early in the Southampton Catholic Register; consequently, the date cannot be given.

 Thomas Grant, first bishop of Southwark, consecrated 6 July 1851; ob. 1 June 1870. The Winchester Register gives the Christian names as Eliza Anna and Lucy Agnes, and the date—23 Nov. 1851. The signification of the letters after Bishop Grant's name (also on p. 35) is not obvious.

Obituary.

[The book is now turned over and used the reverse way.]

The entries commence at the top of the page, without any heading. "These are in the handwriting of the Reverend Father Walmesley down to the year 1813. The first is dated March 8th, 1768 . . . . . They are very irregular after Mr. Walmesley's time, and carelessly entered" (F.J.B.). As far as the entry for 8 April 1796 they appear to have been written at one time, as if transcribed. Father Singleton's handwriting follows, from 8 January 1815, until succeeded by two entries by Father Alberry in 1854. The remainder of the list appears to have been written by Father Van Doorne.

[Here a leaf has been cut out, leaving traces of writing on the narrow strip remaining. The next leaf has been left blank on each side; then comes the list of Marriages.]

Marriages.

The Register of Marriages commences at the top of the page, with the word "Marriages" as a heading. The leaf appears to have become detached, and has been fastened into its place with transparent paper (probably by F.J.B.).

The entries are written closely, each occupying a single line. "All these entries down to the year 1812 are in the handwriting of the Rev. William Walmesley, O.S.B., and those down to 1835 by Mr. Singleton, from which time there is only a single entry, and that by the Rev. Joseph Alberry" (F.J.B., writing in 1857). The entries up to and including that of 25 February 1800 appear to have been written at one time. The last entry in the list is by Father Van Doorne.

The foregoing certificate had been copied by F.J.B., who has added the following note: "The Rev. George Halsey was educated at Rome, and died at Easebourne April 25th 1834 aged 81 years." A copy of the original entry (where the name is given as "Eliz. Lincoln") will be found in the transcript of the Cowdray and Easebourne Register already printed (C.R.S. i, 248). For the variation in spelling of this name, compare the brass tablet affixed to a column on the north side of the nave of Winchester Cathedral to the memory of Col. Richard Boles, of "Linckhorne Sheire."

Slip 3.

A piece of white paper, 6 by 3 inches. On one side is written, across the width of the paper, in a very shaky hand:

James, the son of W[m] & Sara Godwin, born on 21[st] March 1805 was baptised on the 24[th] of the same [month & above] year by Rev[d] M[r] Walmesley at Highbridge. Taken out of the Register book.

Rev[d] John Singleton

On the other side of the slip is written, lengthwise:

Slip 4.

A piece of white paper, 4½ by 2 inches. On one side is written, longways:

Slip 5.

A portion of a sheet of white notepaper, 4½ by 3 inches; on one side is written, longways:

Slip 6.

A piece of white paper, 4½ by 3½ inches, apparently a portion of a larger sheet on which there had been some writing. The words remaining are, on the front side: "George" and "Apl 15, 1823," and on the other: "Aprilis," "Maria Vinn," and "April 25 and 29," in separate lines.

Slip 7.

An undated piece of white paper, 7 by 2½ inches. On one side is written, lengthways:

3 Baptismal Certificates of Caroline Smythe [a word, apparently christened, scored] Christened at Highbridge about 73 years ago. H. W. Price.

[On the other side is written, longwise]:

To be forwarded if convenient as it is a very pressing business to Robert W. W. Smart Esq: Solicitor 38 Lincolns Inn Fields London.

Any charges will be remitted by post office Order.

[The name of Caroline Smythe does not occur in the Register, except as godmother (see 1815, 20th May and 1st August). According to Kelly's London Directory the firm of Rashleigh and Smart, Solicitors, was at the address stated from 1865 to 1887; the date of the baptism referred to might consequently appear to be somewhere about the year 1790.]

Slip 8.

A sheet of notepaper, folded to make four pages, measuring 7¼ by 4½ inches. It has been attached at the fold by transparent paper to the blank page following the last page of the Obituary. The sheet had at some period previously again been folded into four, and evidently much used in that form (perhaps carried about in a prayer-book), as a hole is worn at the intersection of the cross-folds.

It bears a list of names, without heading, but relating to the Wells family, and has been transcribed by F.J.B., who has added against the names in his copy some notes in pencil (shown below within brackets). On the left-hand side of his transcript is written, in ink: "Copied Janry 21st 1857. F.J.B.," and on the right-hand side, in pencil: "The original of this paper was placed in the Brambridge Register by me. F.J.B. Janry 24th, 1857." The following note, in pencil, is prefixed to the list as copied: "These dates are the old style, as Charles is elsewhere given as born 14 March 1702."

The following further notes have been appended by F.J.B. to his transcript of the foregoing:

APPENDIX.

I.—Notes on some entries relating to Recusants in the Registers of the Parish church of Twyford (Hampshire).

The parish church of St. Mary,* at Twyford, is situated about a mile north of Brambridge House, on the road to Winchester. The present building replaces a pre-Reformation edifice which was demolished in 1876.† Certain monuments and architectural features were transferred to the new structure, but there appears to have been some destruction of sepulchral slabs at the same time. Following on a correspondence relating to the loss of ancient monuments in churches, a writer in the Times of 30 September 1879, after referring to a neighbouring church, proceeds: "A corresponding act has been committed at Twyford church, which once had many monuments and tablets . . . . . There are numerous gravestones used as pavement flags all round the church, many very old."

In the present church are preserved two interesting oil paintings representing the interior of the old church, as seen from the eastern and western ends respectively. The positions of the mural tablets and other details are remarkably well shown. There is also a curious plan of the seating, made in 1698, showing the allocation of the various pews; in the south-east corner is a pew lettered as being assigned to "Mr. Charles Wells."

The Registers of this church were examined in April 1870 by the late Mr. F. J. Baigent, from whose notes the following details have been obtained.

* The medieval dedication was to St. Benedict. The Will of Agnes Glaspole, of Twyford, dated 24 August 1503, has: "Corpusque meum sepeliendum in cimiterio Sancti Benedicti de Twyford predict'." Another Will, that of John Brekkylton, dated 4 October 1533, directs that his body should be buried in the churchyard of "Seint Benett in the parishe of Twyforth" (Winton B. Series).—F.J.B.

† A view of this picturesque old Hampshire church is given in Robert Mudie's Hampshire (Winchester [1838]), vol. i, p. 126.

The earliest portion existing at the time of its demolition was not older than the reign of Henry III, and it was therefore probably built in the place of an earlier church mentioned in A.D. 1188. At the close of the fourteenth century extensive repairs appear to have become necessary, and the illustrious John de Campeden, the friend, secretary, and companion of William of Wykeham, gave the parishioners twenty marks, equal to about £250 of present money, towards its reparation; he also made anew the chancel of the church, and bore the whole expense of the reconsecration of the church, which was performed by Thomas, bishop of Crispolitan, in the year 1402: "Item, fecit de novo cancellum ecclesiæ de Twyford et dedit ultra hoc XX marcas sterlingorum parochianis ibidem in auxilium reparationis ecclesiæ prædictæ et fecit consecrari ecclesiam et cancellum ibidem suis propriis expensis" (Bishop William of Wykeham's Register, vol. ii, fol. 344. b). Of the work thus carried out at that time there remained the clerestory windows of the nave, the towerarch, and west window of the nave; and the priest's entrance on the north side of the chancel erected in 1401. Judging from other examples, the east window and the doorway, the exact date of which can be fixed, were set out by Simon de Membury, clerk of works to William of Wykeham. The beautiful square-headed perpendicular window in the north wall of the nave was of about A.D. 1520.—F.J.B. (note dated 25 Aug. 1876).

[The present vicar, the Rev. H. S. Morris, has most kindly allowed me to check—and in some respects to amplify—the information previously secured.—R.C.B.]

Book No. 1 is stated to contain entries of Baptisms, from 12 May 1626 to 24 March 1712–3; Marriages, from 19 Nov. 1627 to 15 Jan. 1712–3; and Burials, from 19 Oct. 1626 to 21 Jan. 1712–3. Book No. 2 relates to Baptisms, from 1713 to 1812; Marriages, from 1712 to 1753; and Disbursements of "Sacrament Money." Book No. 3 contains Burial entries from 1713 to 1812, and Book No. 4 Marriage entries from 1754 to 1812 (the numbering of these books agrees with that given in the Parish Register Abstract, Census Report, 1831, Vol. iii).*

The oldest volume, No. 1, is of much interest, and well deserves to be printed in extenso. It is a quarto, 11¼ × 8½ inches, with leaves of parchment, in a modern parchment binding. The first page is blank; the second has several items noted. One paragraph is as follows:

"Twyford in South'ton. In obedience to Authority (Presuming the intent is good) there is a Return of the number of Inhabitants 430, of Recusants 70, and of Dissenters or Absentees from Cõunion 198. May 3, 1676. And Owslebury, Inhabitants 364, Recusants 29, Dissenters or Absentees 176, Familys in Twyford 88, In Owslebury 83, In Both 171."

Immediately succeeding the above is an entry of seven lines in cypher characters, which, it is understood, have not yet been interpreted.

The following further item is of interest:

[THE PROTESTATION OF 1641.†]

The Protestation made by the House of Commons the 3ᵈ of Ma [continuation not legible] 1641, was taken by those in the next pages subscribed unto with their names and marks. I A.B. doe in the presence of Allmightie God, promise, vow, and protest to maintain and defend as far as lawfully I maye with my life, power & estate, the true reformed protestant Religion, expressed in the Doctrine of the Church of England against all Poperie & Popish innovations within this realm contrarie to the same doctrine, and according to the dutie of my allegiance, his Maᵗᵗᵉˢ royall person, honour and estate, as also the power & privileges of Parliament, the lawful rights of the subjects and every person yᵗ maketh this protestation in wᵗsoever he shall do in the lawful pursuance of the same, and to my power, and as far as Lawfullie I maye, I will oppose, and by all good waies and means endeavor to bring to condign punishment, all such as shall, either by force, practice, counsells, plotts, conspiracies, or otherwise do anything to the contrarie of any thing in this pʳsent protestation contayned. And further that I shall in all iust and honourable waies endeavour to pʳserve the union and peace between the three kingdomes of England, Scotland, and Ireland. And neither for hope, fearr, nor other respect, shall relinquish this promise, vowe, and protestation.

* The Register of Twyford is included among those stated in George W. Marshall's "Parish Registers" (Parish Register Society, 1900, p. 88) to have been transcribed, and reference is given to Chester MSS. (Hants, No. 19, p. 233). Col. Chester's MS., however, which is preserved in the College of Arms, is not a transcript, but merely a series of extracts relating to certain families.

† The original of this Protestation is to be found in the Journals of the House of Commons, Vol. II (April 13, 1640, to March 14, 1642–3), 17 Car. I, A.D. 1641, p. 132. There are some slight verbal variations between the wording of the Protestation as brought before the House and as reported by the Committee; it was considered and subscribed to by the House of Lords on 4 May 1641.

We whose names are here unto written have taken our corporall oaths unto the protestation hereunto annexed the tenth daie of October anno Dñi 1641.

[Here follow thirty signatures, in two columns, several being marked with a cross.]

Beneath the above is a list of "Briefs" soliciting contributions for various objects, dating from 1657 to 1694. Among the entries in one of these, headed, "Collected for Captives in Turkey, Nov. 7, 8, 11, 1670," we find: "Mrs. Dorothy Wells, 2*s.* 6*d.*; Mr. Charles Wells, 2*s.* 6*d.*"

Books No. 2 and No. 3 are long foolscap folio volumes, with paper leaves. In Book 3 is entered the following:

"A State[ment] of the Papists or reputed Papists resident in the Parishes of Twyford and Ouslebury in the Diocese of Winchester taken in September 1767, by Watson Tookey, Vicar:—

In Twyford 10.	In Brambridge 23.
In Ouslebury 10.	Total 43.

A Copy of their Sex, Age, Occupation, and Residence was sent in the same Month to the Bishop of Winchester by his direction, in order to be laid before the House of Lords on the first day of the next Session of Parliament.

N.B. The Great House at Brambridge where the Papists assemble to celebrate Mass, is at this time uninhabited."

* Continuation possibly illegible or inaccessible. Some entries of the name of Bulbeck will be found in the Index to the Winchester Register (C.R.S. i). In a list of the last 103 members of Douay College, from the Douay Diary for Oct. 1st, 1792, occurs: " 91. John Bulbeck, layman." He was a native of Havant, [co.] Southampton: liberated Feb. 25, 1795; died at Havant (The Haydock Papers, by Joseph Gillow, 1882, p. 140).

† There appears to be an error at the reference. The passage is at cap. 1, v. 21,—" Mihi enim vivere Christus est, et mori lucrum."

(D)

[A few lines of the following inscription have been copied by F.J.B., but he evidently had not time to continue. He notes its position as being " fixed on a pillar in the church "—this was, of course, in the old church, and accounts for the bowed front. The inscription was copied in full by the present writer in Sept. 1923; it is on a curved tablet of black marble, with an oval top, surrounded with a white alabaster mounting, fixed in the middle of the south wall of a chapel at the south-east corner of the church.]

III.—ABSTRACT OF WILL OF SAMPSON THOMAS, 1549.

In connection with the Wells family, the following Abstract, written by F.J.B., is of interest:

" 1549 (3 Edw. VI). Abstract of the Will of " Sampson Thomas, of the Town of Southampton, esquyer," dated 4 May.

My bodie to be buried in holy roode churche at the northe end of the high alter under my tombe there. To Maude my wife all my lands, tenements, rents, reversions and service, in the town of Southampton or suburbs of the same, during her natural life, the remainder thereof after her decease to Garrarde de Marinis de Egra, and to the heirs of his body lawfully begotten. In the presbytery library at Winchester is a copy of the "Ecclesiastical History" of Nicephorus,* in Latin (Bâle, 1560: folio, pp. 956). On the title-page of this volume is written, in the middle of the top margin, in a clear, upright hand:—Sum Gerardi Marinj. In the middle of the page are written the initials G D M, and in the middle of the lower margin, in the same handwriting as that at the top:—Mens mihi mundus. Marinj.

At the upper right-hand corner of the title-page is written, in a sloping hand:—Nunc Richardi Bruningi ex legato amoris gº eiusdem Gerardi; qui obiit 29 die Decemb: 1596. This would appear to refer to Richard Bruning, who held lands at Denmede, in the parish of Hambledon, Hants., in 1600, second son of Richard Bruning (ob. 1573), who had held the same lands. The elder son was Francis Bruning, who died s.p., in 1596, and to whom his brother Richard was heir (Herald and Genealogist, iii, 519).

* The title-page is as follows:—"Nicephori Callisti Xanthopuli, scriptoris uere Catholici, Ecclesiasticæ historiæ libri decem et octo. Sacratiss. Rom. Regis Ferdinandi liberalitate, opera uerò ac studio doctiss. uiri Ioannis Langi, Consiliarij Regij, è Græco in Latinum sermonem translati, nuncq'; denuo in lucem editi. . . . . Cum S. Rom. Regiæ Maiest. gratia & priuilegio ad decennium: & Christianiss. Francorum Regis Henrici II. ad annos sex. Basileæ, per Ioannes Oporinum & Heruagium.' The last six words are repeated at the end of the volume, followed by—"Anno Salutis Humanæ M.D.LX, Mense Augusto."

Nicephorus Callistus Xanthopulus was the last of the Greek Church historians. The precise date of his birth is not known, but he flourished at Constantinople near the opening of the fourteenth century, and is supposed to have been still alive in 1356; he was probably a monk of St. Sophia, of which he was librarian. His work is stated to be of great interest, as it is the only contribution to Church history which appeared in the East from the sixth to the fourteenth century (McClintock and Strong's Cyclopædia of Biblical . . . Literature [New York: 1877], vii, 52).

CATHOLIC REGISTERS OF THE DOMESTIC CHAPEL AT ARUNDEL CASTLE; AFTERWARDS AT THE PUBLIC CHAPEL AT ARUNDEL, 1749–1835. FOLLOWED BY A LIST OF BURIALS IN THE FITZALAN CHAPEL AT ARUNDEL (OTHER THAN THOSE MENTIONED IN TIERNEY'S HISTORY OF ARUNDEL), AND A PRIVATE REGISTER OF BURIALS THERE SINCE 1866.

TRANSCRIBED AND EDITED BY MAJOR F. J. A. SKEET.

Introduction.

The parish church of St. Nicholas, at Arundel, was served from 1380 until "The Reformation" from a college of secular priests, who had a college adjoining, as also their own chapel, part of the same building as the parish church, now known as the Fitzalan Chapel. The college, which was dedicated to The Holy Trinity, was suppressed in 1544. Two years later, in 1546, Thomas Hall was appointed vicar of St. Nicholas, by the Earl of Arundel, and sworn, "Ad sancta Dei evangelia, de Romani Episcopi supremitate agnoscendâ." He was replaced in 1549 by one Thomas Webster. The next priest we hear of was "a grave and ancient man," who had been ordained in Queen Mary's reign, and was introduced into Arundel Castle by Mr. Richard Bayly, a Catholic gentleman, to reconcile the Countess, wife of Philip, Earl of Arundel, to the Church. The next earl, a Protestant, was engaged in the Civil War, during which, in 1644, the greater part of the castle was reduced to ruins. It was not until between 1716–1720, when Thomas, 8th Duke of Norfolk, repaired a portion and erected other apartments of a more modern appearance, that it again became habitable.* During this long blank the Catholics in Arundel would have been dependent on the priests at Slindon House, four miles to the west, or on those at Michelgrove, three miles to the east, the seats respectively of the recusant families of Kempe and Shelley, well-known protectors of missionary priests.

We get a glimpse of Arundel in 1741 on the occasion of a Visitation by Bishop Richard Challoner. From his Itinerary, preserved in the archives at Westminster, it appears that he found there a congregation "circiter 90," of whom he confirmed twenty on the 21 June, and eighteen more two days afterwards. On his second Visitation, in 1749, the bishop's notes are no longer so methodical as before, but they show that the numbers at Arundel had not declined.

When the castle was rebuilt in 1783 it was decided to remove the domestic chapel from its precincts. Charles, Duke of Norfolk, had a large room in the western portion of the south side of the old college buildings set up as a chapel "for the joint use of his family and the public." It was not for some sixty years or more after this that a chapel was erected at the Castle Court between the Great Hall and the Norman gateway. The room continued to be used as the mission church of the neighbourhood until 1873, when the present church of St. Philip Neri was opened. During Canon Tierney's time mass was only said there on Sundays and holy days.

* Mrs. Roundell, in her History of Cowdray, prints a letter from Horace Walpole, dated 26 August 1749, in which he writes: "At last we got to Arundel Castle: it is now only a heap of ruins, with a new indifferent apartment clapt up for the Norfolks, when they reside there for a week or a fortnight. Their priest showed us about."

Of the earlier chaplains there is but scanty record. We find that the Rev. Charles Cordell was appointed by Edward, 9th Duke of Norfolk, who had succeeded his brother Thomas in 1732, but there is no evidence in the baptismal register of a priest having been in Arundel from 1755 to 1772, probably because the 9th duke was so much away from Arundel.

The Rev. Joseph Addis became chaplain in 1772 and so remained until 1778. From this date until 1785 the entries are in various hands, without signatures. Those from 1780 to 1782 were probably made by the Rev. Mr. Fishwick, who, according to The Catholic Handbook (published in 1857), was at Arundel during that period.

The Rev. Philip Wyndham came to Arundel in 1785. He was chaplain for forty years, and attained the great age of ninety-three. He died at Brook Green, Hammersmith, 6 February 1825. A year before his death he accomplished the feat of walking from Arundel to London. He was succeeded by The Very Rev. Canon Mark Aloysius Tierney, F.S.A., F.R.S., the well-known author of The History and Antiquities of the Castle and Town of Arundel. Before his appointment to Arundel, where he remained thirty-seven years, he had been at Slindon. He died in 1862, and by a special privilege was buried in the Fitzalan Chapel.

Canon Tierney was succeeded in 1858 by Rev. John Butt, and the following year the Church of St. Philip, Arundel, was opened. In 1885 he was appointed Bishop of Southwark, being replaced at St. Philip's by the Rev. John Burke, who was followed in 1898 by Canon Archibald Noel Locke MacCall, who died a few days before these pages were returned to the transcriber for final arrangement: it is much to be regretted they had not been in print during the Canon's lifetime, as he was very much interested in the work of transcription, and gave every facility and help whilst it was being done. Arundel is much the poorer for the loss of a well-beloved holy priest, and courteous, high-bred gentleman.—R.I.P.

The Rev. John Cudden was appointed parish priest at Arundel 8 January 1927, and took over the parish 28 February. The chaplaincy of the Convent of Poor Clares at Cross Bush, combined with the Angmering mission, instead of being under a mission priest (the last of whom was Father Bertrand McFadden), is now undertaken by one of the clergy from Arundel. The Catholic parish of Arundel now contains Kingston, East Preston, Rustington, and Amberley. In Norman times the first of these had its priest appointed by the Abbot of Tewkesbury, East Preston and Rustington by the Benedictine Prior of Arundel. Now—after the lapse of centuries—these outlying adjuncts to "the Honour of Arundel" owe their spiritual direction to the same mother church. The waves have rolled over "the black rock," once the church at Kingston, and the sea still gains on the land. A modern garden city, Angmering-on-Sea, at the junction of the East Preston and Kingston manors, has grown up within the last few years—called Angmering-on-Sea because of the railway station, but it is not in Angmering parish.

The episcopal visitations made during the period covered by this register were by the Venerable Bishop Challoner, Vicar Apostolic of the London district, his coadjutor and successor the Hon. and Rt. Rev. James Talbot, Bishop Douglass, and Bishop Poynter.

At the Arundel Estate Office there is a modern foolscap book containing a list of burials and reburials in the Fitzalan Chapel, and also a private register of modern burials. These have been extracted, and will be found at the end of the register proper. They are supplementary to those in Tierney's History of Arundel, as it was not thought necessary to reprint what has already appeared in that valuable book.

A number of entries relating to Irish soldiers occur between 23 August 1804 and 14 December 1818. Canon Edmund Cartwright, in his History of the Rape of Arundel, published 1832, states that "Horse Barracks were built in 1800 on Batworth Park Hill to receive 350 men and their officers." The site is enclosed by a flint wall on the north side of the Arundel-Worthing road, adjoining the Poor Clares' Convent. Batworth Park, now the residence of Charles Robertson, Esq., K.S.G., lies north of the enclosure; it is said stables were erected where the house now stands; this is supported by the existence of the original opening in the north section of the wall through which the horses could pass from parade ground to stables. On the west, close to the gate, there is a house for which the wall itself supplies the north wall, now the residence of G. W. Eustace, Esq., M.C., M.D. (author of Arundel : Borough and Castle, 1922), who has very kindly supplied most of this information; it survived the destruction of the stables and most of the other buildings, after the battle of Waterloo. It was for long after known as "The Colonel's House." The present occupier, who is a tenant, as is Mr. Robertson, of His Grace the Duke of Norfolk, has renamed it "Canonbernes," in order to perpetuate the name under which certain lands to the north-west were leased by the Earl of Arundel in the twelfth century to the Prior and Canons of Pynham.* It was for some years the residence of the chaplain to the Poor Clares. The soldiers appear to have lived under canvas or in huts. The only permanent buildings, in addition to the Colonel's house and stables, were a small guardroom at the gate, with cottages opposite, which are still in existence—the latter may have been the hospital; there was also probably a powder magazine.

It was part of the scheme for the defence of the south coast against invasion during the Napoleonic wars, of which Thomas Hardy gives us an interesting description relating to Weymouth in his novel, The Trumpet Major. The site chosen stands on high ground, about four miles from the sea, from whence there are good views over the surrounding country to the south. There was a detachment at Poling, about a mile east, where, until lately, there were the "Barrack Cottages," a group of small dwellings, demolished a few years ago. Some three miles further on to the south-east, at Angmering, there are still cottages known as "The Barrack Yard," where another party was quartered.

We find the following cavalry regiments mentioned: 1st King's Dragoon Guards, 1804–1808; 5th and 7th Dragoon Guards, 1811; 13th Dragoons, 1818. And the following infantry units: 89th, 1805; 45th, 1806; 18th and 68th, 1810; 3rd, 1811; 37th, 1812; three Irish Militias, Dublin, Clare, and Waterford, in 1813. In 1811 Acts had been passed to allow the Militia to volunteer for service out of their own country, and finally anywhere in Europe.

The Slindon Register was printed in C.R.S. vii. In the Introductior

* "Pynham or De Calceto juxta Arundell. A priory of Black Canon founded by William, Earl of Arundell, temp. Henry II, and dedicated to St. Bartholomew" (Thomas Tanner, Notitia Monastica : 1695).

there is an account of the Kempe family, and mention of the Newburgh. As it is rather difficult to follow the connections of the allied families who occupied Slindon House, and whose names occur in both Registers, the annexed pedigree has been prepared.

We are indebted to the late Canon MacCall for permission to transcribe the register; to the Rev. Philip Malden, his curate, for kindly correcting the transcript with the original; and to G. P. Tyrwhitt-Drake, Esq., the Duke of Norfolk's agent, for facilities in transcribing the register at the Arundel Estate Office; and lastly to the Rev. R. P. Redding for assistance in correcting proofs.

The Registers.

The Arundel Registers are bound in a book 12½ inches by 8 inches, soft leather binding, which has been rebacked, with a label B. I.

On the front page is written as a title:

The back of this leaf is blank. Then follow 21 pages intended for an index, a page to each letter (with five omissions). It is, however, very imperfect, not having been proceeded with. This section is succeeded by the Register of Baptisms, with a separate pagination, which extends as far as p. 223. Lists of Confirmations commence on p. 244, but the pages are no longer numbered (pagination here supplied). The Register of Burials begins about three-quarter way through the book, with a fresh numbering of pages. The surnames in the baptismal and burial entries have been repeated in the outer margin of each page but are not printed here.

‡ Edward, 9th Duke of Norfolk, born 5 June 1686, married Mary Blount, by whom he had no issue, and died 20 September 1777. Engaged in the Rising of 1715. It was owing to his brother Thomas, 8th Duke of Norfolk, having "truckled to the usurper" that his wife, Maria Shireburn, of Stonyhurst, left her husband (History of Sheet, Widdrington, and Others, 1906); also in a life of the 8th Duchess of Norfolk (Stonyhurst Magazine, 1925, reprinted the same year).

Pedigree

OF

WITH CONNECTIONS.

The Scottish peerage of Earl of Newburgh, Viscount Kynnaird and Baron Levingstone was granted in 1660 to all heirs whatsoever. In some peerages the 4th Earl is called 3rd Earl. His mother, having been Countess in her own right, but not Earl! The Slindon estate came to the Derwentwater-Newburgh family by the marriage of James Bartholomew Radcliffe with Barbara, heir of Anthony Kemp of Slindon. Hassop, in Derbyshire, belonged to Francis Eyre, who married the younger daughter of Maria Charlotte, Countess of Newburgh, by her second husband, Charles 5th Earl of Derwentwater, whose descendants wrongfully claimed the earldom of Newburgh, etc., on the plea that a foreigner could not inherit. They are in the chart pedigree thus [E.of N.]. This family became extinct on the death of Mary Dorothea Eyre, who married Colonel Leslie, a widower with children, by whom she had no issue. Colonel Leslie and his descendants lived at Slindon until they sold it shortly before the Great War to Mr. Wootton-Isaacson, who lives in a new house transformed out of the old, with his sister Violet, widow of the 9th Baron Beaumont. There is a descent of local interest from the sister of the 1st Earl of Derwentwater, who married Roger Widdrington, from whom descended Mary 8th Duchess of Norfolk, whose second husband, The Hon. Peregrine Widdrington, traced his descent from Roger Widdrington's brother, father of the 1st Baron Widdrington of Blankney.*

NOTE.

During the time the proofs of this article have been passing through the press, the contributor has obtained the proceedings of the two claims made in the House of Lords:—To be Earl of Newburgh, Viscount Kinnaird and Baron Livingstone [sic] of Flacraig in the Kingdom of Scotland.

Claim I,
July 1831,
Thomas Eyre.

This sets out the descendants of the two daughters of Charlotte Maria Countess of Newburgh, by her two husbands, the first of whom was Thomas Clifford. Their daughter Anne married Giacomo Count Mahoni. The Claimant disposes of their representatives as follows: "Having an older title, would if they were capable of it in law, inherit the dignity; but all the descendants of this marriage now living are aliens by birth and domicile, and must derive their pedigree through three generations of alien blood. They are therefore incapable of inheriting the title; and as they cannot inherit the title, so the existence of such incapable representatives is no impediment to the claim of a natural-born liege claimant, descended from the second marriage of the ancestor, through whom the title is derived . . . ."

The Petition was presented to King William IV. and was referred to the House of Lords, but no proceedings were taken on the claim. Thomas Eyre was succeeded by his brother, Francis Eyre, but he neither claimed the dignity, nor took any steps to establish his title to it. Upon his death in 1862 his sister Dorothea, who, at the age of 46, in 1836, had married Colonel Charles Leslie, assumed the title, but no claim was made by her, nor were any proceedings had in support of her alleged title. On her death in November, 1853, the issue of Charlotte Maria, Countess of Newburgh, by her second husband, Charles Radclyffe (sic), became extinct. The descendants of Robert James 8th Baron Petre by his wife Anna Maria Barbara Radcliffe, are now the sole representatives of the Earls of Derwentwater.

Claim II.
11th May, 1857.

The claim of Cecilia, Princess Giustiniani and Marchioness Dowager Bandini, was proceeded with in the House of Lords. The claim was allowed on Friday, 30 July, 1858. Prince Charles Giustiniani-Bandini, 9th Earl, who lives in Italy, is the present representative. The proceedings contain exhaustive proofs of the pedigree, and many interesting Wills, with extracts from registers, both English and foreign. The will of the last descendant of the family to live at Slindon, Mrs. Leslie, is given in extenso with the codicil. Since the death of this lady, on several occasions claimants have put forward threats to obtain possession of the estate.

G. Arbuthnot.†

* His widow, Mary, daughter of Sir Nicholas Shireburn, of Stonyhurst, died at Preston 25 September, 1754. She was buried in Mitton church, near her second husband, the Hon. Peregrine Widdrington, to whom she had set up there a magnificent monument (Stonyhurst College, by the Rev. John Gerard, S.J., 1894). As an active and zealous Jacobite, as were her kinsmen and friends in the northern counties, she seems to have cut herself off from the passive "King over the Water" drinking supporters of the cause in the southern parts. No picture of her hangs on the walls of Arundel Castle!

CATHOLIC REGISTERS OF ABERGAVENNY, MON., 1740–1838.

EDITED AND ANNOTATED BY JOSEPH HERBERT CANNING, O.B.E.

WITH HISTORICAL INTRODUCTION BY THE REV. E. HILARY WILLSON, O.S.B.

I. The Franciscan Mission.

The earliest historical evidence concerning the Catholics of Abergavenny in post-Reformation days and the facilities provided for their religious needs is contained in "An Abstract of Several Examinations taken upon Oath in the Counties of Monmouth and Hereford, London, 1680." In March, 1678, a Committee of the House of Commons was appointed to consider "the Danger the Nation is in by the Growth of Popery, and for providing Remedies to prevent the same," with power to send for persons, papers, and records. Many were called up from the counties of Monmouth and Hereford, the chief among them being John Arnold, esq., of Llanvihangel Court, Monmouthshire*; John Scudamore, esq., of Kentchurch Court, Herefordshire; William James, of the Lodge, near Caerleon; and Mr. Greenhaugh, the then Vicar of Abergavenny and of the adjoining parish of Llantilio Pertholey. From the evidence given by these sworn witnesses we know that the Venerable Philip Evans, S.J., who was put to death for his faith at Cardiff on July 22nd, 1679, and the Venerable David Lewis, S.J., who suffered the same penalty at Usk, August 27th, in the same year, frequently said Mass in Abergavenny, and that one of them, if not both, as is probable, administered the Sacraments to the Catholics of the town and neighbourhood.†

William James deposes "that he knows Phillip Evans, commonly called Captain Evans a popish Priest entertained by Thomas Gunter at his House in Abergavenny."‡ And Charles Morgan, gentleman, by his examination upon oath, "saith, that David Lewis a Popish reputed Priest doth often frequent the House of one Mr. Thomas Gunter of Abergavenny."‡ John Arnold carries matters further. He declares "that he hath seen a publick Chappel near the House of Mr. Tho. Gunter a Popist [sic] convict in Abergavenny, adorned with the marks of the Jesuites on the outside and is informed that Mass is said there by Captain Evans, a reputed Jesuite, and by the aforesaid David Lewis, that very great numbers resort to the said Chappel, and very often at Church time and he hath credibly heard that a hundred hath gone out of the said

* The late Rev. John Davies (a Baptist minister), in a letter on this subject to the Abergavenny Chronicle and Monmouthshire Advertiser (dated Pandy, 17 Jan. 1908), says that John Arnold "was the great-grandson of Sir Nicholas Arnold ..... to whom the grant of Llanthony Abbey was made by Henry VIII. John Arnold was a most uncompromising persecutor of Roman Catholics, and became in his day notorious as the chief instrument who put in force the penal laws against the Papists. He was M.P. for this county from 1681 to 1698."

‡ Abstract of Examinations.

Chappel, when not forty have gone out of the great Church, that the said Chappell is scituate in a publick Street of the said Town, and doth front the Street."* The evidence of Mr. Greenhaugh, Vicar of Abergavenny and Llantilio Pertholey, as might be expected, is more detailed and explicit still. He says upon his oath "That on Sunday & Holy-days he hath seen great numbers of Roman Catholiks resort to the house of Mr. Thomas Gunter at Abergavenny, and that the said Gunter entertaines one Captain Evans, whom he supposeth to be a Popish Priest; That there is the publick mark of the Jesuites on the outside of the Building, which is directly towards the parish Church, and he is informed there is a Chappel, and that they have in that House all the Formalities and ornaments belonging to a Chappel, with Mass on Sundays & Holy-dayes; he deposeth that there have been Marriages and Christenings in both the said parishes by popish Priests; and further, that the said Thomas Gunter told him, that in Olivers time of severity, he kept a Priest and would keep one now; that many times Corps came to be interred with the Formalities of white Crosses upon them, and endeavouring to hinder the said Superstition, he hath often been abused; that he hath informed John Arnold Esq; and other Justices of the Peace of publick Mass there and other Enormities of the Papists."*

The private chapel of Thomas Gunter here referred to was happily discovered—after the lapse of more than two hundred years, and practically untouched—in the year 1907, in the attic of what was at one time the "Parrot Inn," but more recently the "Cardiff Arms," in Cross Street. This house, as Mr. Canning tells us in his Memoir of the Ven. David Lewis,† with three others, formed a row of four old-fashioned houses, which were, in fact, the oldest houses in the street. In the course of certain adaptations it was discovered that they constituted originally one large edifice, with one front facing the street, and with a garden front behind. Traces of a staircase have been discovered on the outside, leading from the chapel down into the garden. It was the residence of Thomas Gunter, junior, attorney, whose father, Thomas, was the second son of Robert Gunter, of Abergavenny Priory, and a grandson of James Gunter, the grantee of the Priory after the Suppression. This last was a Protestant, and probably his grandson, Walter, Thomas' eldest brother—who entertained King Charles I at the Priory on 1st July, 1645—was a Protestant, but Thomas was a Catholic. It was well known that he secretly maintained a chapel, but where that chapel was remained a mystery for some two-hundred-and-fifty years. The front of the house faced the public street, as Mr. Arnold deposes, while the mullioned windows still remaining at the back look directly towards the Parish Church, as the Vicar declares. The "mark of the Jesuits" on the outside of the building is no longer to be seen; probably it was removed when the Popish Plot broke out. When the workmen, during the alterations, came to the top storey (which was entirely in the roof), and began to demolish the partitions dividing the small bedrooms, they discovered a secret chamber, measuring about 23 by 10 feet, behind the bedroom at the southern end of the house, in which there were evident traces of mural paintings. Mrs. T. S. Foster, whose husband had purchased the property, caused a careful investigation to be made, when the remains of a beautiful fresco, representing the Adoration of the Magi, were found on the steeply-sloping ceiling of the eastern end. This picture, after being photographed (as were the other markings), was carefully removed, with the underlying plaster, and enclosed in a glazed-oak frame. The size of so much as has been preserved is about 50 by 33 inches: it is now in private custody. Traces of cherubs' heads were discovered on the walls, and above the little attic window looking out into Cross Street were found the sacred monogram, " I.H.S.," and a heart coloured red on a green oval surrounded by golden rays and surmounted by a Cross; these may still be seen. Beneath the above-mentioned fresco ran a two-faced plastered partition, which, it is surmised, formed a sort of background for an altar standing against it, immediately under the fresco, which would have formed an altar-piece. On the removal of the inner plaster face there were found, just beneath the position of the fresco, on the smooth inner side of the other plaster face, some rudely-painted markings, with grotesque figures, and the letters " T. G. his marke "—undoubtedly the initials of Thomas Gunter. Some other letters below these, not easily deciphered, are conjectured to be Roman numerals for the date 1640. It cannot be said with any degree of certainty that this reading is correct; were it so, the use of the chapel beyond " Oliver's time of severity " to that of his predecessor, Charles I, would be established.

This attic originally had a separate staircase at the eastern end, and entrance was through a doorway which had been blocked up since the building of some adjoining cottages, thereby sealing the chamber against further entry. Under the floor, which was in a dangerous condition, were discovered many documents, mostly dated from 1674 to 1697, much damaged by age and damp. Few of these could be deciphered, but they probably related to the affairs of contemporary Catholics who employed Thomas Gunter as their legal adviser, he—as a precautionary measure—concealing the papers under the floor, where they lay, forgotten, until they were discovered more than two centuries later. " On removing the boards of the floor, a mass of documents were found there, mostly relating to Thomas Gunter of Abergavenny. These have clearly established the identity of the spot, and of the people who worshipped there. In the days of Bedloe, the priest-catcher (that is, between 1670 and 1680), there lived in Abergavenny two brothers of the name of Gunter, both leading men of the town ..... Abergavenny, in the seventeenth century, from the number of Catholics who lived there, was known as 'Catholic Bergenny.' In fact, William Wroth, of Llanvaches, the founder of Welsh Nonconformity, was one of the Catholic family of Wroth, of Abergavenny, his father, William Wroth, being on the Recusant Roll of 1595 ..... The last of the Gunters to inhabit the old house in Cross Street was a Walter, who was living there in 1717, and is described as of Cross Street, Abergavenny; his son, James Gunter, migrated to London, and from him is descended Colonel Sir Robert Gunter, of Wetherby, Yorks."* Copies of some of the documents thus discovered appeared in the Abergavenny Chronicle of January 31st, 1908, of which the two following appear of special interest:

* In 1680 a Bill was introduced into Parliament for the deportation of the more prominent Catholics in South Wales and Monmouthshire, and in the list of the proposed deportees occurs that of Sir John Browne, Bart., of Caerleon. The name of John Browne, gent., of Raglan, is found in the Recusant List of 1690. The former was probably John, son of George Browne, esq., of Caversham, Surrey, by his wife, Elizabeth, second daughter to Sir Richard Blount, Knt., of Maple Durham (vide John Burke's Extinct and Dormant Baronetcies, 1841, pp. 87–88).

† See Registers, 1740–1 (p. 116).

‡ This was probably John, son of Sir Henry Bedingfield, of Oxburgh Hall, co. Norfolk, by his wife, Margaret, daughter and heiress to Edward Paston, esq., of Appleton, co. Norfolk. John married Dorothy, daughter and coheir to John Ramsay, esq., and among other children left Henry, who was a non-juror in 1715.

§ The Arail, a mountain farm situate at an elevation of some 1,150 feet, and nearly a mile west of Six Bells, near Abertillery, co. Mon. The Morgans of Llantarnam were lords of the manor of Wentsland and Bryngwyn, which included this farm. This lordship was held, jure uxoris, by Piers Butler from 29th May, 1665, to 13th Oct. 1694.

‖ Piers Butler was the third husband of Mary, daughter to Sir Francis Englefield, of Wootton Basset, co. Wilts., Bart. Her first husband was Sir Edward Morgan, of Llantarnam, co. Mon., first baronet, after whose death she married Richard Hanbury, esq. In the list prepared for the Bill of 1680 occurs the name of " Pierce Butler, esq." Thomas Gunter, junr., was legal adviser to the Morgans of Llantarnam.

The remarkable discovery of this chapel evoked much interest in the neighbourhood. Mention has already been made of references in the local press (on which the preceding account has been largely based), and in addition articles appeared in The Queen of 15th August, 1908, and in Archæologia Cambrensis, 6 Ser., viii (1908), pp. 228, 290. For ourselves we have not so many accounts of chapels of the Penal times that these details should be suffered to pass unrecorded.

It may be noted, as a matter of interest closely connected with the history of Catholicity in Abergavenny, that there stood formerly on the summit of the Scyrrid Fawr, or Holy Mountain, about three miles from that town, a chapel dedicated to St. Michael. There is still preserved in the archives of the Mission a papal Brief of Clement X, dated 20th July, 1676, granting a Plenary Indulgence, upon the usual conditions, to any of the faithful who visited the chapel in question between first vespers and sunset of the feast of the Dedication of St. Michael and there prayed for the concord of Christian princes, the extirpation of heresy and the exaltation of Holy Mother Church. An extended transcript of this document, with translation, very kindly furnished by the Rev. C. A. Newdigate, S.J., is given below; it is interesting to observe that it is dated nearly nine years before the accession of king James II.

It is of this old chapel that John Scudamore, of Kentchurch, says, as quoted in the Abstract, " that he saw very great numbers of people at their Devotion on the top of a high hill in Monmouthshire called St. Michaels Mount, where there is a ruinous Chappel and a Stone with crosses on it, which he took to be an Altar, and he hath seen people with Beads in their Hands kneeling towards the said Stone both within and without the Chappel, and he hath been informed that Mass is often said there, and some papists have affirmed in his presence that they have heard as good Sermons preached as ever they heard in their Lives." This practice was long observed by the local Catholics, for Archdeacon Coxe, in his Historical Tour, 1801, says, " To this place (the ruined chapel on the Scyrrid) many Roman Catholics in the vicinity are said to repair annually on Michaelmas eve, and perform their devotions. The earth of this spot is likewise considered as sacred, and was formerly carried away to cure diseases, and to sprinkle the coffins of those who were interred; but whether this superstitious practice still continues I was not able to ascertain." It is evident that there stood on this hill a very ancient sanctuary and it is extremely probable that it was frequented for devotional purposes by the local Catholics from pre-Reformation days until the beginning of the nineteenth century.*

Some further developments were at one time contemplated here, for the late Father Thaddeus says that " The foundation of this Residence [Mount St. Michael] was decided upon in 1686, for in that year the Chapter considered the proposal of acquiring a plot of ground on which to build a house, for the dwelling of a missionary, and for the accommodation of pilgrims, at the foot of Mount St. Michael, in the diocese of Llandaff, as the record says, by means of alms received, or to be received, by Father Pacificus à St. Francisco. The reply to the proposal was in the affirmative. The scheme, however, seems not to have been very successful, for there is no further mention of this residence."†

* The foundations of the chapel, measuring about 25 by 20 feet, at the northern extremity and summit of the hill, may still be seen.

† The Franciscans in England (1898), p. 169. Father Thaddeus Hermans, O.S.F., author of several other works, was born at Hasselt, Belgium, 13 Dec. 1844, and died 31 August 1916 (see obituary in The Tablet, 9 Sept. 1916).

The autumn of the year in which the Examination concerning the spread of Popery was held, saw the launching of the perfidious Plot of Titus Oates and his confederates against the Catholics. This led to the arrest of the two devoted Missionaries. Fr. Evans was taken in the house of Christopher Turberville at Sker, near Porthcawl, in Glamorgan, and was executed outside Cardiff, together with Fr. John Lloyd, a secular priest, on July 22nd, 1679. Fr. Lewis was arrested on the 17th November, 1678, in a house in the parish of Llanvihangel Llantarnam, tried at Monmouth Assizes, and was executed at Usk, August 27th, 1679.*

Of the fortunes of the Catholics of Abergavenny during the next eight years no record remains. With the accession of James II, in 1685, the hopes of Catholics throughout the land revived, and some remarkable developments soon took place, one of which opens the second era of the Abergavenny Mission. At the Chapter of the Franciscan Recollects, held in 1687 at the residence of the Provincial, Fr. James Cross, in the Royal Friary at Somerset House, London, the erection of nine new Residences was debated, and in the course of the same year was approved. The sixth on the list was Abergavenny, under the title of the Immaculate Conception. The story of the foundation is told by Fr. Antony Parkinson, senr., author of Collectanea Anglo-Minoritica, in a document entitled "An Inventory of the Writings, Church Stuffe, Plate & several other Concerns of and belonging to the Province 1704" (this record is preserved in the Archives of the Second Province, O.S.F., in the possession of the Friars Minor, at the Friary, Forest Gate). "The house of Bergavenny," says the Chronicler, "was given us by Mr. Peter Morgan, made first in trust to Mary Roberts† with whom afterwards Mr. Williams (Fr. Pacificus Williams) having some difficulties and Mrs. Jane Stubbs, sister to the said Peter Morgan, being his heir, application was made to her to secure the said house; upon which she the said Jane Stubbs, passed the house in trust to Mr. Walter Williams of Llanfoyst for us; & he afterwards passed it in trust to Mr. Edwin Burdet (our Syndic) & Mr. Robert Garter, for the same use Mr. Peter Morgan first intended it." . . . . . "This house is a Residence at present inhabited by Mr. Gunter & his wife, who have taken a lease of it for both their lives of Mr. Burdet, & paying a small rent & by articles bound to keep it in repair." A note pasted on to page 23 of the Inventory tells us where the house was situated. "Mr. Burdet is trustee with Mr. Garter for the house in Frogmore St. in Abergavenny & is said to have in his custody the original writings of that house with the first conveyance from Mr. Peter Morgan to Mrs. Mary Roberts."

We have contemporary confirmation of this gift, its situation and extent, in an Inquisition taken at Abergavenny, 1689: "House in Throgmorestreet al[s] ffrogmore street in the Town of Bergavenny and 1[a], given by Peter Morgan to one Tho[s] Williams and his heirs for sup-

* In an Inventory of documents in the possession of the Catholic Chapter of the London District at Spanish Place, printed by the Royal Commission on Historical Manuscripts in 1874, occurs the following item:

"A true narrative of the imprisonment and trial of David Lewis, dated Uske Prison, April 24 1679. 12 pp. folio." (Fifth Report, Appendix, p. 467.)

While in prison he composed his speech for delivery on the scaffold, of which a copy is given in the Memoir of The Families of Baker of Bailey Baker and Baker Gabb, by the late Richard Baker Gabb (privately printed [1903]), pp. 113–120. port of priests."* Another document entitled, "State of the Province 1716," addressed by Fr. A. Parkinson to Fr. Bernardine Smith, O.S.F., † Provincial 1716-19, on page 14, under the heading, "Of our Affairs in Bergavenny in Monmouthshire," carries the story of the foundation somewhat further. "The house, outhouses & garden where the Widow Mrs. Gunter‡ lives in Frogmore St., in Bergavenny, belong to us after the death of the said Mrs. Gunter, who being very old, and the writings not to be found, we were forced to take another course than to trust to the finding them after her decease. January 8th 171⅘ Mr. Prichard§ writ to me thus, 'I have now purchased Mrs. Gunter's house etc. The old lady being like to die I thought it was not safe to delay the securing of it, for I found people very busy about it. Mr. Needham‖ advised me to take a Deed of Sale of it in the name of a Protestant Trustee & recommended his son in law Mr. Thomas Belchior¶ as a person fit & most proper for that Trust.' He drew the writings & sent Mr. Belchior with them & £60 ready money which was paid down before Witnesses & a Bond delivered for £40 more, & the Contract was performed with all the formalities of law. When the witnesses retired the money & the bond were given back again." The repurchase of the house and property was a legal formality only, to secure it to the Franciscans, as was also the lease granted to Mrs. Gunter. This lady was one of the earliest benefactors to the Mission for she left £100, the annual income of which was for the use of the Franciscan priest serving Abergavenny and a declaration to this effect signed by her is preserved at Forest Gate.

It is clear, therefore, that the Franciscan "Residence" at Abergavenny dates from 1687 and it is probable that Mrs. Gunter's house was the official Residence, and that a chapel existed therein. There is no definite information on this point, and the destruction by the Gordon rioters at Bath in 1780 of the Archives of the Western District, has undoubtedly caused the loss of many early records relating to this Mission. An unedited MS., preserved among the notes of Father Thaddeus in the archives at Forest Gate, Essex, points to the commencement, in the first half of the eighteenth century, of a church in Frogmore Street, and the erection in the latter half of the same century of the Church which served the needs of Abergavenny until 1860. published in the Abergavenny Chronicle, 1887–90, tells us that the first Catholic Chapel was in Monk Street (round the corner from Cross Street), and that "after the original Catholic Chapel ceased to be used a small building at the back of the fourth house from the town gate became the chapel, and afterwards, when what is now called St. Michael's Hall was built and made the chapel, the former was used as a school." This gabled building still stands, and is used as a shed, and from its appearance might easily date from the first half of the eighteenth century. The exact date at which it was superseded by the larger chapel is not known, but was probably prior to 1780. Much information respecting the Mission at this period is given in Bishop Burton's Catholicity a Hundred Years ago in Glamorgan and Monmouthshire, a paper read at the Catholic Congress at Cardiff, 1914, and subsequently printed for private circulation. The enlarged chapel was added to by Father Hendren in 1830.

In 1809 Abergavenny ceased to be an official Residence, but prior to this it temporarily sheltered the Novitiate of the Franciscans driven from Douay by the Revolution. The English Province of the Franciscan Recollects was dwindling in numbers and, in 1857, after serving the Mission faithfully for 170 years, they resigned it to the care of the English Benedictines.

II. The Benedictine Mission.

Although no portion of the Registers now being dealt with comes within this period, it is desirable for the sake of completeness to give a short sketch thereof:

son was the John Baker Gabb, K.S.G., first mentioned; his fourth son was Richard Baker Gabb, author of the Memoir on the family, from which some of these particulars have been derived. [There was another John Baker Gabb, distantly related, manager of an Assurance Company in London, who was born in 1811, and died, s.p., in 1876.]

* It was during this incumbency that the Mission makes its first appearance in the Laity's Directory, in the issue for 1822, where the following entry occurs: "Abergavenny, Monmouthshire. Chaplain, Rev. Mr. Richards. Prayers on Sundays and holidays at 10 o'clock."

The return of the Benedictines to Abergavenny in 1857 was a renewal of the ancient association of that Order with the town, one of the greatest glories of which in ancient days was the Benedictine Priory founded by Hamelin de Balun (who came into England with the Conqueror), which was dedicated to the Blessed Virgin Mary. The ancient chapel of the Priory is now the parish church, the former parish church of St. John having been appropriated to the Grammar School by Henry VIII. St. John's was used as the Grammar School until 1899, when it was sold and became a Masonic hall.

The activities of the Benedictines at Abergavenny have been both numerous and notable. The first Incumbent appointed was Dom Charles Wilfrid Price, O.S.B., during whose period of office the foundation stone of the new and beautiful church of Our Ladye and St. Michael, at Pen-y-pound, was laid on May 19th, 1858. The Church was solemnly opened and blessed by the late Dr. Brown, Bishop of Newport and Menevia, on May 15th, 1860. The Bishop was assisted on this occasion by Dr. James Norbert Sweeney, Cathedral Prior of the then newly-erected monastery at Belmont. It is interesting to note that the chasuble used at the Mass was one which bears the rebus and monogram of Richard Wharton, the last Catholic Bishop of Hereford in the reign of Queen Mary. This, with other pre-Reformation vestments, came into the hands of the Franciscan Fathers from an unknown source, and were handed on by them to their successors. The erection of this present church, which is from the design of Mr. Benjamin Bucknall, a pupil of Pugin, and which may still perhaps claim to be the most beautiful Catholic Church in South Wales, was made possible by the generosity of numerous donors, the most prominent of whom were John Baker Gabb, K.S.G., who not only acted as Secretary, but gave the original High Altar and Reredos, in memory of his father, and Mrs. Lydia Andrus, widow of Simon Andrus, a well-known ironmonger of Abergavenny, whose generous benefactions almost justify her being entitled the foundress. Other prominent contributors were, John Berry Walford, esq.; William Jones, of Pyle, Glam., esq., previously of Abergavenny; J. A. Herbert, of Llanarth, esq.; William Jones of Clytha, esq.; Major Herbert, of Usk; Peter Wynne, of Abergavenny, esq.; Michael Hansby, M.D., of Abergavenny, esq.; and William George, of Blaenavon, esq. By the further generosity of Mrs. Andrus the present Presbytery was erected in the same year as that in which the Church was opened.

The Church was completed during the incumbency of Dom John Bernard Caldwell, O.S.B., who was succeeded by Dom Alfred Paulinus Wilson, O.S.B., who added to the Church the Communion Rails (since replaced by the present rails), the small altar now in the Baker Gabb Chantry and the Organ Gallery. He took a great interest in the history and antiquities of the Mission, and by correspondence with Fr. Millward, the last Franciscan Superior, he discovered that many relics of the old Mission had disappeared, including a Directory with an Obituary list of the incumbents made by Fr. Richards, who added notes with respect to his own journeys and Mission work; together with a large pocket-book in Fr. Richards' hand, containing many interesting memoranda. The same fate had befallen a chalice of persecution days, a pyx and stole found in an old coffin and a spear head or pike with a long handle, traditionally supposed to be used for passing food and other necessaries to those attacked by pestilence. One or two objects besides the old vestments referred to above have, fortunately, survived. Among these are a portion of a brass triptych of the crucifixion with the figure of St. John; a figure of our Lord crucified, dug up in the garden of Thomas Gunter's house in Cross Street; and the Papal Brief granting the indulgence to the chapel of St. Michael on the Scyrrid Fawr. The Church also possessed, in Fr. Wilson's time, a contemporary MS. copy of the last speech of the Ven. David Lewis, S.J., which was allowed by his successor to pass into other hands.

Upon the opening of the new Church in 1860 the old Chapel was at first converted into a school and after the opening of the new schools in 1873 became the headquarters of the local Freemasons. At a later date it was used as a furniture store, but is now used as a printing establishment.

During the incumbency of Dom Robert Ephrem Guy, O.S.B., the later elaborate and beautiful reredos erected to the memory of his father by John Baker Gabb, esq., Chamberlain to Pope Leo XIII, was unveiled on Rosary Sunday, 7th October, 1883, by the late Bishop Hedley. The donor of this reredos died in Rome in 1893, and was buried in the cemetery of " San Lorenzo fuori le mura," but a small chantry chapel was erected to his memory in the Abergavenny church and was opened in June, 1894.

Among the outstanding events in the history of the Mission is the long incumbency, extending over a quarter of a century, of the late Dom Charles Austin Wray, O.S.B., who took such an active part in the public life of Abergavenny, and, as a man of high principle, integrity, and strength of character, was universally esteemed and respected. During his term of Rectorship St. Michael's Convent in Pen-y-pound Road was founded by the Hon. Mrs. Herbert, of Llanover. Upon his decease Dom Archibald Placid Smith, O.S.B., took temporary charge of the Mission until the permanent appointment of Dom Edward Hilary Willson, O.S.B., on September 6th, 1919. During his term of Rectorship it fell to Father Willson's lot to carry out much important work which had for its object the improvement and beautifying of the Church. A fund had been started by his predecessor for the erection of a memorial to Fr. Wray. The scope of this was enlarged with a view to setting up a joint memorial to Fr. Wray and to those of the congregation who fell in the war. It eventually took the form of new Communion Rails of Bath stone and Devonshire marble, with handsome gates of brass, which were unveiled and blessed on November 7th, 1921. In addition to this a large and handsome figure of our Saviour crucified was remounted on oak with a penthouse roof, and erected outside the Church as an outdoor War Memorial. In the same year a parish hall was built in St. Michael's Field, which has proved of great service to the congregation. In 1923, in conjunction with Mr. J. H. Canning, Fr. Willson took steps for the transcription of the Abergavenny Registers, and the compilation of this short historical sketch. By the courtesy of Bishop Burton and of the Friars Minor of Forest Gate, he has been able to secure much material for the earlier portion of this record, and he wishes to express his indebtedness to them, as also to the late Fr. Wray whose researches provided much of the history of the later years.

The list of incumbents of the Benedictine Mission of Abergavenny is as follows:

Dom Charles Wilfrid Price, O.S.B.,	1857–1859
Dom John Bernard Caldwell, O.S.B.,	1859–1862

With the exception of the small portion of the so-called Worcester registers* dealing with the neighbourhood of Monmouth, the Abergavenny Registers are the oldest Catholic document of this nature in the county of Monmouth. As a result, however, of the zeal of certain of the clergy stationed at Abergavenny in the eighteenth and early nineteenth centuries, the registers contain entries relating not only to Monmouthshire, but also to the counties of Hereford, Brecon, Glamorgan, and even Carmarthen. Their interest is thereby greatly enhanced as evidencing the survival of the Faith in the secluded valleys of these districts at a period when Catholicism was approaching its lowest ebb prior to the revival following the various Relief Acts.

These registers will also remove a fallacy which has long been held, namely, that the immigration of Irish Catholics to South Wales took place, for the most part, in and subsequent to, the famine years of the late forties of last century. Prior to the year 1820 the registers contain few names other than those of the old Welsh Catholics of the area, but, in that year, the names of Irish newcomers begin to appear and, before 1839, they outnumber the native Catholics. The Irish names contained in this record are those of the pioneers whose advent led to the foundation of the Missions in the large industrial centres of South Wales. The nature of their occupation led to frequent changes of abode, and this fact has, unfortunately, made it impossible to furnish notes in respect of them, but it is possible that the publication of these old registers may enable some of them to be traced and identified.

The following brief notes upon the priests whose names occur in the Registers may be of service to students of this period:

Rev. David (Gregory) Powell, O.S.F., was appointed Præses of Abergavenny, according to Oliver, as early as 1738, and he held that office from 1740 to 1755 and again from 1764 to 1767. He was an excellent classical scholar and a master of the Welsh tongue. He published, under the name of "Dewi Nantbrân," a Catechism in Welsh, the title of which is: "Cathechism Byrr o'r Athrawiaeth Ghristnogol; Er Addysc ysprydol, i Blant; a'r Werinos Anwybodus, trwy Gymru oll. O Gasgliad Dewi Nantbran Off. O.S.F. Llundain: Argraphwyd yn y Flwyddyn 1764."

[A short Catechism of Christian Doctrine for spiritual instruction for children and unlearned people through the whole of Wales, compiled by David Nantbran, Priest, O.S.F., London: printed in the year 1764.]

There is no copy of the above work in the British Museum, but there are copies in the possession of the Welsh National Library and of Mgr. Hook. He also published another work anonymously, entitled:

"Sail yr Athrawiaeth Gatholig, gynnwysedig mewn Profess Ffydd a gyhoeddwyd gan Bab Piws y Bedwerydd; ar wedd holiad ac atteb. A gyfieithwyd er lles i'r Cymry. Llundain: argraphwyd gan R. Balfe yn y Flwyddyn 1764."

* Vide C.R.S. iii, 109. These Registers are entered in a small book which Fr. Stafford carried with him from place to place during his missionary career, and they accordingly contain entries relating to several localities. At the time of the commencement of the Registers Fr. Stafford was stationed at Monmouth and, consequently, the earliest entries, covering the period from 9th May, 1685, to 29th Nov., 1689, relate to Monmouth and its neighbourhood.

[Foundation of Catholic Doctrine contained in the Profession of Faith published by Pope Pius the Fourth; in the form of question and answer. Translated for the benefit of the Welsh. London: printed by R. Balfe in the year 1764.]

This work is not in the Welsh National Library, but a copy is in the possession of Mgr. Hook.* There is preserved at Belmont Abbey, nr. Hereford, a MS. book, part of which was written by Fr. Powell. It contains copies of several unpublished poems by various authors, including, probably, Fr. Powell himself.

Fr. Powell died at Abergavenny 12th October, 1781. This priest was, undoubtedly, responsible for the early portions of these Registers, and from internal evidence it seems fairly certain that he was a Breconshire man. He made frequent visits to that county, and the entries not only contain the names of many Powells, presumably kinsmen, but an intimate knowledge of obscure place-names is clearly evidenced. From the assumed name under which he published the book above referred to, it may be conjectured that Fr. Powell was a native of the parish of Llanfihangel Nantbran, co. Brecon, and perhaps one of the Powells of Castel Madog.

Rev. Peter Jones, O.S.F., is the next priest whose name occurs. He was Præses of Abergavenny 1805–6, and died in 1830.

Rev. Walter (Gregory) Watkins, O.S.F., was Præses of Abergavenny 1776–9, 1782–5, 1788–91, 1803–5, and again in 1808–9. He died at Abergavenny 8th April, 1810, and is said to have been a member of the family of Watkins long settled at the Hendy, Llanarth. If so, one of his collateral ancestors was Rev. Laurence Watkins alias Phillips, who was stationed in Monmouthshire at the time of the Oates plot, and was assiduously sought for by John Arnold and his satellites.

Rev. William (Augustine) Roberts, O.S.F., appears to have been stationed at Abergavenny from 1809, when it ceased to be a residence, until 1820. According to Oliver he was elected Provincial in 1818 and died at St. Omer 10th May, 1827, æt. 64.

Rev. Edward (Ignatius) Richards, O.S.F., was certainly one of the most distinguished priests to serve the Abergavenny Mission. He sprang from some of the oldest Glamorgan families, and was conspicuous for learning and zeal. The first entry of a baptism by him is that of Mary Roderick on 10th September, 1820, and it is undoubtedly due to his care and industry that the old registers prior to this date were copied into the existing book and thus preserved. The water-mark of the paper in the book bears the date 1818, and, as the whole of the earlier entries covering pages [1]–[32] are in Fr. Richards' fine and unmistakable handwriting, the conclusion is obvious. The remainder of the copied entries, which conclude on page [55], appear to be made by him in part only. In 1824 Fr. Richards was elected Provincial and, four years later, on the 19th December, 1828, he died in Rome at the early age of 41.

Rt. Rev. Joseph William (Francis) Hendren, O.S.F., D.D., succeeded Fr. Richards at Abergavenny and, with his departure early in 1839, the portion of the registers here published terminates. Fr. Hendren was born in Birmingham 19th October, 1791, and, after his ordination, 28th September, 1815, went to Perthîr* to teach philosophy and theology until the community removed to Aston in 1818. He came to Abergavenny in 1826 and remained there until 1839. In 1847 Bishop Ullathorne selected him as V.G. of the Western District, and on 10th September, 1848, he was consecrated Bishop of Uranopolis and became V.A. of that district. At the restoration of the Hierarchy he was made Bishop of the new See of Clifton, 29th September, 1850, and was translated to Nottingham 22nd June, 1851, which See he resigned in 1853. He died at the Franciscan Convent, Taunton, 14th November, 1866.

* The editor wishes to express his indebtedness to the Rt. Rev. Mgr. Paul Hook, Ph.D., of Aberystwyth, for the full titles of these exceedingly rare books and the translations thereof.

In conclusion the writer has to express his thanks to the Rev. E. Hilary Willson, O.S.B., for granting the necessary facilities for copying the Registers; to the Very Rev. Canon J. J. Exton, B.D., of Llanarth; to the Rev. J. M. Cronin, I.C., of Cardiff; to Col. Sir Joseph Bradney, Kt., C.B., D.Litt., who generously placed at the writer's disposal his unique and voluminous Collectanea relating to Monmouthshire, and kindly revised the notes for the period prior to 1812; to Alfred Williams, esq., J.P., of Caerleon, who supplied much valuable information respecting the by-gone generation of local Catholics; and last, but not least, to Mr. W. E. Crowley, who undertook the arduous task of typing the MSS. and preparing them for the press.

* The full name of this old house, which is situated in the Monnow Valley, some fourteen miles from Abergavenny, is Plas-yn-y-berth-hir, which is, in English, "the mansion within the long hedge (or fence)." The Catholic Registers of Perthîr have been published by the Catholic Record Society, and there will be found in the Introduction to them very full information as to this old Catholic centre (Vide C.R.S. i., 271 et seq.).

Note to p. 105.

With reference to the statement as to the chapel being in Monk Street, there is here probably an instance of tradition handed down through several generations of Abergavenny Catholics. The staircase at the back of Gunter's house was, obviously, for the purpose of enabling persons to enter the house without being seen from Cross Street. In order to do this they would have to proceed along Monk Street, and turn down a narrow passage, called Beili Priordy, which still exists, running along behind the houses. Moreover, there would be the advantage that a Catholic turning down Monk Street would appear to be going to the Parish Church, which is situated in that street, further along. Consequently, it might well happen that the Catholics would connect the chapel with Monk Street rather than with Cross Street.

2—Alice Williams of Wern y Cwm† May 25—G. Richard Williams, Mrs. Vaughan‡ Sen^{r} of Llanfihangel—

* The Kembles of Abergavenny were, without doubt, a branch of the Herefordshire family of that name and, therefore, kinsmen of the Ven. John Kemble. In the list of "Papists convict" prepared under the Act of 1715 (P.R.O., Forf. Est.,—P—70), occurs the entry "Johes Kymble et uxor," of Frogmore Street, Abergavenny, and the name of John Kemble, ironmonger, of the same town is found among the Monmouthshire Recusants of 1719 (C.R.S. vii, 247). The George Kemble whose name occurs in the register was probably the son of George Kemble, of Abergavenny, ironmonger, as evidenced by the following abstract of the will of the latter, dated 16 April, 1760, proved 23 April, 1760:

> My son George Kemble, my dau. Mary Kemble, my son William Kemble, my son Martin Kemble, my daus. Elizabeth, Katherine, Radigan and Rachel Kemble, my son Richard Kemble, my wife Mary Kemble (Llandaff Wills, xvi, 194).

This George Kemble was also of Frogmore Street, and was buried at Abergavenny 21 April, 1760. William Kemble, sponsor to George Kemble, junr., was the son of John Kemble, the Recusant of 1719, by his wife Mary, daughter of Thomas Watkins, of Abergavenny, gent. There was another son, Thomas, and it is probable, though nothing certain is known, that George Kemble, senr., was also a son of the original John Kemble, of Abergavenny.

The following are abstracts of two later wills of this family :—

> Mary Kemble, of Abergavenny, widow, will dated 14 Jan., 1777, proved 15 April, 1777. My son Thomas Kemble—my sister Elizabeth Mayberry, widow (Vide infra 8 Sep., 1753)—my son John Kemble. (Llandaff Wills, xx, 197).

Mary Kemble, will dated 15 July, 1776, proved 14 Oct., 1778.

> To be buried in the lower part of the churchyard near the Priory garden—my brother-in-law John Kemble, my executor, remainder of lease of house in Cross St. I lately lived in—to my late cozen Evans' dau. Anne Evans, rings—my brother-in-law Thomas, brother of John Kemble. (Llandaff Wills, xx, 298).

† Wern-y-cwm, in the parish of Llanvetherine, co. Mon., is noteworthy as the birth-place, c. 1590, of Capt. Thomas James, a pioneer navigator. Early in the eighteenth century it was held by Francis Williams, who died 23 June, 1743, æt. 60. (Memorial inscription, Llanvetherine church. The date is given as 25 June in this Register.) His wife, Mary, died 28 July, 1753, æt. 56, vide infra. Their son, Francis, died 26 March, 1761, æt. 38; and his widow, Elizabeth, afterwards married James Watkins, whose family held Wern-y-cwm for several generations. Alice was probably a daughter of Francis Williams, senr.

‡ Among the Recusants in the parish of Llanvihangel Crucorney, co. Mon., in 1719, were: Mary, wife of William Vaughan; Mary, wife of Thos. Vaughan; and John Vaughan (C.R.S. vii, 251).

3—Anne Morgan of the Goitrey* —G. M^r Williams of the Adyr† Jun^r—Mrs. Elizabeth Williams‡ Llanfoist. (She died).—

* Goytre, near Nant-y-deri, co. Mon.

† The " Adyr " is the Rhadyr, a farmhouse in the parish of Llanbadock, near Usk. Mr. Williams was Reginald Williams, who died in 1767. The original name of this ancient family was Bennet, but various descendants adopted the surnames of Reynolds, Watkins, and Williams. The uncle and namesake of Reginald Williams was the Rev. Fr. Reginald Williams, alias Nanfant, son of Henry Williams, of Usk, gent., and his wife, Frances. He entered the English College, Rome, 6 Oct., 1677, æt. 19, was ordained priest 25 Jan., 1682, and left for England 10 April, 1684. The following is an abstract of his will, dated 21 Oct., 1735, proved 27 April, 1737:

> Two leases I hold from Henry, late Marquis of Worcester, one being dated the last day of Feb. 1669 and the other 17 Sept. 1670, one in the hamlet of Monkswood and the other in the parish of Cilgwrwg, to my niece Frances Williams of Uske, sp̄r.— my nephew Reginald Williams of the Radir in the par. of Llanbadock, gent. (Llandaff Wills, xii, 127).

He died 17 April, 1737, in Wales. His great-great-nephew, another Reginald, son of Reginald Williams, of Weighton, co. Ebor., apothecary, and his wife, Sarah Rand, born 24 Jan., 1772, entered Lisbon College 4 Dec., 1784 (vide History of Monmouthshire, by Bradney, iii, 76).

‡ This consistently Catholic family was related to the Ven. John Lloyd and his brother, Father William Lloyd, of Brecon. Their names appear in the Recusant lists of 1625, 1630, 1650, 1680, 1690, 1717, and 1719. They are described in 1719 as residing at Beili-du, in the parish of Llanfoist, co. Mon., but the family seat was Middle Llanfoist (Llanffwyst Ganol).

There appears to be no complete pedigree extant, but the first to appear in the Recusant lists was Walter, the son of Nicholas Williams, of Llanfoist, and his wife, Sage, daughter of Richard ap Jenkin ap Evan Lloyd. Walter married Catherine, daughter and coheir of Watkin Philip William (a branch of the Herberts), and their son, Aurelius, was described as " doctor of phisick at Llanfoist." There was another son, William, and a daughter, Mary, executors to their father's will. Aurelius married and had a son, John, and daughters, Bridget, Anne, and Catherine (who married Thomas Powell). There was probably other issue. A gap ensues in the pedigree until, in 1715, the names of Walter and Nicholas Williams occur in the list of non-jurors. Nicholas, who possessed a freehold estate and lands at Tregaer, in right of his wife, the widow of Isaac Williams, is described as Walter's son. Isaac Williams was of the Catholic family of that name, of the Artha, in the parish of Tregaer, co. Mon. His wife was Mary, daughter to David Lewis, of Llanddewi Rhydderch, co. Mon. The location of this Elizabeth Williams in their pedigree is a matter of conjecture, but she was probably daughter to Nicholas Williams. She married Edward Proger, of Wernddu, esq., 27 Nov., 1750 (vide infra).

§ Llangattock Vibon Avel, four miles from Monmouth.

‖ Probably of Rhiw-las, in the parish of Raglan, co. Mon. This property was left by John Scudamore, by his will dated 31 Oct., 1692, proved 7 March, 1699–1700, to his grandson, John Scudamore. In the Recusant list of 1690 appear the names of John Scudamore, senr., and wife, John Scudamore, junr., and Hugh Scudamore, all of Raglan. The name of John Scudamore occurs also among the non-jurors of 1715. His property, consisting of a messuage and 34 acres of land, was charged with £100, payable to Elizabeth Ward, his daughter, at his death. Much information respecting the Monmouthshire Scudamores may be found in Estcourt and Payne's English Catholic Non-

* A William Bevan, of Clytha, and his wife, Martha, figure in the Recusant lists of 1717 and 1719. They were possibly the parents of this William Bevan.

† The ancient family of Havard, of Senni, near Devynock, co. Brec., were staunch Catholics. In the Recusant list of 1680 is the name of Rice Havard, of the parish of Devynock. Rees Havard, of Tyr Mihangell, in the parish of Devynock, and his wife, Gwenllian, are among the non-jurors of 1715, with several more of the same family.

There are many Havard entries in this Register, but, for the convenience of those interested in this ancient Catholic family, the following notes are appended from the Catholic Register of Brecon. This Register, which commences in 1799, has not yet been printed.

His name occurs in the Recusant lists of 1680 and 1690, in the latter of which he is said to be of Abergavenny. In the lists of 1717 and 1719 is the name of Elizabeth Darcy, of Abergavenny, widow.

* Shoemaker. The Aubreys were a well-known Breconshire family. Elizabeth Aubrey, of Abergavenny, appears among the Recusants of 1719.

† The Crofts were an old Catholic family probably descended from the Crofts, of Croft Castle, co. Hereford. The Monmouthshire branch was originally settled at Llanthony, but came into possession of the old grange and chapel at Llanfair Gilgoed by the marriage of Thomas Croft to Mary, only daughter and heiress to William Morgan, of Llanfair Gilgoed. The John Croffts, or Croft, here mentioned, was brother to this Thomas, and resided at Treowen. He died in 1768. The last of the family was Charles Herbert Croft, of Newport, Mon., solicitor, ob. s. p. 21 March, 1867, æt. 73.

The old chapel of Llanfair, now a roofless ruin, may still be seen. It was used by the Catholics of the neighbourhood well into the eighteenth century, and the holy-water stoup still remains on the right hand of the door as one enters. The adjoining land, now an orchard, was a favourite burial-place of the old Monmouthshire Catholics (vide Bradney's Monmouthshire, i, 122–4). A small church for Protestant services was erected in 1850 at a distance of about one hundred yards from it, with a churchyard separated by a low wall from the portion of the dingle in which the old chapel stands. It is highly improbable that the old chapel, or the graveyard in which it stands, was ever used for Protestant purposes. The two following entries, from the Parish Registers of Llantilio Crossenny, both referring to undoubted Catholic burials, clearly indicate that it was used as a burial-place for Catholics for well over a century. The first entry is as follows:

"Phillipus Morgan, gener', de lanvayre gilgoed, sepultus fuit in capella de lanvayre 16 Septemb' 1613."

This refers to the grandson of Sir Richard Morgan, chief justice of the Common Pleas and founder of the Catholic family of Morgan of Llanfair Gilgoed. The second entry runs thus:

"1728, 15 April, bur. at Llanvair chapel, James son of John & Anne Prichard of the Graig."

This James, who died at the early age of 2 years, was, in all probability, a nephew of Bishop Matthew Prichard.

On a recent visit I was informed by the tenant of the adjoining grange that annually, between Easter and Whitsuntide, daffodils and other spring flowers blossom in profusion over the site of the old burial-ground and he was of opinion that these flowers were the descendants of those planted on the graves in former days. It may be added that this chapel was originally a cell of the Abbey of Dore, co. Hereford.

‡ The Right Rev. Matthew Prichard, O.S.F., Bishop of Myra and Vicar Apostolic of the Western District. His biography may be seen in Oliver's Collections, p. 389. He was a member of the old Catholic family of Prichard, of the Graig, in the parish of Llantilio Crossenny, co. Mon., but his actual position in their pedigree has not hitherto been made clear. He was Præses of the Abergavenny Franciscan Mission, 1713–15, and during his tenure of that office Mrs. Catherine Gunter, widow of Thomas Gunter, of Abergavenny, made a declaration devising a legacy of £100 to the Franciscan priest at that place. The original document dated 4 May, 1714, is witnessed by Father Anthony Parkinson, Provincial, and James Prichard, and is preserved in the Franciscan Archives at Forest Gate. The James Prichard who witnessed the document is almost certainly the then Præses of the Abergavenny Mission, generally known as Matthew Prichard. It may be assumed, therefore, that Matthew was his name in religion and that he used his baptismal name, James, in the legal document. This is confirmed by the entry in the parish register of Rockfield, in which church his body lies, which records the burial of "Mr James Pritchard" on 23 May, 1750. It is, therefore, practically certain that he was James, the son of William Prichard, of Plas Ivor and the Graig, esq., by his wife, Mary, daughter to Richard Croft, of Llanthony. In a further letter, dated 8 Jan., 1715, Matthew Prichard refers to his mother as still alive, and, as a matter of fact, she lived until 1740 and was buried at Llantilio Crossenny on 6 Sept., of that year. The James Prichard with whom the Bishop is here identified is mentioned in the will of Elizabeth Prichard, daughter of James Prichard, of Llantilio Crossenny, gent., dated 19 Nov., 1692, proved 19 Feb., 169¾, by the father, James Prichard. The following is an abstract of this will:—

> My brother James Prichard 40l—my brother Joseph Prichard's son James 10l—my god-children James Prichard, son of Joseph Prichard; John Weare, son of John Weare, of Llandiloe's park; James, son of Herbert Croft, gent.; James, son of Wm Prichard, of Place Ivor, gent.; Elizabeth, dau. of Wm Gwillim, of the Gutter; Elizabeth, dau. of Wm Henry, cooper. (P.C.C. Box, 40.)

It is interesting to note that probably the closest surviving relative of Bishop Prichard is Col. Sir Joseph Bradney, Kt., C.B., D.L., D.Litt., the well-known historian of Monmouthshire, whose grandmother, Elizabeth, daughter of Sir John Hopkins, Kt., Lord Mayor of London 1791–2, was the grand-daughter of Mary, daughter of William Prichard of the Graig, esq., who married John Hopkins, of Llanfihangel Ystern Llewern, gent. She died in 1726 and was, almost certainly, the Bishop's sister. According to a family tradition, Mary Prichard, who married William Williams, grandfather of Alfred Williams, esq., J.P., of the Mount, Caerleon, was also a relative of Bishop Prichard.

(one of the trustees), among which is enumerated " A farm called the Nyadd leased out in 1732 by Thomas Lewis, of Monmouth, to Walter Morgan, of Trewscoed, for 99 yrs., now rented by James Powel at £9 per annum, taxes allowed." From a document dated 24 May, 1707, preserved at Lisbon College, it appears that the above rent went to maintain " a youth at Lisbon for Seven Years." Thomas Lewis was a mercer, of Monmouth, who acted as an agent for the Catholic clergy at this period.

† This baptism appears to have been performed by Fr. Walter (Gregory) Watkins, although, according to the official record, he was not stationed at Abergavenny in 1792. He was, however, a native of the district and probably visited his relatives from time to time. Bishop Burton, in his paper, Catholicity a Hundred Years ago in Glamorgan and Monmouthshire, 1914, quotes contemporary letters bearing testimony to the love and esteem in which Fr. Watkins was held and the extreme poverty of the Mission at that period, which was such "that he is every now and then, and very frequently, so put to his shifts that he does not know what to do to procure himself the bare necessaries of life." Another letter, written in 1797, shows that, at that time, Welsh was generally spoken at Abergavenny, "where the Welsh language is indispensably necessary to the Missioner." Fr. Watkins, who lived "Next door to the Lamb," supported his aged father and mother, the former of whom died in June, 1789.

* Clement Powell Lorymer was the son of John Powell Lorymer and his wife, Mary, daughter of Thomas Langdale, of London. He was baptised at Perthîr by Father A. Weetman, O.S.F., 22 Feb., 1790. The mansion of Perthîr was originally the seat of the Powells, one of the branches of the Herbert family, who died out in the male line during the eighteenth century when the estate passed to Michael Lorymer, son of Thomas Lorymer, gent., of Newboulds, in Rockfield, gent., by Catherine, daughter and coheir of John Powell, of Perthîr, gent. On the death of John Powell Lorymer, in 1811, Perthîr passed to William, elder brother of Clement, who became a bankrupt, when the estate was sold to Philip Jones, of Abergavenny. There were three children of the marriage here registered, William, Clement Marmaduke, and Mary. Clement Powell Lorymer went to Australia, and a letter in the Clifton Diocesan Archives, dated 13 Oct., 1827, from his brother, William, states that he was drowned while attempting to cross a river in Van Diemen's Land on 8 April of that year. His son, Clement Marmaduke, who died before 1895, left eight children, of whom Clement Powell Lorymer was the third. For this and other notes from the Clifton Archives the editor is indebted to the Rev. J. M. Cronin, Secretary to the Archbishop of Cardiff.

† A family of this name, many of whom were of the medical profession, was settled at or near Cowbridge during the greater portion of the eighteenth century. Edward Bates was grandson of Edward Bates, esq., M.D., of Sea Lawn, and formerly of Cowbridge, and of Grace, daughter to Gabriel Lewis, esq., of Llanishen. A sister of these, whose name is not recorded, was the mother of the Rev. family, which has been Catholic for several generations, can be traced back to Philip Williams, of St. Maughan's, who died 29 Sept., 1785, and is buried at Llanvair Discoed, where there is a memorial inscription. He and his son, William, born c. 1758, were Protestants, but the latter married Mary Prichard who, according to family tradition, was of the same family as the Rt. Rev. Matthew Prichard, O.S.F. She brought the Catholic faith to the family, which has retained it uninterruptedly from 1778 to the present time. A pedigree will be found in Bradney's Monmouthshire, iii, 202. Charles Williams was Michael's brother, vide infra, 23 Dec., 1834. Mr. Alfred Williams, as a boy, remembered Mary Cadwallader as an old woman, nearly blind. The name will, of course, recall the Ven. Roger Cadwallador, and in the Recusant list of 1630 is found the name of John Kidwallider (sic) of Stretton Sugwas, co. Hereford.

* The Rev. John (Bernardine) Davison, O.S.F., born at Catterick, co. Ebor., 27 Feb., 1791. He served Lee House mission, near Stonyhurst; was appointed director to the Poor Clares at Plymouth and returned to Lee House in Aug., 1820. When the Franciscans handed over this mission to the Bishop of the Northern District he retired to Osmotherley but, hearing that the Rev. Edward Metcalf, O.S.B., then at Newport, Mon., required help, he offered his services and commenced his duties there 14 Oct., 1841. He contracted typhus fever while visiting the sick, and died 1 Feb., 1842. He was buried in St. Mary's, Newport, on 4 Feb. following. A wooden floor, laid over the original stone floor of this church, concealed his gravestone for many years, but the removal of a portion of the upper floor when a new altar-rail was installed a few years ago revealed this memorial, which is opposite the centre of the high altar.

Suppressed Feasts.

Charles by the grace of God and the favour of the Apostolic See Bishop of Rama, Vicar Apostolic of the Western District; to all Missionary Priests both secular and regular, Health and Benediction—

Our Most Holy Lord Pope Pius VI in consideration of the special circumstances of Catholics living in the Kingdom of England has in his kindness dispensed them from the precept of hearing Mass and abstaining from servile works on Days of Obligation throughout the year with the exception of Sundays and the Mondays of Easter Week and Whit Week and of certain other more solemn Feasts, viz.:—the Nativity of Our Lord, the Circumcision, the Epiphany, the Ascension, Corpus Christi, the Annunciation and Assumption of the Blessed Virgin Mary, the Holy Apostles Peter and Paul, the Commemoration of All Saints and in fine where it is kept of the Patron also;† The Vigil preceding the aforesaid dispensed Feasts His Holiness has commanded to be transferred to the Wednesday and Friday of each week in Advent, on which days the same fast is to be kept as ought to be kept in Lent and on the Ember Days of the year; though in England it is customary to keep these fasts and vigils on the Fridays.

As regards however the Ecclesiastical Offices, His Holiness has declared that these should be retained as hitherto, both in the celebration of the Mass and in the recitation of the canonical hours. Moreover as it sometimes happens, that on the day on which the Feast of the Holy Apostles Peter and Paul is kept the hay harvest is going on in the same Kingdom, and the gathering in of the corn on the Feast of the Assumption of the Blessed Virgin, therefore His Holiness, having consideration also for this, grants to the Vicars Apostolic in their respective districts full power of dispensing in such cases from the precept of abstaining from servile works on the two aforesaid Holydays, the obligation remaining of first hearing Mass where this can reasonably be fulfilled.‡

Given at Rome on the ninth day of March 1777.

* Quam dispensationem pru[denter conce in pencil]dendam vobis delegamus.

† St. George or the Patron locally honoured

‡ Which dispensation we allow you with prudence to grant.

On receipt of this Letter from us we command you to make known to the Faithful in the vulgar tongue on the Sunday next following that part which has reference to reducing the number of Holydays of Obligation.

Moreover we transfer the plenary Indulgence hitherto attached to the Feast of the Purification to the first Sunday of Lent and extend it to the second Sunday inclusive.

Given at Bath the 12th day of May, 1777.

Charles Bishop of Rama, V.A.

[End of translation. The letter continues in English.]

The present grant comes in consequence of application made to the P—e by the other three B——ps and myself on account of the many inconveniences attending the number of Holydays observed here. This you'll please to specify to the people, before you read to them the above Decree. See that the remaining Holydays be kept with due exactness.—

(De Missa Trimestri)

On account of the general decline of Religion in these times, each year on the first Saturday of every third month, viz. January, April, July, and October, let the Litany of our Blessed Lady be said before Mass with the intention to beg her Protection to the English Catholic Church; after which, let the Mass be said de Sancta Maria in Sabbato as a solemn Double, or the Mass of the day if it be of the Blessed Virgin, and offered up with the Intention to obtain our Blessed Saviour's and his Holy Mother's special protection to the same Church. During Mass, or in the evening, let there be the Exposition of the Blessed Sacrament, and then Benediction, where this can be done, for the same Intention.—

If the said Saturday falls upon a Feast of first or second class, or in Holy Week or Easter Week, [4 R] let the Prayers here appointed be deferred to the Saturday following.—

[3 R] (The Quarterly Mass.)

We earnestly beg the Reverend and most beloved Missionaries Apostolic, labouring with us in this Vineyard of the Lord of Hosts, not to allow the pious practice of our predecessors, already confirmed by legislation on our own part, to fall into disuse, which was enacted in the following terms, viz—On each first Saturday of the months of January, April, July, and October, let there be celebrated the Votive Mass of the Blessed Virgin according to the rite of a greater double, with exposition of the Most Blessed Sacrament and Benediction at its conclusion, (where this can fittingly be carried out), to implore the blessing of Almighty God, by the help of the Patronage of her who in her single person overthrows all heresies throughout the world, for the unimpeded spread and the greater increase of our Holy Religion in the Kingdom of England. Before or after Mass let there be recited or sung the Litany of the same Blessed Virgin Mary. But if on the aforesaid days there fall a Feast of higher Rite, let all the above named be transferred to the next following Saturday not so impeded. And lest the remembrance of this Law should perish let this reminder be copied into the Registers.

Rev^{d} & dear Sir

I have received an order from his Lordship Bp Brown,* to make known to all his Missionaries that the Holy See has just declared each Missionary in England (at least where there is one only at any Mission) to be obliged to celebrate for his people on the following suppressed holidays, the supression having been made for the benefit of the Laity not for the indulgence of the Clergy. Similar declarations were made some time since for several Continental Churches, wherein certain Holidays of Obligation had been suppressed.

Rev^{d} & Dear

By a circular rec^{d} from the Pres^{t} of the society of the Propagation of the Faith, I am informed that it is a long standing regulation that at every Mission of the Districts benefited by donations from the above Society one Mass shall be offered yearly on on [sic] Nov^{r} 3 for the repose of the souls of the Members & Benefactors of that charitable association. I am requested to provide for the faithful discharge of this grateful duty in the Welsh Vicariate which has shared in the donations of the Society. Be so good, therefore, as to offer up the Adorable Sacrifice for the above purpose on Nov^{r} 3 annually, and put up in your Vestry a notice of the future obligation. ‡

He went to Ampleforth College in 1828, but in 1830 entered Prior Park, Bath, being the first student at this college. He was ordained priest in 1845, and was stationed at Coedangred, near Skenfrith, co. Mon., succeeding his uncle, Dr. Thomas Burgess, in the Monmouth mission in 1851. He retired in 1894, and died at Lancaster 18 Feb., 1904 (vide C.R.S. xxiii, 356).

† The Rt. Rev. Thomas Burgess, D.D., born 1 Oct., 1791, professed at Ampleforth 13 Oct., 1807, and elected prior thereof in July, 1818. In 1830, with Dr. Rooker and Fr. Edward Metcalf, he obtained his secularisation, and was largely instrumental in establishing Prior Park College, Bath. He was thence transferred successively to Cannington, Bath, and Monmouth, and served the latter mission from July, 1836, until his consecration as first bishop of the new see of Clifton, 27 July, 1851. His strenuous efforts to rescue Prior Park from its financial difficulties undermined his strength, and he died at Westbury-on-Trym, 27 Nov., 1854.

* Perthycrwn, a small homestead near Cwmyoy, on the side of Hatteral Hill, at an elevation of 750 feet.

† The Black Mountains, on the borders of Breconshire, Monmouthshire, and Herefordshire, consist of four principal ridges with deep valleys intervening. The most striking summit, Pen-y-gader-fawr, rises to a height of 2,624 feet, but Waun-fach, its close neighbour, reaches 2,660 feet.

This area, being for the most part in Breconshire, was formerly served by the secular clergy, and notably, towards the latter portion of the 17th century, by the then head of that body in South Wales, the Rev. William Lloyd, who was arrested through the instrumentality of John Arnold, of Llanvihangel Crucorney, and, according to tradition, was found dead in his prison at Brecon on the evening of 27 Aug., 1679, six days before the date appointed for his execution. Of the seven witnesses whose names are endorsed on his indictment, no fewer than three came from the Black Mountain District. Fr. Lloyd wrote his will in prison, and authentic copies of this document are extant under which a Triple trust was created for the purpose of safeguarding the property of the secular clergy and administering it for the support of missionary priests in South Wales. Breconshire was served subsequently by Fr. Thomas Lloyd, who was imprisoned at Brecon in 1695 as being suspected of being a priest. He refused to incriminate himself by confessing the fact, and was committed to prison until he was prepared to give an answer on this point. There seems to be no further record of him. A memorandum preserved at Lisbon College, dated 24 May, 1707, shows that, at that time, Breconshire was served by Fr. James Prichard, probably the younger brother of Fr. Charles Prichard, S.J., who died as a result of the hardships he endured in evading his pursuers during the Oates Plot. In 1782, however, as appears from a memorandum of Bishop Walmesley, now in the Clifton diocesan archives, the Franciscan incumbent of Abergavenny " receives from the Sec. Clergy four pds per an: for serving a place in the black mountains, and as I was told by another person three guineas per an: from a family in Radnorshire for going to them now and then " (vide The Titus Oates Plot in South Wales and the Marches, by J. ‡ This is probably a reappearance, after a long interval, of William Gravenor, whose name, with that of his wife, Rachel, occurs in the Registers. The first of the family of whom there is any record locally is Jonathan Gravenor, of Llanvihangel Crucorney, churchwarden there 1738, buried 3 Oct., 1768. By his wife, Alice, who was buried 21 July, 1756, he had a son, Jonathan Gravenor, who was married at Llanfihangel juxta Usk 6 May, 1761, to Catherine, daughter to William Taylor. Their son, William, was baptised 27 Sept., 1764. The family is still in existence at Tredegar, where, in 1865, is found a Llewelyn Gravenor, and in 1910 another Llewelyn Gravenor, draper, while during the Great War Col.-Sergt. Gravenor, of Tredegar, saddler, made the supreme sacrifice.

ADDENDUM.

NOTES FROM LOCAL PARISH REGISTERS.

The following notes of entries in the Parish Registers of Abergavenny and some neighbouring Parishes referring to Catholics and to individuals related to, or associated with Catholics, will constitute, it is hoped a useful and valuable supplement to the foregoing Catholic Registers. Attention may be drawn to the importance of distinguishing between born and baptised, and also between died, sep., and buried, and these words are underlined in the following notes. In many instances the prefixes died and born have been employed in respect of Quakers and Non-conformists, but as far as known all such instances have been here eliminated.

There are appended to the subjoined entries lists of recusants from 1592 to 1717, extracted from the following sources:

P.R.O. Recusant Rolls. Pipe Series. 34 Eliz. (1592); 37 Eliz. (1595); 5 Jac. I (1607); 5 Car. I (1630); 7 Car. I (1632); 2 Jac. II (1686); 1 W. & M. (1689); 2 W. & M. (1690).

P.R.O. Lay Subsidy, 3 Car. I $\frac{144}{55}$ (1628).

P.R.O. P.B. Certificates. Various Certificates of Recusants' Estates. No. 4. (1650.)

Hist. MSS. Commission: MSS. of the House of Lords 1678–1688, pp. 229–30 (1680).

P.R.O. Forfeited Estate Papers—P—70 (1717).

The 1719 list has not been included, as it may be found in C.R.S. vii, 246 et seq.

NOTES FROM PARISH REGISTER OF ABERGAVENNY.

The usual place of burial for the Abergavenny Catholics over the period covered by the preceding Registers was the graveyard attached to the old Priory Church; a list of Catholic memorial inscriptions therein may be found in C.R.S., xii, pp. 257–259. There is no evidence that the old chapel of Llanfair Gilgoed was used for burials subsequent to 1728.

1653. Jan. 10. born John, son of [blank] Williams Docter of Phisicke in Monckstreet.

* This entry and the next refer, undoubtedly, to Aurelius Williams, M.D., of Llanfoist.

1655. Sept. 22. born Bridgett, dau. of [blank] Williams Doctor of phisick at Lanfoyst.

1656. May 1. born Susan, dau. of Thomas Gunter.

1657. Apr. 10. born George,† son of William Jones, of the Hardwick.

1657. Aug. 7. born Lettis, dau. of William Williams,‡ gent. of Lanfoist.

1657/8. Feb. 11. born Anne, dau. of [blank] Williams doctor of phisick at Llanfoist.

1658. Apr. 26. bur. Lettis, dau. of William Williams, gent., of Lanfoyst.

1658. June 23. mar. Philip Morgan,§ mercer, to Mary Powell, dau. of Walter Powell, esq., of Landilo Cursony.

[No date, but between two entries of the year 1659:—] born [blank] of William Jones of the Hardwick.

1663. Mar. 26. sep. Hugo Lewis,‖ Armiger.

* Second son of Robert Gunter, of Abergavenny Priory, esq., sometimes wrongly assumed to have been the Thomas Gunter referred to in the Abstract of Examinations, 1680. As the Thomas Gunter of this entry is described as " senior " it may be assumed that the Thomas of the Abstract was his son, born circa 1627, as appears from the depositions in the case of Dame Mary Morgan, widow, v. Sir Edward Morgan & als. 33 Chas. II. Thomas of the Abstract was an attorney resident in Cross Street, Abergavenny, and legal adviser to the Catholic family of Morgan, of Llantarnam. He married, first, Mary, daughter to Morgan Lewis, of Abergavenny, who was buried 13 Jan., 1676, and secondly, Catherine Herbert, widow, whose identity has, as yet, not been more fully ascertained. The names of two children are known: Thomas, who was buried 7 Sept., 1692, and a daughter, Mary, who was a non-juror in 1715, and died 3 Dec., 1718. Thomas Gunter survived his son by nearly twenty years and died 10 Mar., 1711. His widow, Catherine, died 17 Oct., 1724. Between 1721 and 1724 these registers contain the names of at least three persons named Thomas Gunter, but nothing is known of them except that one of them resided at Llwyndu. The Catholic registers contain no Gunter entries prior to 1805. The Gunters of Abergavenny Priory were undoubtedly, in the direct line at any rate, Protestants, and the reason for the militant Catholicity of this cadet line has not been fully ascertained. It is probable that Mary Lewis, the first wife of the second Thomas Gunter, was a sister of the Ven. David Lewis, S.J., and if this be so possibly her influence was the determining factor in the matter. Further particulars with respect to the family of Lewis will be found in a subsequent note (vide Bradney's Monmouthshire, i, 160).

† George Jones married Winifred, daughter to . . . . . Davies, who survived him and was registered as a non-juror in 1715, being then resident at Holywell. She was a cousin of Elizabeth Griffin, of Orleton, co. Hereford, and her will was proved 19 Oct., 1736.

‡ Brother to Aurelius Williams, M.D.

§ Son of Turberville Morgan, of the Grange of Llanfair Gilgoed, where the old Catholic Chapel previously referred to was situated. He was a mercer in Abergavenny, and his wife, Mary, born 18 Nov., 1639, was daughter to Walter Powell, of Llantilio Crosseny, whose diary has been published by Sir Joseph Bradney, by his second wife, Sibyl, daughter to Abel Russell (vide Bradney's Monmouthshire, i, 123).

‖ Hugh Lewis, of Abergavenny, esq., born circa 1613, matriculated at Jesus College, Oxford, 1632, barrister-at-law of Gray's Inn 1642. He was the son of Morgan Lewis, of Abergavenny, and there is, consequently, good reason to presume that he was a brother of the Ven. David Lewis, S.J., who was executed at Usk 27 Aug., 1679, whose father, Morgan Lewis, was headmaster of the Grammar School at Abergavenny. In the Alumni Oxonienses Hugh is described as filius Morgani Lewis pleb., and, as headmasters of Grammar Schools are generally clergymen, this fact may indicate the contemporaneous existence of two persons named Morgan Lewis. It is, however, the only evidence unfavourable to the theory and too much weight should not be attached to it. In 1686 the Commissioners appointed by James II (P.R.O. Exchequer Proceedings, Monmouthshire, etc., 3 Jac. II, No. 6743) discovered the altar plate of Fr. David Lewis in the possession of Charles Price, of Llanfoist, and they handed it over to Edward Lewis, of Abergavenny, " to be kept for his Majestyes use." This Edward was brother to Hugh Lewis, and the entrusting of the altar plate to him clearly indicates relationship to the martyr. The following were children of Morgan Lewis: Hugh, who married Elizabeth, daughter to Sir Philip Jones, of Treowen, knt.; Richard, of Abergavenny, grocer, who had a son, David; Thomas Lewis, of Monmouth, M.D., a recusant in 1680; Edward Lewis, gent., ob. ante 1688; Mary, married Thomas Gunter, of Abergavenny, gent.; Florence; and a daughter who married Charles Morgan, gent. In view of the great interest attaching to this family, abstracts of the wills of Hugh and Thomas are given below.

* John Prichard, of Llwyndu, who married Mary, daughter of . . . . . Watkins (vide C.R.S. xxiv, 51). The words " in templo " signify burial in the church.

† Peter Morgan was the earliest known benefactor of the Abergavenny mission. His sister, Jane Stubbs, was possibly the widow of Thomas Stubbs of the preceding entry (vide Historical Introduction).

* Probably Edmund, son of John Jones, of the Hardwick, esq., by his wife, Elizabeth, second daughter to David Proger, of Wernddu, esq.

† Probably son to John Prichard, of Llwyndu.

‡ For pharmacopola.

§ This refers to Fr. William Elliott, alias Clifford, born in Herefordshire in 1610; ordained priest on the feast of St. Matthias, 1636, and left the English College, Rome, for England, 17 April, 1637. He laboured in Herefordshire and the adjoining portions of Monmouthshire, and was elected Archdeacon 13 Sept., 1661. In the year 1675 he was arrested by John Scudamore, of Kentchurch, and, as a result, was sent into exile. He died at Rouen 7 Jan., 1675 (vide C.R.S. iii, 103). The place described as " the Bac'h " is probably The Bage, or Bage Court, in the parish of Dorstone, co. Hereford.

‖ Charles, son of Henry Baker, of Abergavenny, and his wife, Anne, daughter to Humphrey Baskerville, of Pontrilas. The Ven. David Lewis, S.J., assumed the alias of Charles Baker, and hence this Charles was, for a long time, erroneously assumed to be the martyr and his alias to be David Lewis. The date of Charles' burial effectively disposes of this theory, for he survived Fr. David Lewis by nearly two years. Henry Baker, in his will, proved 1680, leaves to " my son Charles tenement near Trevethin church the castle of Abergavenny and meadows &c." The next entry relates, probably, to Charles Baker's mother.

¶ John is probably used for Jones.

 Daughter to Philip Morgan, of Abergavenny, mercer, by Mary, daughter to Walter Powell, of Llantilio Crossenny (vide 23 June, 1658).

†† Robert, son of William Davies, of Clytha, gent., by his wife, Mary. His bride was Jane, daughter to William Jones, of Llanarth, esq., by his wife, Mary, daughter to Christopher Anderton, of Lostock, co. Lancs., esq. Their only child and heiress, Mary, married Thomas Berkeley, of Spetchley, co. Worcester, and jure uxoris of Clytha, esq., who was a non-juror in 1715 (vide Bradney's Monmouthshire, ii, 115–6).

1716/7. Mar. 14. died. Mary Herbert, wid.
1718. Apr. 30. died S^r James Morgan, Baronet.

* Probably widow of John Prichard, of Llwyndu, vide supra.

† Sir James Morgan, of Llantarnam, 4th and last baronet of this old Catholic family. He was the son of Sir Edward Morgan, of Llantarnam, bart., by his wife, Mary, daughter to Sir Francis Englefield, of Wootton Bassett, bart. He married Alice, daughter to Sir Edward Hopton, of Canon Frome, co. Hereford, knt., and widow of Nicholas Jones, of Abergavenny, esq. Sir James Morgan was a non-juror in 1715, and died 30 April, 1718 (vide Bradney's Monmouthshire, iii, 231).

‡ Probably a brother of William Best, of Treowen, gent., the natal entries of whose sons follow this marriage entry. Among the non-jurors of 1715 occurs the name of Edward Best, flax-dresser, of Abergavenny, who had an estate of £11 per annum at Llanover, for the life of his wife, Winifrid. It is probable that this is the Edmund of this marriage entry, and that an error has been made either in the list of non-jurors or in the parish register. The following is an abstract of William Best's will:

"Best, William, of Treowen, gent; dated 19 Nov., 1722, proved 2 Dec., 1723, by James Prichard, exor.

All my personal estate to Thomas Jenkyns, esq. & James Prichard, gent., to be sold to pay my son in law John Prichard, gent., 180^l & a further sum of 200^l the residue of the portion I was to advance him upon his marrying my dau.—residue between my son Edward Best & my wife Winefred Best: Inventory 1647^l 16^s 8^d goods at Abergavenny & Treowen." (From Sir Joseph Bradney's MS. Books of Wills, xxx, 14).

§ Possibly Thomas, son of Herbert Croft, of Blackbrook, by his wife, Blanche. Thomas married Mary, only child of William Morgan, of Llanfair Gilgoed, by his wife, Alice, daughter of William Bevan, of Castlefield.

‖ William Attwood, of the Tything of Whistons, Claines, co. Worcester, son of George Attwood, and a non-juror in 1715, owned a freehold house called the "Crown" in Abergavenny as well as property in Kent and Worcestershire.

1718. Dec. 3 died Mrs. Mary Gunter.

* In a memorandum preserved at Lisbon College the following occurs: "May the 24th 1707—Money in Esqr Proger's & Tenants hands. A hundred and Ten pounds of Pitt's money; that is, with which one Pitt was intrusted": This relates to the trust established by the will of the Rev. William Lloyd and the Pitt referred to is probably the Thomas Pitt mentioned above. He was churchwarden of Llantilio Pertholey in 1714, and this is probably an instance of a friendly Protestant acting as a trustee for Catholic funds. In all, Mr. Proger and his tenants held no less than £710 of this trust money in 1707.

No. IV.

ACCOUNT OF THE LIFE AND DEATH OF BROTHER ALEXIS CALLED IN THE WORLD ROBERT GRÆME, A SCOTCH GENTLEMAN.

CONTRIBUTED BY GEORGE FREDERICK ENGELBACH.

This short life of Brother Alexis of La Trappe (Robert Græme) is a contemporary translation, presumably by a Poor Clare, of the French original printed in Paris in 1703, the author of which is unknown. The British Museum does not possess a copy, the only one known to me being that which belonged to the late Colonel R. C. Græme, of Camberley, a collateral descendant of the same family. The life was, however, included in the Relation de la vie et de la mort de quelques Religieux de l'Abbaye de la Trappe, published in six small volumes in Paris in 1755, a copy of which was kindly lent me, for the purpose of collation, by the Rt. Rev. Abbot Phelan of Mount Melleray, co. Waterford.

Our English manuscript, the spelling of which is both quaint and curious, consists of forty pages of close writing in ink, numbered in pencil, and belongs to the Community of St. Clare's Abbey, Darlington.

As mentioned above, the author of the life is not known, but it was doubtless written by someone in the monastery of La Trappe, assisted by Bro. Alexis's elder brother, the Capucin, Fr. Archangel of Boulogne, who, we are expressly told in a note to the French original, is responsible for certain information supplied.

A few details, other than those which appear in the notes, of this interesting family, four members of which became Catholics, will not be out of place here. Brother Alexis's father, Patrick Græme, was the second son of Patrick Græme, of Inchbrakie (known as "Black Pate"), by his wife Jean, daughter of John, second Lord Madderty. Like his father he was a soldier, and in May 1682 was appointed Captain of the Town Guard in Edinburgh and obtained the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel 17 July 1688. In the following month of September he was given the command of the Militia Regiment in addition to that of the Town Guard, and on the disbanding of the latter in 1689, at once obtained command of a Regiment of Dragoons in the service of King James II. He married, in 1663, Anne, daughter of Patrick Smythe, of Braco, and had by her four sons—

(1) James, born 1664, who became a seaman and, after an adventurous life, died in 1707, being described in the Will proved at Edinburgh 8 October 1707, as "Midshipman and Sailor aboard the ship S[t] Andrews belonging to the Company of Scotland," in other words, the Darien Company.

(2) Patrick, born c. 1669, mentioned several times in his brother's life, who also became a Catholic, and was for some time at Douai. The following entry in the Records of the Scots College at Douai refers to him: "1696. 13. Mar. Patritius Graham, filius Petri* Colonelli, post 14 menses factus recolecta apud Anglos Duaci; postea Capuci-nus Boloniæ præcipue celebris." Father Archangel, as he was called, was well known in later years as Guardian of the Capuchins in Boulogne, and Smollett, in his Travels through France and Italy, Letter III, dated Boulogne, 15 Aug. 1763, mentions that "his memory is much revered in this place. Being superior of the convent, he caused the British arms to be put up in the church, as a mark of gratitude for the benefactions received from our nation. I often walk in the garden of the convent, the walls of which are washed by the sea at high water." In the same letter, however, he wrongly credits Fr. Græme with the duel, fought in 1695 by his first cousin, also a Patrick Græme (the son of his father's elder brother, George), with the Master of Rollo, whom he killed, for which reason he had to leave the country until 1720, when a full remission under the Great Seal was granted to him. I have so far been unable to find out when Fr. Archangel died, but he was living at Boulogne as late as 1747, when he presented an illuminated tree of his descent to his friend, Stuart Thriepland, which is still extant.

* His father's Christian name was Patrick, but in Scotland "Pat" and "Peter" are interchangeable.

(3) Robert, born in 1678, the subject of this life.

(4) William, born c. 1683, who adopted the medical profession and lived in Perth, where he married and had three children: William, Ann, and Christine. His wife's name is unknown, and nothing more is heard of him except that in 1739 he paid a visit to his brother, the Capuchin, at Boulogne.

As will be seen further on both Colonel Græme and his wife were ultimately received into the Catholic Church and died in France.

Account of the life and death of Brother Alexis called in the world Robert Grême, a Scotch Gentleman.

Robert Grême was born in Scotland in the Castle of Rostourne,* at about two miles distance from Edimbourgh, of one of the most considerable families in the Kingdom. His Father, known under the name of Colonel Grême, commanded a Regiment of Dragoons in the Troupes of King James the Second, whom he allways served with a fidelity that was proof against all the disgraces, which he foresaw his engagements in the service of this great Prince would draw upon his family.

* In the autumn of 1678. Royston House, Cramond, Edinburgh, belonged at that time to his uncle, George Græme, who had inherited the property through his wife, Margaret, on the death of his Father-in-law, Patrick Nicholl, in 1676. In 1685 he sold the lands of Royston and Granton to George, Viscount Tarbet, who rebuilt the old manor house. Later on the property passed into the possession of the Duke of Buccleuch, who renamed it Caroline Park, in honour of the wife of George II.

Colonel Grême was, on his father's side, of the Montrose family, and Cousin to the famous Marquess* of that name, to whom King Charles the first gave the general command of his Scotch Troupes against the Rebels, and whom Charles the second, even before he was peaceable possessor of his Kingdoms, created Knight of the Garter and Generalissimo of his Armies against the Rebells, after having recall'd him from Germany, where he exercised the Charge of Marshal of the Empire.

On his Mother's side, He descended from the Lord Perth's† family, who is more illustrious for his piety, and for what he has suffer'd for Religion than by his employments of Vice-Roy, High Chancellor of Scotland, and Governour of the Prince of Wales, now King of Great Britain.

Scarce had young Grême attain'd to the use of reason, but his Mother a zealous Protestant, and pious as much as a person can be in a false Religion, would take upon herself the first part of his education. She applied herself no less to form him to the practice of all moral virtues, than to instruct him in the principles of her Secte. She [2] brought up all her Children in that persuasion: But notwithstanding all the pains she took for to ground and confirm them in it, she could not hinder her Son Robert from finding within himself, from his tender years, a secret inclination to the Catholick Religion. He had not yet attain'd ten years of age, when being inform'd that Mass was said in the Royal Palace of Edimbourgh,‡ He run to it with such ardour and eagerness, that it alarm'd his whole family. His mother who had notice of it, fail'd not representing to him the horrour of that action, which her unhappy blindness made her consider as an impiety and idolatry. For to draw him from it, she employ'd entreaties, caresses, and threats; all which were ineffectual. The authority and remonstrances of his Præceptor made as little impression upon him, and altho', from that time, he endeavour'd never to lose sight of him, the Child allways found means to escape his watchfull eye and to be on Sundays at the Palace Chapel.

His Mother hitherto had not been willing to make use of severity in his regard, thinking the Devotion of her Son was less an effect of his piety, than of a childish curiosity; but when she had heard

* James, first Marquess of Montrose, born 1612, and executed by the Parliamentary Rebels in 1650, was known in old Scots language as "the great Græm."

† James Drummond, fourth Earl of Perth, born 1648, was appointed Lord High Chancellor of Scotland 1684, received into the Church in 1685, created a K.T. 29 May 1687, and appointed by King James Governour of the Prince of Wales at Saint-Germain, August 1696. He died there 11 May 1716.

‡ Holyrood Chapel being a Chapel Royal was restored to Catholic worship in 1687, and the Protestant congregation removed to Lady Yester's church in the city.

from her eldest [elder] Son,* (who is actually a Capucin under the name of Brother Archangel) to whom she had given orders to watch his Brother, that Robert entring into the Chapel, took Holy-water, made the sign of the Cross, kneel'd down at the foot of the Altar, and observed all the ceremonies that are practised in the Catholick Church, she no longer doubted but her son design'd to abandon his Religion: which put her in such an anger, that not satisfied with having loaded him with reproaches and bad treatment, she caused him moreover to be severely punish'd by his Preceptor.

This home persecution far from deterring young Robert from going [3] to Mass, served only to render him more earnest and assiduous at it. Lord Perth, who at that time, held the Charge of High Chancellor, and had, a little before, abjured the errors of the Church of England, was charm'd at seeing so much courage and perseverance in this Child, who, by no means, could be drawn from the ardent desire he had of giving publick proofs of his Faith. This made him resolve to cultivate with his own hands this young plant, which came, as it were, to place itself in the field of the Church. He thought that, in quality of near Relation, he had a kind of right to ask him of his Father, in order to bring him up with his own Children. He accordingly proposed the thing to him. Colonel Grême perplexed at a demand he did not expect, and at the same time, not daring to refuse a person of that rank and consideration, very dextrously said that his wife being solely charged with the education of his Son, he beg'd his Lordship would make the proposal to her; it being but just that she should have the principal part in the favour, with which he was pleased to honour them.

My Lord Perth took too great interest in the conversion of his family for to hesitate at taking this second step towards effecting it. It was attended with all the success he could expect. Madam Grême presented her Son to him, in hopes however of soon withdrawing him from his hands, foreseeing perhaps the misfortunes which shortly after, caused an entire change throughout all England. It is true that being so zealous for her Religion, it was not without pain, she consented to her son's renouncing it, but she comforted herself with the thought that being as yet but a child, she would have time to remove from his heart all the impressions Lord Perth might make in favour of the Catholick Religion. His Lordship perceiving what was her design, hasten'd to take young Grême from under his Mother's [4] power; in order that he might have over him all the authority of a Father and Master. Being then charged with all the obligations this double quality imposed upon him, he made it a subject of pleasure as well as of duty, to form the heart and mind of a Child who was, at the same time, his adopted Son, his Cousin, and his Disciple. He found no difficulty in insinuating the truths of Faith, and the maxims of Christian piety into a heart which the grace of God had already so well prepared. Robert on his side corresponded so perfectly to his care and attention, that he soon made a sensible progress in virtue. Happy could he have allways remain'd in so holy a School.

But the revolutions, which happen'd in England, soon put the High Chancellor, who was charged with all the affairs of the Kingdom, out of a condition of continuing his instructions to his dear Disciple. God was pleased to sanctify them both, by ways very different from their first views: Lord Perth by sufferings and persecutions; young Robert by a severe penance, after having deliver'd him up, for some time, to the disorderly desires of his heart. It would be a difficult task to express his Lordship's affliction, when obliged to leave England, he saw himself under a necessity of returning young Grême to his Mother who demanded him. As he knew him to be of a nature as earnest and eager, as his heart was tender, he apprehended with good reason that in case he should ever happen to leave God, he would addict himself to a disorderly life with so much the more passion, as he had expressed a greater desire of embracing virtue.

It was in order to prevent this misfortune, He exhorted him to be faithfull and constant in the Service of J[esus] C[hrist] and made him a present [5] of several books which he thought were proper to nourish his piety, and to fortify him in the truths of the Catholick Religion. At last it was necessary for them to part, which they did with grief and shedding many tears on both sides. Lord Perth quitted Scotland* and Robert return'd to his Mother. My Lord's uneasiness and apprehensions were but too well grounded. Scarce had young Grême lost sight of him, but he allmost immediately lost his innocence and piety. Forced with his Mother to take

* He left Edinburgh on 18 December 1688, and, having embarked at Burntisland, was about to sail for France but was captured and ultimately taken to Stirling Castle where he remained a prisoner until August 1693, when he was released on condition of leaving Scotland. In connection with his imprisonment the following letter from the Earl of Drumlangrig to the Earl of Leven, dated Stirling, Sept. 6, 1690, is of interest:

" My Dear Lord

After leaving Scotland Lord Perth travelled abroad in Flanders and Italy, and finally joined James II at the Court of Saint-Germain in 1696.

refuge at one of his Uncles,* who was a Parson, he soon made a dreadfull experience of his inconstancy and weakness; and in reality it was allmost impossible, without an extraordinary grace, for a Child long to resist the caresses of a mother, who made it her duty and a subject of glory to corrupt his Faith.

His Uncle exceedingly pleased at having him in his hands, gave him full liberty. Robert who was entring into his youth, that is to say, into the most dangerous passage of man's life, was not long, before he gave into the rocks and shelves, against which allmost all young people suffer a miserable shipwrack. He began to frequent persons of his own age and condition. He enter'd into all their parties of pleasure and diversion; He refused nothing to his passions, which were lively; so that seeing himself no longer supported by the example nor retain'd by the authority of a Father, both which he found in Lord Perth, he by degrees abandon'd himself to all kinds of disorders and impiety. He from that time accustom'd himself to blaspheme the name of God, and afterwards took so great pleasure and satisfaction therein, that he spared no endeavours for to surpass in this detestable practice those amongst his friends who were most subject to it. Impiety soon [6] led him into atheisme. He was neither a Catholick nor a Protestant, and equally despising all Religions, he made them the common subject of his jests and railery.

If these disorders so uncommon in a person of his tender years, intimated to what a degree he would one day carry libertinism: His pride and insolence already caused him to be regarded as an untractable young man and whose company would scarce be supportable. His Uncle was the first who experienced the effects of his hauty and imperious humour, which he had so much difficulty to overcome, even since his retiring to La Trappe. Robert comported himself in his house with all the licenciousness of a soldier that's quarter'd upon some Citizen; living without either modesty, civility, piety or reason, ever agitated by his passions, he could not suffer others to be at peace. Sometimes he ill treated the servants of the house; at other times, he insulted his Uncle's children. In short, not satisfied with a continual want of respect for his Uncle, he had the impudence one day to affront him in full company, which perhaps his quality of parson hinder'd him from revenging. Not but he often caused his ungratefull Nephew to be solicited to make him satisfaction, but he was so little disposed to do it, that standing

He resided in the parish of Methven. By his wife, a daughter of James Atkine, Bishop of Galloway, he had a son, Mr. James, of Aitherney, apothecary in Perth, who became one of the most eminent surgeons of his time in Scotland, and a daughter, Anna. He died at Perth 28 July 1718. Colonel Græme having been forced by the Government to quit Edinburgh, sailed for France with his son, Patrick, in a ship leaving Leith on 25 March 1692. Mrs. Græme remained in Edinburgh to settle affairs before leaving for Methven with her two younger sons, which she did some time in the following May.

once in need of thirty pistoles, and his Uncle having given him to understand that he would present him with that sum, in case he asked pardon, he rather chose to refuse it and to leave his house, than to humble himself to that degree. He repair'd to London,* where meeting with several of his friends of dispositions like his own, he carried his impieties and debaucheries to their height. There were disorders of no kind, but he made it a pleasure to himself and even an honour to commit, that is to say, he gave into [7] all the excesses which licenciousness and impunity can inspire a young libertin with who is master of his own conduct.

It seem'd as if nothing would ever be capable to draw him out of so deep an abyss. But God who design'd one day to place him as a vessel of honour in his house, never lost sight of him. He from time to time, spoke to his heart. He imbitter'd his pleasures with disgusts and uneasiness; and often in the height of his extravagancies, would set before his eyes the dreadfull consequences of so cri[mi]nal a life. Robert on his side, had not so entirely choak'd the seeds of virtue, Lord Perth had cast into his soul, but that he still had some remains, scarce indeed sufficient to reclaim him to Allmighty God, yet such as to inspire him sometimes with a horrour of his disorders, and a desire of getting out of them. It was during these good intervals which were rare and of short continuance, that Robert who loved excess in good as well as in evil, employ'd himself in works of Charity towards his neighbour, which may be called heroick: for not content with going to the Hospitals for to comfort the sick and to help them with his own hands and relieve them by his alms, he had moreover the courage to assist at dressing their wounds and ulcers, which he would frequently wipe with his Hankerchift. J.C. who has promised not to let a cup of cold water given in his name go unrewarded, made him soon experience how much he is pleased at works of so compassionate a Charity. He touched his heart with most lively sentiments of compunction, and excited him to bewail his sins, and to use endeavours towards breaking their chains. He agitated his conscience with troubles, remorses and fears which gave him no rest either day or night. But for to inspire him with still a greater horrour of the deplorable state he was in, He brought back to his mind the [8] remembrance of that tranquility and of those comforts he had heretofore experienced at Lord Perth's house, when he there led a pure and innocent life. These things often struck and affected the young Sinner, so far as to induce him to take the first steps towards getting out of his disorders: But his mind scarce ever being in right intelligence with his heart, allways formed oppositions which retarded the entire accomplishment of his good designs. He thus would miserably have passed his days in an ineffectual will of converting himself, if God, in order to bring it about, had not inspired him with a desire of going to France.

Robert readily yeilded to the interiour voice which called him into this Kingdom. He came not for to satisfy his curiosity but with a design of preserving his Faith under the shelter of a Cloyster, where he hoped to recover his innocence by the labours and austerities of a Religious life. It was in view of this, he stop'd, some considerable time,* at Bruges in order to ground himself in Latin by a regular study, and to fortify himself in Faith by receiving the Sacrament of Confirmation which the Bishop† of that Town confer'd upon him. He went afterwards‡ to Nieuport in Flanders.

Finding there a very strict religious Order,§ he laid aside his thoughts of proceeding to France, and ask'd for some time to be received into that Community. The Religious who were English endeavour'd earnestly to engage him to stay with them; but whether thro' want of courage, or thro' inconstancy, or that he did not think himself strong enough for to undergo the hardships of so severe an institute, He wholy abandon'd this good undertaking. His conduct afterwards might even give room to think, the love of liberty and licenciousness were the principal causes of this infidelity: for instead of leaving a town which offer'd him innumerable occasions of relapsing into his criminal habits, he there contracted such an intimacy [9] with some English Officers who were, at that time, in garrison at Nieuport, that all the authority of his Father and of Lord Perth, who were both then in France, was not sufficient to break it of. These new engagements were occasions to him of most dangerous relapses and which became more criminal, by reason of his having a little before experienced the Unction of the Grace of J. C.

My Lord inform'd of the disorderly life his Cousin led, writ many strong and moving letters to him in hopes of reclaiming him; But Robert made no account either of his entreatise or remonstrances. He would perhaps have allways continued in his disobedience and obstinacy, if the apprehension of incurring the Queen of England's‖ displeasure, with which My Lord threatend him, had not induced him to do, what he would not out of a motive of the fear of God. At last after long resistance he betook himself¶ to the Court of S[t] Germain's. As he carried with him a heart wholy corrupted, he lived there much in the same manner as he had done in England and Flanders, with this difference that he outwardly professed the Catholick Religion. However as he was in the number of those the Prophet speaks of, who are good with the good & wicked with the wicked, he, in a short time, grew ashamed of living in a disorderly and criminal way, in the midst of a Court, where it may be said, all kind of virtues were on the Throne; on whatever side he cast his eyes, he every where found severe censors of his life. Not being able then any longer to resist the force of the great examples he beheld in so regular and holy a Court, he entirely renounced his dissolute life [10] and that unbecoming effeminacy in which he passed his days. He retired to the Seminary of Meaux,* where he spent ten months in learning french, and instructing himself in the duties of Christianity, which he had in a manner quite forgot. This retreat was of great advantage to him and help'd much to confirm and strengthen him in his good resolutions. He began to live like a true Christian,† and far from making the pension, which the Queen of England had had the goodness to settle upon him, subservient to his pleasures as till then he had done, he only employ'd it in relieving the poor, for whom he allways had a particular tenderness. These first endeavours were seconded by the reading of pious books, which he had neglected doing, from the time of his separation from Lord Perth. These lectures soon awaken'd his former ideas of retirement, which had vanish'd away at Nieuport. He comprehended the necessity thereof, and was more than ever fixt and determin'd upon it. His only concern was the choice of a Religious order, when God who was pleased to settle the inconstancy of his mind by means of some sensible graces, conducted him as it were by chance into an Inn where he was accustom'd to lodge in the little jaunts he made from time to time. Whilst his dinner was getting ready, walking about his room having his mind wholy occupied with his design, he cast his eyes without reflection upon a Crucifix that stood on the buffet. At that very moment, as if J. C. had reproached him with his ingratitude and the extravagancies of his past life, he felt himself penetrated with such grief and compunction, that not being able any longer to retain his sobs and sighs, he burst out in such manner as to be heard by the whole house. The Landlady alarm'd at the noise [11] run directly up to his Room; She found him fall'n back upon a chair, his body without motion, his eyes fixt upon the Crucifix, and his face bath'd in tears: Surprised at beholding such excessive affliction in a young man, whom she had allways known to be of a chearfull disposition, she beg'd him to tell her the reason of it, but all her questions were useless and she could draw nothing from him but sighs and tears.

Robert penetrated with love and gratitude for so singular and unforeseen a favour, became so steady in his resolution of renouncing the world, that nothing thenceforeward was able to turn him from it; But as in the most holy Designs, it but too often happens that persons confound their own inclinations, with the inspirations they believe to come from God, Robert who still retain'd a secret tie to the commodities of life and to independance, would willingly have persuaded himself that God call'd him into Italy, and to the profession of a Hermit. There needed but little light for to see that so strange an inspiration for a young man of his disposition and temper, could be nothing but a suggestion of an angel of darkness; however he found it so good and holy, that he imparted it to an English Religious man of his friends, who at first fell into his way of thinking, and even promised to follow him; But this Religious having, the next night, made more solid reflections on this fine project, abandon'd it in order to turn all his thoughts & views towards La Trappe. Robert to whom, in his turn, he imparted his design, was not so complaisant, and rejected it as an extravagant thought: however [12] the Religious continuing in the same mind, got himself in readiness to set out alone. Robert used all his endeavours to stop him, but not being able to succeed, he chose rather to follow him, than to be separated from him, still hoping to bring him over to his way of thinking and to disgust him of La Trappe whilst on the road. They arrived there after five days travelling;* and what's remarkable, is that the Religious, who was a strong hearty man and used to walk, found himself extreamly fatigued with his journey. Robert on the contrary was as fresh as on the first day of his setting out, altho' till that time, he had allways been so tender of himself and effeminate as never to travel but in a coach, finding even the motion of a horse too troublesome.

No sooner had Robert put his foot into the house, but to use the Scripture expression, the Spirit of our Lord seized upon him. He found himself wholy changed into another man; every thing charm'd & penetrated him. The ceremonies observed at the reception of Strangers, the Silence, the Charity which is shewn them, and the care which is taken to assist and relieve them. But nothing made more impression upon his heart, which was naturally prodigious tender, than the Kiss of peace the Religious give each other, when they approach to the holy Table. It was then he imagined to himself that he heard a secret voice saying to him: Here is the place of thy rest. He that very moment took a resolution of never leaving it, whatever it might cost him. A change so prompt and extraordinary perhaps was never seen. This young man, who was excessive delicate, as will be seen hereafter, [13] who trembled at the very recital of the penances of La Trappe, and who comes thither with no other view but to hinder his friend from staying, finds himself in the space of an instant, in a quite opposit situation; He feels himself strong and vigorous, he animates by his words and example, him whom he had before endeavour'd to deterr: He becomes such a lover of penance that, as if he apprehended never having time enough for to practice it, he desires, from the first day of his arrival, to live like a Religious of the Community. He began therefore from that time to mortify his senses as well as his appetites, and altho' the Strangers Table is served after a very frugal manner,† he found means to enhance upon that very frugality, in taking only what was most plain and insipid: and as he had allways been excessively fond of fruit, he from that instant took a resolution to deprive himself thereof for the remainder of his life. He soon had granted to him in full the satisfaction he desired, and was admitted to the regular exercises with his companion, who no longer found in his friend a dangerous tempter, But a model of fervour and courage. The first thing this young Postulant did was to read and learn the Regulations of the house. This he made his chief concern, but he was still more carefull and faithfull in the practice of them. He was allways very far from making any distinction between little and great observances. They appeared to him all equally important, and worthy of being kept with the same assiduity.

This great exactitude which is one of the principal characters of those whom God calls to this Monastery, drew down upon him, from [14] heaven a powerfull grace, which made so level his ways, that he met with nothing capable of stopping him. Labour, Fasting, watching, silence, hard lying; in a word all the austerities of the house, far from appearing to him impracticable (as he had imagined) did not even cost him the first pains & difficulties, which persons brought up in idleness and pleasure, usually meet with. But if it was matter of surprise to see this young Postulant running on in the ways of penance, with all that swiftness God bestows on those whose heart he has dilated: it was subject of no less astonishment to behold his companion proceeding in a timorous and languishing manner, he who should have preceded him in that narrow path, into which he himself had conducted him.

This faint-heartedness was soon follow'd by a disgust; of which the devil made his advantage; and without great difficulty overcame him. This Religious then finding the penance too severe, resolved to return back again, and to induce his friend to do the same, to the end that having a partner in this desertion, less shame might accrew to him. As the Rule of Silence did not allow his speaking to him, and he fear'd moreover being perceived, he writ him a note, whereby he signified to him, that not being able any longer to undergo the austerities he had indiscreetly enter'd upon, he was resolved to leave La Trappe; that he acknowledged they both had acted lightly, that they would have done better in pursuing their first design of becoming Hermits in Italy, that there was still time enough for them to repair their fault, and that it only depended upon him. He added that it would be an indiscretion in a young man of his tender constitution, to make any longer stay in so disagreable and unhealthy a place; that for the little time he had already follow'd [15] the common austerities, he was so changed as hardly to be known again. You appear, said he, to be no more than a skeleton; you carry death painted on your countenance, you are so wan and wore away, that I cannot look at you without compassion: believe me, let us depart from hence without delay, and seek in Italy a method of life more proportionable to the weakness of your constitution.

This Religious man could not have employ'd a more effectual means of reviving in his friend that subtle and dangerous temptation He himself had dispell'd: But the grace of God had taken full possession of our young Postulant's heart, and far from answering this and two other notes couch'd in still stronger terms and which he gave him a few days after; he went on as usual, without so much as signifying to him the receipt of his letters. The Religious perceived it would be to no purpose to press him any more; he ask'd his Dimission, and went away both confounded and afflicted to see that God had only made use of him, to open a path of Salvation for one who had employ'd all his endeavours to hinder him from entring upon it. Robert had no sooner escaped this snare, which the devil had laid for him, but he found himself involved in another trouble, which it was not so easy for him to get out of. He had for some days been asking for the religious Habit with great earnestness, without being able to obtain it. The Abbot* not thinking proper to give it him, without having first the consent of Lord Perth, He writ to his Lordship about it; But my Lord far from granting it, answer'd He never would agree to his cousin's (whose disposition of mind as well as constitution of body were well known to him) engaging in a state of life so much above his strength. [16] Nothing could be wiser nor more judicious than this refusal, considering Robert's dispositions both of body and mind. For after all, there was very little appearance that a young man of twenty years of age, brought up in ease and pleasure, would be able to undergo, for the space of a fortnight only, a life of perpetual mortification and labour. He knew his Cousin had been a great eater in the world: That four meals he regularly made each day, did not prevent his sometimes fainting, as it happen'd to him in the Seminary at Meaux. He knew moreover his indolence and laziness had been so great that he would have food brought to him in bed, where the sole pleasure of sleeping would detain him sometimes till two o'clock in the afternoon; that his love of ease had been such, that lodging once in Scotland with a person of quality of his friends, who gave him his own bed garnish'd with several matterasses of Coton, he complain'd the next morning of not lying so commodiously as he could have wish'd for. These were the chief reasons that induced Lord Perth not to give his consent. In effect, The life of this young man, might justly be look'd upon as an invincible obstacle to the design he had of entring upon a state directly opposit thereto. Accustom'd on all occasions to follow his senses, there was little prospect of his succeeding in a life wholy applied to mortifying them. The dispositions of his mind were no less incompatible with a Religious profession, than those of his body. He was hauty, inconstant, impetuous, incapable of yeilding to any person whatever; This has been observed at the beginning of his life, in his behaviour to his Uncle: The fact we are going to relate, is still a greater proof thereof. He had no sooner learn't that Lord Perth refused him the consent he expected in order to his taking the Habit, but looking upon this [17] refusal as an injury done him, he enter'd into so violent an anger against his Lordship, that it had all the appearance of fury. He spoke of him in so hauty and insolent a manner, that the Master of Novices, who could not hear him without indignation told him he did not deserve to be admitted to Religion nor to remain even two hours longer in the house. However his resentment did not stop here: He was not satisfied, till he had pen'd down upon paper all the bitterness his heart was full of. He ask'd leave to write to my Lord and did it in English, but as it was apprehended his letter would not be expressed in terms either more moderate or more respectfull, that were the discourses he had held, it was order'd to be translated by an English Religious* of the House, and was indeed found to contain such harsh and chocking expressions, that the Superiours did not dare to send it. He could not well have carried his insolence and ingratitude to a higher pitch, towards a person of Lord Perth's distinction, and to whom he had infinit obligations; But it may be said this last excess of anger was also, in a manner, the last effort of his hautiness & pride. The Master of Novices shock'd to the highest degree at his violent comportment, did all he could with the Abbot and with the R[everend] F[ather] Ancient,† to prevent his being admitted to the Habit; he represented to them, that it was greatly to be fear'd that nothing would ever be able to subdue a nature so proud and haughty as his was: but Charity which is patient, would not allow them to proceed so hastily: [18] The conversion of this young man, to which was annexed that of his whole family, appear'd to them a subject of too great importance, not to be forwarded as much as possible. Moreover there appear'd in him such visible marks of the hand of God, that it was not doubted but his divine goodness would compleat in him the work he had begun; For he was content, he loved, he relish'd his state, and it may be said with truth, that what chiefly occasion'd his late bad behaviour, was his earnest desire of engaging in it, which shows clearly to us that Allmighty God do's not allways immediately take from his elect their natural disposition of mind, when he reforms their heart. The Novice Master not finding the Abbot disposed to send away this young Postulant, thought it his duty to apply himself to cure him of an evil, which was so directly opposit to that meekness and humility so essential

* Dom Farington Lake, known in religion as Dom Bede, and originally an English Benedictine, born in Lancaster, 1646, professed at La Trappe 1698, and died 31 March 1704.

† The old abbot, Dom Armand Jean Le Bouthillier de Rancé, born in Paris, 9 January 1626, became abbot " in commendam " of the Cistercian abbey of La Trappe in 1638. He was ordained priest in 1651, but it was not until 1662 that he introduced into the monastery, which had fallen into decay, the Strict Observance of the rule of St. Benedict, as at Cîteaux. On 13 June 1663 he took the monastic habit in the abbey of Perseigne, and after a year's novitiate, having taken vows, was, on 13 July 1664, blessed as regular Abbot of La Trappe by the exiled Bishop of Ardagh (Patrick Plunket) in the abbey of St. Martin at Sées. Under his rule the abbey flourished exceedingly, but his health broke down and in 1695 he resigned his office, and died at La Trappe 27 October 1700.

to a Religious Profession. To this effect, he let no occasion pass of humbling him; He thwarted and slighted him both in private and in publick; and far from comforting him, when he came to consult him about his doubts, or to expose to him his pains & difficulties, he made him no other answer but that he never would be proper for a religious life. He, in a word, put him to trials so severe, that it seem'd to be his design to reduce him to a necessity of either going away of his own accord or else of humbling himself under the feet of all. A conduct so extraordinary and in appearance severe to excess, produced an effect which even the Novice Master could not have expected. This young man, hauty, infatuated with his own merit and [19] quality, who could not bear the least contradiction from persons even of the greatest dignity, was, with astonishment, seen to humble his proud head under the hand of a man, who had only a subordinate authority in the Monastery. He suffer'd all his hard usage with a most perfect patience, and from that time to the last moment of his life, he shew'd in his behaviour, as much humility, meekness and docility, as heretofore he had made appear obstinacy, pride and self conceit. So wonderfull a change left no further room to question the sincerity of his conversion. Lord Perth was inform'd of it, who press'd by the repeated sollicitations of his Cousin and of the Abbot, at last gave his consent with reflections worthy of his wisdom and piety. They were preparing to give him the habit, when another accident befell him, which caused the Ceremony to be delay'd: he was seized with an Eresipele* in the leg, which obliged him to keep his Cell, for several days.

As his Superiours desired to be more and more convinced of the disposition of his mind and heart, they caused him to be treated in such a manner as to make him sensible they did not make much account of him. They left him to keep solitude and silence, and during the whole time of this his retirement, which was twelve days, he saw no body but a Lay Brother, who dressed his leg and carried him victuals, without speaking a word. This want of all human comfort gave him not the least vexation, But on the contrary help'd to confirm him in his resolution of ending his days at La Trappe. In fine, after two entire months of contradictions and most severe trials, he received the Habit, on the Eve of all Saints† in the year 1699, with the name of Brother Alexis. [20] He was no sooner cloathed, but he shew'd by his conduct that he was deserving thereof. It was subject of great satisfaction to behold the ardour with which he applied himself to overcome the vices he had been most subject to. Pride, sensuality and laziness were the chief: and it was against these he turn'd all his endeavours and declared an irreconcilable war. He began by the first, and as he desired wholy to root it out of his heart, he neglected no means that might help him to succeed in so laborious and difficult an undertaking. He did not content himself with having recourse to God by a fervent and assiduous prayer and humbling himself in his divine presence, at the sight of his own miseries and iniquities; but he moreover added the love and practice of exteriour humiliations, for which he had had so great horrour and aversion, he let no opportunity pass of debasing himself in the opinion of his Superiours and brethren. By these means, Humility, in a short time, took that place in his heart, which pride had occupied. It was not long before this visibly appear'd by the entire change of his outward man. He was no longer that arrogant young man who walk'd with a high air, who could not speak without hautiness, who look'd with eyes of disdain and indignation, up all who dared to contradict him: But a humble Penitent, insatiable after reproaches, confusion and injuries, whose head was ever bow'd towards the earth, whose aspect, gait and speech breathed a certain air of mildness and modesty, which charm'd all who approached him. The late King of England, who did him the honour to speak to him, the last journey he made to La Trappe,* was surprised and moved at it, as were also the noblemen that accompanied Him. Brother Alexius had less difficulty in surmounting his Sensuality than he had found in subduing his Pride: For besides that the common Diet [21] of the house was a help allways at hand towards his effecting it, without any extraordinary efforts, he moreover retrenched whatever might be the least occasion of temptation to him. In this view he refrain'd from the use of fruit, which was the only thing that could please his palate; And thus he reduced himself to a necessity of experiencing no other satisfaction in his meals, but that which hunger and fatigue makes a person find in the most insipid food.

The R.F. Abbot out of consideration for his youth and the weakness of his constitution, often press'd him to take something in a morning before dinner, and even to drink between meals, for to quench an inward heat, which caused in him an insupportable drought; but Brother Alexius, who deem'd himself unworthy of the least dispensation, and look'd upon inconveniences as means presented him by Allmighty God, for repairing the excesses in point of eating, he had run into whilst in the world, earnestly besought the Abbot not to insist upon his taking these helps and indulgences; " because, said he, they did not become a Sinner like him, who ought no where to seek refreshment, but in penitential tears."

This love of penance as well as of humiliations, appear'd still more conspicuous in the repairing of a small fault, he had very innocently committed. One day entring into his Cell (it was in the depth of winter), he there found a bird half dead with cold and hunger, and after His dinner, carried it a little morsel of bread. But as he did this action without the Superiours' leave, his conscience was not long before it reproached him of it, as of a considerable fault. Brother Alexius [22] rejoiced at having so just subject of degrading himself in the minds of his Brethren, fail'd not the next day, accusing himself in their presence, of having stole bread in the Refectory and carried it to his Cell, without mentioning the use he had made of it; which gave occasion to the Novice Master, who at first enquired no further into the circumstances of the thing, to humble him in the most sensible manner. He told him, He could never have imagin'd that a Novice of La Trappe, for to satisfy his intemperance, could have committed an infidelity so unworthy even of an honest man; that he deserved to be deprived of bread for three days. Brother Alexius took this threat for a real injunction; he complied with it the first day with great joy and simplicity, and would have continued the same the two following days, had not his superiours hinder'd him, who were inform'd that he was accomplishing the penance, with which his Master had only threaten'd him. By a like mistake, he once pass'd eight days drinking nothing but water. He was no less assiduous in attacking nor successfull in overcoming laziness, which in the world, had been one of his prevailing vices. He was such a slave to it, that he could not find in his heart to do the least thing that might fatigue him. Of this many many examples might be alledged, which are undoubtedly true since he himself recounted them; but they are so extraordinary, that persons would scarce believe them. Nevertheless hardly ever a Novice was seen at La Trappe more laborious nor more constantly employ'd. His life was a chain of exercises, which so immediately succeeded each other, that they appear'd to be but one action. He was not satisfied with performing in the most exact [23] manner, such as are prescribed in the Regulations of the Monastery; he moreover made a special Rule to himself for his readings, his prayers, the Masses he was to hear or serve, which he disposed in such a method, that leaving no empty spaces in his days, he never was seen to be perplexed in determining what to do with himself (this is to be understood of those hours, which are at the disposal of the Religious). The watchings never seem'd long enough to him nor the labours hard enough. The fervour with which he applied to them, did not hinder his being constant and indefatigable in them; and what might seem incredible, after the account that has been given of his laziness and weakness of constitution, is that he dug as much as two Religious could do. He placed himself allways between those of his brethren, in whom he had observed either less strength or less aptness for that work, in view of lending them a helping hand from time to time, without however diminishing any part of his own particular task; which he did with so much ease and handiness, that one would have taken him for a man brought up from his youth to tilling the earth. He was the same in all works that required vigour and activity; and as he did not allways mesure his zeal by his forces, especially when the business was to carry wood, stones, sand &c from one place to another he took up burdens which any but himself would have sunk under. He would soon have been overpower'd had not the attention of his Superiours moderated his zeal. So active a fervour in the exercises of the body, caused [24] neither disorder nor interruption in the interiour exercises of his piety; for whilst his hands were employ'd in stirring the earth, or in transporting it, his mind ever in heaven and united to God, was intent upon passages of holy Scripture & chiefly the Psalms, which he was carefull to learn by heart. So that the most dissipating occupations, far from being an obstacle to his recollection and prayer, were on the contrary a means whereby he prepared for it; and he never found more sweetness in prayer, than when it had been preceded by hard and constant labour. It was thus Brother Alexius, who consider'd his Body as a slave allways ready to rebell, in a short time, reduced it to a condition which left him little to apprehend from it. He had not as yet finish'd the sixth month of his Noviceship, when he began to perceive he was not of a constitution to bear, for any long time, the yoke of so rigourous a penance. He became subject day and night to troublesome sweatings, which by insensible degrees diminishd his forces, tho' not his courage. He was not therefore either less punctual in his duties, or less fervent in his works, or less mortified in his senses; on the contrary, as he foresaw his course would soon be at an end, he thought it incumbent on him to redouble his endeavours, in order to collect, in the little time he had to live, all the virtues and merits he might have acquired in the space of a longer life. The first step he made to this effect was abandoning himself without any reserve into the hands of his Superiour, for whatever pertains to the exigencies of the body. This conduct freed him [25] from those uneasinesses and distractions which overwhelm imperfect Religious, who desire to reserve a sort of right over their health and lives. He thus found himself in that happy disengagement, which was requisit in order to his labouring successfully in the sanctification of his Soul, without having to apprehend his being drawn from it. Prayer became then his favorit employment. Not content with spending allmost the whole day in this exercise, he gave to it a good part of the night. It was in this time so proper for bewailing his sins, He, after the example of the Prophet, wash'd his bed with his tears. He had received this gift from God in so great abundance, that it was not in his power to hinder them from flowing. Whether he was in prayer, or singing the praises of God, or serving Masses, he allways shed them with equal facility. Nevertheless as he was, in the day time, exposed to the sight of his brethren, he used all his endeavours to keep in his tears, but during the night, he let them freely flow, till such time as sleep closed his eyes. The Novices who laid near Brother Alexius, were not long before they perceived that he pass'd the nights otherwise than in sleeping. As their Cells are only separated by deal boards, the least sigh he fetched was sufficient to awaken his neighbours; They spoke of it several times. Brother Alexius confounded at what would not have greatly displeased a less humble Religious, did all in his power to moderate himself, but it was generally to no effect. One day the Master of Novices asking him why he still [26] continued interrupting his own sleep and that of others, He replied with great simplicity, that he heartily desired his sighs and tears might be troublesome to no one; that altho' he stood in extream necessity of weeping and mourning, he would refrain from it, if it was in his power. " But, he added, what can I do; I wake from time to time, during the night, and the first thought that then occurrs to my mind, is that I have offended J. C. that, millions of time, I have crucified anew him who makes me feel so great effects of his mercy; To this reflection is join'd the remembrance of the conduct so full of love, he has held over me from my tender infancy: My crimes and ingratitude present themselves, at the same time, to my mind; All this affects my heart in such manner, that I cannot find relief nor ease but in my tears." What is most surprising, is that this spirit of compunction which never left him, far from making him look sorrowfull, musing and dejected, inspired him with uncommon chearfullness and continual joy, which flowing from the heart as from it's source, spread itself upon his face and throughout all his actions. This disposition he preserved to the last moment of his life, and indeed no one experienced more than he did the truth of this saying of an ancient Father, that tears of penance include a most spiritual joy, in the same manner, as honey is found in wax. Brother Alexius took great care not only to preserve this precious gift, but also to accompany it with all the virtues sutable to the holiness of his Profession. His humility was profound, his obedience prompt and blind, his piety tender and solid, his charity for his brethren had no bounds. The affection he had for his Superiours, was sincere, cordial and inviolable.

In fine, his love for J. C. was so [27] lively and ardent, that he could not think of him without shedding a flood of tears. His heart inflamed with this divine fire, gave him scarce any rest during the nights; and he own'd to the Master of Novices, that he spent good part of them in weeping over a little crucifix, which hung upon his breast. It was this his ardent love of our divine Saviour, that inspired him with so tender and so extraordinary devotion for the holy sacrifice of our altars, that it would have been his delight to have employ'd his whole time, in hearing and serving Masses, and a judgment may be made of the graces he received from Allmighty God, in this divine action, by the indifference or rather disgust he then found in himself for what regarded the nourishment and ease of his body. He was highly pleased when any Secular Priests ask'd to say Mass in time of the Community's Dinner, he never fail'd serving them and was glad to take from thence a pretext of dispensing himself from going to take his meal at Second table. At last this pious fraud was found out, and the Novice Master, who let slip no occasion of humbling and contradicting him, forbid him serving Masses for the space of a month; which was to him a kind of mortification allmost insupportable. However Brother Alexius was not so entirely applied to his own particular sanctification, as to neglect that of his Neighbour. As his Charity was no less Catholick than his Faith, it extended without reserve to all mankind; and he had allotted for each day an hour of special prayer, for to recommend to God the necessities of all; But he had nothing so deeply at heart, as the conversion [28] of those from whom he held his life. Nothing indeed seem'd wanting to make his happiness compleat, but the satisfaction of seeing his Father and Mother embrace the Catholick Religion. He spared no endeavours towards obtaining of Allmighty God their change. He, at all hours of the day, offer'd up his tears, sighs and prayers. To which he added not only the severities of the common penance, but also particular austerities: and this he did with so much humility and fervour, that God at last granted what he so earnestly desired. Colonel Grême, who ever since his being in France and at the Court of S[t] Germain's, had shewn a great dislike to the Catholick Religion, whether he thought himself bound in conscience not to quit that wherein he had been educated, or that a false point of honour detain'd him in it, could no longer resist the inspiration of the grace of God soliciting him to visit his son at La Trappe.* Lord Perth gave him a letter of recommendation to the Ancient Abbot, at the latter end whereof, after deploring the misfortune of this Gentleman, who, said he, had no Religion at all, he cries out: May it please Allmighty God, that the air of La Trappe undeceive him, and that the example of his son may move him to a change of sentiments! This ardent wish was soon consider'd as a true prediction. Colonel Grême had no sooner enter'd into conversation with Brother Alexius, but the Grace of God acting in concert with his aimable Son, he beheld the darkness of his mind and heart to disappear in an instant. The prodigious change of his Son seem'd to him so evident and palpable a Miracle, that he was forced to own within himself, that no other than the true Religion could of a young libertin wholy addicted to impiety, hautiness, immodesty, blasphemming, form a chast, mild, pious man; in a word a humble Penitent. The conviction of his mind soon after pass'd into his heart, and he left La Trappe, in a resolution [29] of entring into the pale of the Church; a step which neither complaisance, nor the regard he had for his prince, could ever have engaged him to take.

He was no sooner return'd to S[t] Germain's, but he got himself instructed. The Grace of God took such entire possession of all the avenues of his heart, before he left La Trappe, that Truth enter'd into it without combate or opposition. Truth appear'd to him with all it's charms and he would have directly embraced it, with all the Ceremonies prescribed by the Church, if the desire of making abjuration in the Abbot of La Trappe's hands, had not induced him to defer it for six months, that is to say, unto the day of his Son's pronouncing his solemn vows.

This term being come, Colonel Grême set of for La Trappe, accompanied by two R. F. Capucins, one of whom was his eldest [elder] Son.† It was but two days, since the R. F. the Ancient Abbot,‡ had ended upon ashes, his suffering life, as holily as he had spent it, when they arrived at La Trappe.

The following day§ he made his abjuration in the hands of the R. F. Abbot, at the end of the high Mass, at which Brother Alexius pronounced his vows in presence of the whole Community, of my Lord Perth and of many other persons. His Lordship would have been at the height of his joy that day, if the death of the R. F. Ancient had not a little moderated it. He was the more affected with this loss, as having flatter'd himself in leaving S[t] Germain's, of having, once more, the comfort of entertaining one of the men in the universe, for whom he had the greatest esteem, friendship and consideration. He had long desired it most earnestly, but could not effect it since the time that the King of England had confided to him [30] the education of the Prince of Wales, his son. But nothing could more contribute to ease his pain, than the sincere conversion of his Cousin Colonel Grême and above all, that of Brother Alexius, whose piety, meekness, humility and courage surprised him beyond expression. And indeed the comfort he felt in beholding all the seeds of virtue which he had heretofore cast into the heart of this prodigal child, to revive and fructify, was the more sensible, as he consider'd it as a reward of the care he had taken of his education. How great soever was the satisfaction of Brother Alexius in having contributed to his Father's becoming a humble Child of the Church, the remembrance of his Mother's unhappy condition, who was still in Scotland involved in error, prevented his tasting all the fruits of this conquest. In view of procuring her the same happiness, he ask'd leave of the Abbot to write to her. As he was at that time wholly penetrated with the graces and blessings he had so lately received in his second Baptism, he employ'd to persuade and convince her, all that the natural tenderness of a son purified by Grace and animated with sentiments full of life and ardour, can inspire of strong and moving expressions to touch the heart of a Mother. God was not pleased to give him in this world the comfort of hearing of the success of his letter, nor of the arrival of his Mother in France, which was soon follow'd by her Conversion,* to the end that the uncertainty he was in in regard to her state might constantly keep him in fear & humility. Brother Alexius having done all in his power, towards procuring [31] the life of the soul for those from whom [he] had received that of the body, thought no more but of making a holy use of his silence and infirmities, or to say better, of preparing himself for death, which he perceived to be approaching. He had for six months past been in a full persuasion, that he should not long outlive his Profession. In effect, a few days after, he was seized with a fluxion on his breast, and strong feaver attended with all the accidents that render this disease mortal, in an air so unwholesome as is that of La Trappe.

He nevertheless went on as usual following the Community in all the exercises of penance and regularity, avoiding to the utmost of

* Probably about 1702, as under date of 19 June 1703 there is an entry in the Parochial Registers of Saint Germain-en-Laye recording the baptism of Henrietta, daughter of Dominic Dufour and his wife, in which "Anne Graham, femme du colonel Graham, écossais," figures as Godmother to the child. She died there five years later, on 19 September 1708, as shown by the following entry in the same registers: "1708. 20 Sept[e] Inhumé Anne Smyth, femme de M. Patrice Græme, colonel écossais de la famille de Montrose en Ecosse. 68 ans." Her son, Fr. Archangel, is one of the signatories. his power, the helps and little comforts that were offer'd him: which he continued to the first Sunday of Lent,* when the orders of the Abbot obliged him to go to the Infirmary. He had not been there many days, when the feaver and cough encreased to such a degree, that it was thought he would not pass the Lent. Brother Alexius who was of the same opinion, express'd his joy at it, and neglected nothing in order to dispose himself for appearing with confidence before Allmighty God. It has already been observed that at the beginning of his Noviceship, not finding himself, as it were, sufficiently constrain'd by the multitude of Regulations, which leave but very little time to the disposal of the Religious, he had moreover made a regular distribution of that little time, and of the exercises which were to fill it. He got it approved by the Master of Novices, to the end obedience might regulate all his actions and undertakings. He follow'd this Rule and kept it exactly [32] even during his sickness, so that he never was seen without occupation. Prayer, manual work, pious Reading, the reciting of the divine office succeeded each other, in a constant order and at the same hours; in so much that not having appointed in the number of his regular exercises that of warming himself, he passed three months in the Infirmary without approaching to the fire, excepting two or three times in obedience to the Infirmarian who order'd him to do it. It was by this exact fidelity and assiduity in all his duties, He deserved to receive from God, the greatest grace a sick man can aspire to; I mean an ardent desire of death, attended with a profound peace and entire confidence as will be seen hereafter.

Notwithstanding the great care that was taken for the reestablishment of his health, they could not stop the progress of the feaver, which became dayly more and more violent. As the extream weakness of his constitution gave room to apprehend his being suddenly carried of, it was judged proper to administer the Last Sacraments to him. He desired, after the example of his Brethren, to go and receive them, in the Church; But it was necessary to carry him in a Chair, by reason of a violent oppression, which render'd him uncapable of making a step. From that day his weakness considerably encreased as well as his evils. He found himself so reduced, that he could not sit for any time, without fainting away: this obliged him to keep his bed near six weeks, tho' he was so spent that it was thought he had not four days to live. It would be difficult to express the joy and patience with which he suffer'd not only all the different accidents of his disease, but also the hardness of his straw bed, which was the occasion of much pain and [33] incommodity to him afterwards: for as he was subject, day and night, to great sweats, and was, at the same time, so extreamly wore away that his nerves and arteries were cover'd only with his skin, he soon found himself flay'd in many places, and some days before his death, it was observed in changing his Serge shirt, that the side on which he usually laid, was quite gangreen'd, however, far from complaining or shewing the least concern, his countenance was always smiling and contented, which gave to understand that his sufferings were the least of his troubles.

This equality of mind and tranquility of soul were not the only virtues he made appear during his sickness. His charity towards his Brethren, and particularly his humility, were no less remarkable. Not content with considering himself as the least and most despicable of all men, he desired to be look'd upon as such and to be treated upon that footing: which virtue is the more rare, that it often happens that our pride which sometimes induces us to humble and demean ourselves, cannot support humiliations from others. At the time of his most sensible pains and greatest weakness, he earnestly besought his Infirmarians to prefer the necessities of his Brethren to his and to serve him only in the last place. And upon one of the Infirmarians asking him one day, if he thought himself more virtuous and patient than others, he answer'd: " It is not for that, Brother, But by reason that being the most defective and miserable of all, they are more deserving of your attention; and moreover their necessities are more pressing than mine." This humility and Charity appear'd again when being seized with a [34] bloody flux, which lasted him till death, it was necessary to remove the sick who were in his room to another place, least the evil should spread. He shew'd not the least uneasiness at being left alone in a condition which laid him under a necessity of continual assistance; and the fear he had of incommoding one sick person, who was willing to continue with him, in the absence of the Infirmarians, made him often solicite that Brother to leave him. " Go, Dear Brother, said he, with an air of tenderness and gratitude, My infirmity makes it excessively mortifying to be in the same Chamber with me, I do not deserve to be help'd with so great application and diligence." But his Charity appear'd still much more in an action which may be said to be the perfection of Charity, since according to the word of J. C. himself, no one can give a greater proof of his Charity, than by laying down his life for that of his friends. There was in the same Chamber with Brother Alexius, before he had the bloody flux, a sick person at the extremity. The Infirmarian who constantly attended and kept by him, stept for a few moments, into a neighbouring chamber. The sick man, in this interval, wanting something, made a sign. Brother Alexius who perceived the Infirmarian to be absent, jump'd hastily of his bed, to go and help him. He was got already to the middle of the room, when the Infirmarian returnd, who surprised to see him upon his legs and without a stick, thought at first he was delirious, and [35] ask'd him what he mean'd to do.

" I am going, answer'd Brother Alexius, to help my Brother who calls." and as the Infirmarian represented to him that he exposed himself to expire in the way, he replied sighing: " Alas ! I am not worthy to die in serving J. C. in the person of my Brethren." It must be observed that for the space of eight or ten days past, Brother Alexius had been so extreamly weak, that two persons were necessary for to move him in his bed or for to get him up and frequently even he fainted away in the arms of those who render'd him this service. If this action shews how great was his Charity for his Brethren, it is no less a proof of the little value he set on his own life. And indeed it may be said with truth, the desire of death was so violent in him, that nothing could exceed it. No one could go near him, but he would enquire with a holy eagerness, if he had much longer to live; and according to the answer that was made him, joy or sorrow was observed on his countenance. One day the Infirmarian told him that he had too great a desire of dying and that he was going to beseech Allmighty God to prolong his life. Brother Alexius alarm'd at this, replied weeping and with an admirable simplicity: "And I will go and beseech him not to hear you; for your prayer, as the Prophet says, would become your sin," (these were his words.)

In short this desire of death possessed him in so extraordinary a manner, that it occasion'd his committing a considerable fault, which sincerity will not [36] allow us to pass over. He had for some days a loathing for every kind of nourishment. The Infirmarian thought proper to give him one night the yolk of an egg, which fortified him and made him sleep. Brother Alexius perceiving, the next day, the good effect it had had, and fearing lest it should prolong his life, beg'd the Infirmarian to give him no more, adding that he had been indisposed by it. At that same instant being sensible of his fault, he sent immediatly for R. F. Abbot; He declared to him with much grief and repentance, that his desire of dying had occasion'd his telling a great lie, that he ask'd pardon thereof of God and hoped to obtain it, because the ardent desire he had of being speedily united to him for ever, did not allow him to make so much reflexion on what he was going to say. The Abbot after having enjoined him some light penance, took occasion from his fault to make him observe that the great desire of death he expressed, might perhaps be an effect rather of self love than of the love of God, whose motions are ever tranquill, moderate and submissive to his orders; as indeed there was some room to apprehend somewhat of too great presumption.

The Superiours sometimes represented to him that they could not conceive how he had the rashness to desire death with so great eagerness: for, said they to him, Do you think that eighteen months of penance are sufficient to expiate the infinit number of sins you have committed and those impious jests you have made of the mysteries of our Religion, even after knowing the Truth? [37] They added what was stronger in order to moderate his ardour. But all they could say to him, was not capable either to weaken his confidence or to lessen the violent desire of death with which he was possessed. To some he answer'd, that he fear'd indeed a God, whose dreadfull judgments had made the greatest Saints tremble, But that he should think himself wanting in what is owing to the merits of the Blood of Christ, was he not blindly to abandon himself into the arms of his mercy. To others, he said, it was true he had been so miserable as to offend God by millions of crimes, and by his jests on the Catholick Religion; but that the divine Goodness was still greater than his sins, and that, since his being retired at La Trappe, he had not ceased bewailing them day and night and doing penance for them. This naturally leads us to make a short reflection on the conduct of Allmighty God, which is ever admirable in his Saints. In the life of Brother Basile it was observed, that after having lived in the world in an entire innocence, after having passed seven years in penance, and suffer'd for near four years extream pains and infirmities, he nevertheless so fear'd the judgments of God, as sometimes to fall allmost into diffidence and discouragement; and Brother Alexius after a youth spent in wickedness, and but a short penance, has so steady and constant a confidence in the divine mercies, that nothing is able to daunt him. This gives us to understand that the remission of the greatest crimes, is owing neither to length of life nor to the severity of penance, but to a great love; Remittuntur ei peccata multa, quoniam dilexit multum. Luc. 7C. 47. [38] And indeed it may be said, Brother Alexius loved God, with the whole extent and vigour of his heart; and that his conversion was not only, as the Prophet Isaias says, as deep as his errors had been, but that also these words of another Prophet may be applied to him: " Your Spirit made you stray in removing yourself at a distance from God; but when you shall return again to him, you will apply yourself to seek him, with ten times more ardour." Dom Prior who had been his Master, desiring to know with certainty whether this great desire of death was grounded upon humility, told him he was to make a publick Confession of all his sins. This proposal, as hard and humbling as it is, gave him so great joy, that he could not rest, till he had obtaind leave to make it.

R. F. Abbot, for to quiet him, granted this leave, but on condition that he should not make it, till he was laid upon ashes. But God was satisfied with the disposition of his heart. The desired day at last arrived. Death, with which Brother Alexius, had long since contracted, as it were, a familiarity, appear'd still more charming to him near, than it had done at a distance. He was laid upon ashes. He beheld himself thereon, with the greater joy, as he expected then to make a publick confession of his sins, as he had been promised; but the prayers for the agonizing being ended, he found himself so oppressed that he could not execute this design. He contented himself with giving to understand [39] by half words, that he wish'd to be buried, out of the Church Yard. He preserved on the Straw that confidence and tranquillity, he had shewn during his sickness. But nothing was more surprising than to behold him at the gates of death in continual transports of joy, sometimes he embraced his brethren, and took them by the hand saying farewell, with an agreable smile, which convinced them of the happy assurance he had of his going to possess a better life.

In so much that his condition could not be better compared, than to that of a favorite, who after long banishment, is call'd home by his Prince, for to enter more than ever into favour with him.

After the Community was withdrawn, an English Novice who was orderd to stay, ask'd him what he should do to succeed in his vocation. Brother Alexius answer'd only these words: " Be faith-full to God, Dear Brother, and God will be faithfull to you." two or three hours before his death, he was seized with violent convulsions. he tossed about like one that is choaking and striving to deliver himself. As his pains were most acute, there no longer appear'd on his countenance, that chearfullness which was usual to him, but this change did not reach his heart. He incessantly call'd upon God, saying: In manus tuas commendo spiritum meum. Nothing was more moving than the prayers he addressed to our Blessed Lady, who after J. C. had ever been the object of his love and piety. He call'd her to his assistance, and continually repeated the words recited in her office: [40] Maria Mater Gratiæ, Mater Misericordiæ tu nos ab hoste protege, et hora mortis suscipe. At last his convulsions ceased, his countenance recover'd it's former mildness and tranquility; and Dom Prior asking him in what dispositions he went to God. " In a disposition, he answer'd, of love and confidence. I have no apprehension of his judgments, but on the contrary, am filled with joy, at the prospect of y^{e} happiness, which is prepared for me." He assured him afterwards that from the time of his conversion, he had ever had J. C. present to him, and that he had not words to express his gratitude to him for all his favours.

He pass'd one more half hour in making acts of the love of God, and in giving to our Lord J. C. marks of the most tender piety. He also frequently kissed an Image of our Lady he held in his hand. It was in these happy dispositions, he slept the sleep of the just, the 21st of May 1701. seven months wanting nine days after his Profession and in the twenty second year of his life.*

His course was soon run, but it was with a perfect fervour and fidelity; and it was void of those lessenings of devotion and piety, which the most holy lives have difficulty to screen themselves from, when they are long. Consummatus in brevi explevit tempora multa. Sap. 4, v. 13.

* This should be twenty-third year of his life. The French is " âgé de vingt-deux ans," he was already twenty-two years old when professed in the previous October.

A LIST OF GUESTS AT EVERINGHAM PARK, CHRISTMAS, 1662.

CONTRIBUTED BY RICHARD CECIL WILTON, B.A.,
ARCHIVIST AT EVERINGHAM PARK.

Among the documents preserved at Everingham Park, near Market Weighton, Yorkshire, is a narrow roll of parchment, measuring $35\frac{1}{2} \times 8$ inches, bearing a list of the names of persons present at a family gathering there at Christmas, 1662. The list is of much interest, and is printed here with the permission of Her Grace the Duchess of Norfolk. The entertainment was held, it may be supposed, to celebrate not only the restoration of Charles II but also the recovery of their estates by the Constable family. All Cavalier families suffered during the Commonwealth, but especially the Catholic families. The Constables of Everingham were well known both for their religion and for their loyalty, but one remarkable circumstance had probably been a protection to them during the worst times. The head of the senior branch of the Constable family was Sir William Constable, of Holme-on-Spalding-Moor, great-great-grandson of that Sir Robert Constable who had been so famous as a leader of the "Pilgrimage of Grace." Sir William, having married a Fairfax, took the side of the Parliament, and was, indeed, one of the Regicides; but though his politics were so opposite to those of his kinsmen at the neighbouring village of Everingham, he appears to have exerted himself to protect them from utter ruin. Unpublished documents at Everingham Park show that it was arranged that a Mr. Rushworth should purchase the estates, acting all the while in the interests of the family, so that perhaps the Constables came off better after the Civil War than some other Catholics.

At Christmas, 1662, they seem to have endeavoured to gather round them all their Catholic friends and relatives for a great feast of rejoicing, the celebration lasting twelve days—that is, from Christmas to Epiphany, or Twelfthnight.

We notice in this document that the Constables entertained a considerable house party. There were altogether twelve Constables present—some of whom were guests—and ten other visitors. In addition to these we are told of the neighbours invited from the little towns and villages near Everingham, or from Constable estates in other parts of Yorkshire. They would, no doubt, be Catholics, tenants or dependents of the Constables, and of other Catholic families in the district. These would form a large assemblage of people, which explains the liberal expenditure upon provisions. A sum of more than a hundred pounds was accounted for in this way—representing, according to the present value of money, a considerable outlay.

The part of the East Riding known as Howdenshire was, in the seventeenth century, very largely Catholic. Even to this day most of the places mentioned in this list have some Catholic population. This is to be explained by the fact that so many of the County Families of the district had retained their faith. Of these the Constables, Langdales, Stapletons, and Dolemans were among the most conspicuous. The Langdales, although near neighbours, did not attend the Everingham celebration. Marmaduke Langdale, the famous Royalist general of the Civil War, had previously bought Holme-on-Spalding-Moor from Sir William Constable, the Regicide before mentioned, who had succeeded during his nefarious career in dissipating his whole patrimony. General Langdale had therefore been created, by Charles II, Lord Langdale of Holme-on-Spalding-Moor. He died just before this great Everingham celebration, and the event may have been too recent to allow of the presence of his son, the second Lord, at a festive occasion. But it appears, from documents at Everingham, that the families were friendly, and one of Sir Philip's uncles was a Langdale. The senior branch of the Langdale family had also lived for generations in the neighbourhood, at Houghton Hall, where Langdales still reside. They were the mainstay of Catholicism at Weighton, one of the places mentioned. Their absence from Everingham on this occasion is difficult to understand. But we do not know the circumstances of the time, and the house at Everingham was probably full to overflowing. Everingham Park at that time was a partially Elizabethan mansion, of which a rough sketch by Warburton has been preserved.

It had been the home of this younger branch of the Constable family since the reign of Henry VII, when it had come to them by marriage. An account of the house exists, giving the dimensions of the hall and chapel, which were almost equal in size. Two of the bedrooms are described in 1545 respectively as the " Norfolk " and " Suffolk " chambers. This may be a tradition from the times of Henry VIII, as after the overthrow of the Pilgrimage of Grace the king stayed on his visit to the North at the neighbouring hall of Holme, the seat of Sir Robert Constable, who had recently been executed for the part he had taken in the Pilgrimage. The Everingham Constable of the time had sided with the king, and it is possible that the Duke of Suffolk, if in attendance on Henry, stayed at Everingham when the king was at Holme, and that the Duke of Norfolk had also stayed there either then, or on his campaign when he was so ruthlessly putting down the Yorkshire rising.

There is still at Everingham a badge of the Pilgrimage of Grace, which is supposed to be that used by Sir Robert himself, and which at some time has been converted into a burse for use at Mass. For though the Sir Marmaduke of those days was officially opposed to the Pilgrimage, the Lady Constable of the time was in sympathy with the Pilgrims.* Perhaps it is to her we owe the preservation of this relic. Her maiden name was Barbara Sothill—and as the heiress of Everingham and of the ancient families of Poucher, Everingham, and Pagnell, she brought, by her marriage with Sir Marmaduke Constable, all her estates to the Constables of the younger branch.

The family always remained Catholic, though probably in the reign of Elizabeth the Constables compromised, and like so many English Catholics at this time would be known as " Schismatics," which term was used to describe people in this country who were certainly not Protestants, but rather unfaithful Catholics. This subject has been ably treated by the late Wilfrid Ward in the chapter headed " English Papists " in his life of Cardinal Wiseman.

But at last, in the reign of James I, the grandfather and namesake of the Sir Philip of this document openly declared himself a Catholic.†

* See P.R.O., Letters and Papers of Henry VIII, xii (1), 730; also The Pilgrimage of Grace, by M. H. and R. Dodds, ii, 216.

† See Foley, Records, S.J., iii, 205.

His son, Robert Constable, S.J., uncle of our Sir Philip, has left us in his "Responsa" an account of the family as it was in 1616, where he says "I am nineteen years of age, and was born at Everingham, Yorkshire . . . . . By the goodness of God the faith has been widely defused among my family. Very few or none of my nearest friends but what are Catholics."* From the time of James I we find that the Constables paid their fines regularly for non-attendance at the parish church, several lists of fines occurring amongst the family papers. Our Sir Philip's father, Sir Marmaduke Constable, married a Frances Metham, and his sister was the wife of Sir Thomas Metham, of Metham, near Howden, Yorks.

The Everingham family suffered much in life as well as in property during the Civil War. Two of Sir Philip's brothers were killed—Marmaduke at Edgehill, and Michael at Hopton Heath, while his brother-in-law, Sir Thomas Metham, fell at Marston Moor. In the first year of the war King Charles I created Sir Philip a Baronet.

Sir Philip married Anne, daughter of Sir Edmund Roper, of Eltham; according to the tradition in the family she was a fervently devout lady. Two of her sons became Benedictine monks, and her daughter, Barbara, was a Nun, O.S.B., at Cambrai. The other daughter, Katherine, married Edward Sheldon, of Steeple Barton, Oxon., and Sir Philip, when a widower, went to reside with the Sheldons, leaving Everingham to be the residence of his eldest son, Marmaduke, who had married during the war Anne, daughter of Richard Sherborne, of Stonyhurst. These are the Squire Marmaduke and his Lady of our MS. Sir Philip evidently came to Everingham for this entertainment, but eventually died at Steeple Barton, his daughter's home in Oxfordshire, in 1664. There is an excellent portrait of him at Everingham on wood, by John Jonson or Janson.

Sir Philip Constable. Baronett.†
Mar: Constable his sonne.‡

* Foley, Records, iii, 206.

† Sir Philip Constable of Everingham was the first baronet. As already stated, he married Anne, only daughter of Sir Edmund Roper, of Eltham, co. Kent; at the time to which this document refers he was a widower. During the Civil War he took an active part on the Royalist side, and his estates were sequestered by the Parliamentary government. He died February, 1664; for his Will see C.R.S., iv, 269.

‡ Marmaduke Constable was later the second baronet: eldest son of Sir Philip; born April 22, 1619. His contract of marriage with Anne Shirburne, of Stonyhurst, Lancs., is among the Everingham MSS. (Series 2, No. 30). Like all the Constables of Everingham, a Cavalier, he suffered much during the Civil War, and under the Commonwealth. He lived at Everingham during his father's latter years, and was the Squire there when this feast was celebrated in 1662. In the year of the Popish Plot he was imprisoned at York and had to go into exile (Everingham MSS., 141). He died on the Continent, and was buried at St. Monica's Church, Louvain, before the Lady Altar, on Aug. 20, 1680 (Constable Pedigree). Portraits, which probably represent Sir Marmaduke and his Lady, are to be seen at Everingham. In C.R.S., xiii, 12, there is a letter or treatise addressed to this Sir Marmaduke in 1663, by his sister, Dame Barbara Constable, O.S.B., with a portrait of this Nun, from a beautiful painting now at Burton Constable (the identity of this portrait has, however, been questioned).

* Anne Constable, senior, was the wife of Marmaduke Constable, of Everingham, and the Lady of the House on this occasion. She probably signed this document, as may be judged by comparing the fragment of a signature here with the signature of this lady on other Everingham papers. From what we read of her in the Everingham MSS. we gather that she was a person of strong character, with a remarkable capacity for business. These traits were called out by the difficulties in which the family was placed during the Commonwealth, and for some years after the Restoration. Her marriage with Marmaduke Constable took place in 1649; some of her letters, written while he was paying his addresses to her, survive—very dainty little documents (Everingham MSS., 2nd Series, 29D).

There is at Everingham a copy of a petition by Mrs. Constable to the Parliamentary Government, begging for more lenient treatment on account of her delicate state of health. For an account of her embittered financial dispute with her brother, Richard Shirburne, of Stonyhurst, see Stonyhurst Magazine, Oct., 1916, p. 1730. Her father, Richard Shirburne, senior, died at Everingham in Feb., 1667; his Will, which was very favourable to his daughter, Lady Constable, was disputed by young Mr. Shirburne, as having been unduly influenced. To prevent the scandal of a quarrel between two such prominent Catholic families coming into court, the matter was submitted to the arbitration of some Catholic gentlemen presided over by the 2nd Lord Langdale; Lady Constable came off victorious (Everingham MSS., 2nd Series, 98–115). The trouble of the Popish Plot, when her husband went abroad, perhaps hastened her death, which took place in 1679. Dame Constable was buried at St. Martin's, Coney Street, York (Constable Pedigree).

† Philip Constable, junior; born 1651. The only son of Marmaduke Constable, he succeeded as third baronet in 1680, and married Lady Margaret Radcliffe, daughter of the first Earl of Derwentwater. James II appointed him Deputy Lieutenant of the East Riding (Everingham MSS., 2nd Series, 152). At the Revolution he was permitted to go abroad. On his return he was more than once imprisoned during the reign of William III, and there is a note of his expenses in the Tower among the Everingham MSS. (1st Series). Through his marriage with a Radcliffe he was connected with Sir John Fenwick, which may have involved him in trouble. He died in London in 1705. There is preserved at Everingham an interesting collection of news letters and broadsheets made by this baronet; one of these, giving an account of the death of Charles II, is described in C.R.S., iv, 271. The present family at Everingham is descended from Anne, daughter of this Sir Philip, who married William Haggerston, of Haggerston. There are portraits of Sir Philip and Lady Margaret, his wife, at Everingham, the latter being a fine picture ascribed to Lely, and there are two portraits of this Philip Constable in his infancy, with curious legends.

‡ Anne Constable, junior; born 1655; professed as a Nun at St. Monica's, Louvain, 1672. There is a letter with regard to her vocation in the Everingham MSS. (2nd Series, 127A). There is also at Everingham a portrait of her as a very young Nun in the dress of an Augustinian Canoness (see, for an allusion to her, C.R.S., xiii, 12).

§ Elizabeth Constable; born 1657. She died young. Everingham MSS., 2nd Series, 122B, gives the expenses of the funeral of Miss Elizabeth Constable at St. Martin's, Coney Street, York, 1668. The Constables had a house in York where they very often resided.

‖ Mr. Robert Shirburne. This was Robert Shirburne, of Wolfhouse, esq., who died 1668–9. He was the son of John Shirburne, of Wolfhouse, and Mary Green, his wife. He married Dorothy, daughter of Sir Edward, Mansfield, of Marlow, co. Bucks. He was apparently much associated with his distant cousin, Anne Shirburne, the "Mrs. Constable" of this document, having lent her husband, Marmaduke Constable, money when the family at Everingham was at a low ebb during the Commonwealth time. There are letters at Everingham from Alexander Shirburne, brother of this Robert, who, when he was reduced to great poverty, appears to have been employed by his relatives, the Constables, in various ways. Alexander is interesting as being probably the person who wrote the account of the death of King Charles II alluded to above, and now preserved at Everingham in the original MS. (see Hist. MSS. Commission, 9th Report, Appendix, Part II, p. 459; and C.R.S., iv, 271). Reference may also be made for this family to the History of the Family of Sherborn, by Charles Davies Sherborn (2 vols., 1901–18).

There are many letters at Everingham addressed to Robert Shirburne, who seems to have resided there in his latter years.

* Mr. Waulgrave—probably as now spelt "Waldegrave." In a letter at Everingham from Fr. Thornton, S.J., dated in the early eighteenth century, reference is made to the apostacy of the then Lord Waldegrave, and the name is spelt "Wallgrave." The "Mr. Waulgrave" who is mentioned in this document as being at Everingham in 1662, was perhaps the grandson of the famous old Cavalier, Sir Edward Waldegrave, first baronet, of that family, who joined the King's forces at the age of seventy, and distinguished himself during the Civil War at Saltash, in Cornwall. Sir Edward's son, the second baronet, Sir Henry Waldegrave, who died in 1658, married twice, and had large families by both wives: it seems likely that this Mr. Waulgrave at Everingham may have been one of the sons of Sir Henry.

At Everingham there is a letter written apparently by this same gentleman, and dated March, 1666. It is signed "Waulgrave," and the initial seems to be "E." The letter is addressed to the writer's children, and is described as his last message to them. The document is on bad paper, very much decayed, and part of it is torn off, but it can be made out that Mr. Waulgrave tells his children "to be faithful to the Roman Catholic Religion," and also "to be loyal to the King, God's vicegerent upon earth, for whom you will stand as long as you stand for the truth of the Roman Faith." He tells them also not to seek promotion at Court, and urges them to be good to their mother, and the younger obedient to their eldest brother, William. Another paper found near this letter, probably written by Mr. Waulgrave's wife, mentions the date of their marriage as 1634, and gives the dates of birth of eight children —Elizabeth, Isabel, William (spelt Wileem), George, Charles, John, George (there are two called George), and Laura. The paper ends "My Lo. died on the 7 of April 1666, in the forty seven, (or four), year of his age." It will be noted in relation to this date that Mr. Waulgrave's letter was written when he was evidently dying in March, 1666 (Everingham MSS., 2nd Series, 92 and 93).

† Mr. David Constable; was first cousin once removed to the Sir Philip Constable, of Everingham, mentioned in this MS. His father, Thomas Constable, married Anne Marston, and his grandfather, Robert Constable, the son of the Sir Philip Constable, of Everingham, who died in 1619, married Jane Dolman, of Pocklington. This Robert Constable was also the father of Robert Constable, of Hough, who is mentioned later in this document as being a guest at Everingham. According to the Constable pedigree preserved at Everingham, David Constable would be about fifteen years old at this time, and was apparently being brought up at Everingham, as his name occurs with the family party, and not among the guests.

‡ As regards "Mr. Crossley, Schoolmaster," there appears to be no information. He was apparently tutor to the young Philip Constable, of Everingham, later the third baronet, then a boy about eleven years old, and to Philip's cousin, David, mentioned above. It is possible that he may have been the Priest at Everingham, using—as so often was the case—an assumed name.

* John Elyker—Servant to Sir Philip. In the Will of Sir Philip Constable, first baronet, dated 1664, an "Elyker" is mentioned: though there he is described as "Thomas Eliker," it seems likely to be the same person, as perhaps in this list the wrong Christian name is given, and the surname spelt differently. In the Will we read—"I give the rest of my wearing cloathes of any sort to my servant Thom Eliker." And in another part of the Will—"Such monies as shall appear due to my servant Thomas Ellikar" (see C.R.S., iv, 269).

† Bryan Harryman—Portor. A "Harriman" is mentioned in Sir Philip's Will—"I give to ffranke Harriman the suit and coat I bought last." This may have been the porter's brother.

‡ "Margaritt Warden for the Nursery"—is only described by her Christian name; she was so well known as the old family nurse that it was unnecessary to mention her surname. Among the other servants mentioned the names of Thomas Liptvott and Will Scott occur in the Will of George Constable in 1672. Osgoeby or Osgonby, Plaxton, Stevenson, Scott, and Simpson are names still known in the neighbourhood, the three last being particularly common.

§ Geo. Constable; what you please—probably the author of this document. He is described in a paper at Everingham by Anne Lady Constable as "Mr. George Constable our steward." In his Will, which is preserved among the Everingham papers, he speaks of Sir Marmaduke Constable as "his good master"; and also refers to his "fellow servants." Sir Philip Constable in his Will, says—"As concerning the moneyes of mine remaining now in George Constable's hands I do give and bequeath as followeth. Imp^{s} to the said George Constable 20^{l}," and later in the Will he says, "to my cousin George Constable one of the suites I left at Everingham which he pleaseth."

George Constable's description of himself in this MS. as "What you please" is no doubt intended to be humorous. His position in the family appears to have been somewhat anomalous as neither his own name, nor those of his brothers mentioned in his Will, occur in the Constable pedigree. He was apparently not a Constable in the legitimate line. In his Will George Constable leaves a considerable sum of money—more than £200. Among other items we find "To my good friend Mr. Poskett one pound." Also he gives "to Mr. Philip and Mr. Thomas Constable for the comfort of my soul ten pounds." Philip and Thomas were the sons of Sir Philip Constable and were Benedictine Monks. George also leaves ten pounds "to Miss Anne Constable who is at Louvain, imploring the same comfort from her and the Religious of that house." This is, of course, the Anne Constable mentioned in this document in 1662, when she was a child. The Will of George Constable is dated ten years later, 1672 (Everingham MSS., 2nd Series, 127A).

* Robert Constable of Hough, Esq.—the first-named of "Those that kept their Christmas at Everingham"—first cousin of Sir Philip Constable. He is described as of Hough, having married Eleanor Thorold, heiress of Hough, in Lincolnshire (Constable Pedigree).

† Mr. Philip. In the Pedigree it is stated that he married Mary Townley, of Townley, Lancs., and that he was living when the Pedigree was made in 1666. He was the eldest son of R. Constable, of Hough.

‡ Mr. Peter—a younger son of Robert Constable, of Hough. He is mentioned in the Constable pedigree as having died without issue.

§ Robert Doleman of Pocklington, Esq., also of Badsworth, co. Yorks.; died 1694. He was indicted and fined in 1664 for non-attendance at the parish church (Dolman Pedigree).

‖ His Ladye—first wife of the above; died 1676; née Catharine Thorold, daughter of Edmund Thorold, of High Hall in Hough, co. Lincs. (Dolman Pedigree).

¶ Robert his Sonne—must at this time have been quite a child. As little Miss Elizabeth Constable, who is mentioned on this list, was not six at the time, Robert may have been about the same age. According to the Dolman pedigree he died in 1730. He married the widow of a Mr. Dalton, whose maiden name was Witham. There is a letter from him dated 1728, in the Norfolk correspondence, addressed to Mr. Bernard Howard, of Winchester, the ancestor of the present Duke. At this time Mr. Dolman seems to have been quite vigorous—as he begins his letter by saying—"I beg a thousand pardons that I did not wright sooner in answer to yours, but when it came I was just putting foot in stirup after my long stay abroad." He ends by saying: "I beg you will make my dear little wife sensible of the value I have for her."

 Robert Dolman his kinsman. This may be the Dr. Robert Dolman mentioned in the Will of the George Constable alluded to above, where we read—"Item I give and bequeathe unto Mr. Christopher Bawtes and Doctor Robert Dolman ten pounds to be solely at their disposition for my future comfort and happiness in the next world."

Sir Theophylus Gylbye.*
Mr Poskett.†

* Sir Theophilus Gylbye. May be described as a soldier of fortune. He is said to have been the younger son of Sir George Gilby, of Stainton, co. Lincs., by his first wife, Elizabeth, daughter and heiress of Charles Fitzwilliam, of Bol, co. Notts. His name appears in the Gilby pedigree compiled by the late Joseph Hunter (Harleian Society, vol. xl), but not in the pedigree made at the Heralds' Visitation of Lincolnshire in 1634 (Harleian Society, vol. li). There appear to have been a great many Gilbys in Lincolnshire for several centuries, and the spelling of the name varies considerably; in our MS. it is Gylbye, and it is sometimes Kilby.

Sir Theophilus was probably born about 1600, and in his early manhood was a soldier in the Low Countries in the service of Holland. At the beginning of the Civil War in England he was recalled by Charles I and knighted at Newark, Oct. 27, 1645, being then a colonel. He served under Sir Marmaduke Langdale (later the first Lord Langdale of Holme), and fought in the king's army at Worcester. After his escape from England Charles II recommended his cousin, Ferdinand II Grand Duke of Tuscany (De Medici), to take Sir Theophilus Gilby into the Florentine service, and there he had a command worth £400 a year. In F. H. Sunderland's Life of the first Lord Langdale, chapter viii, page 193, there is an allusion to Sir Theophilus in a letter from Hyde (afterwards Lord Clarendon), writing from Brussels to General Langdale in April, 1657. Mention is made of the necessity of recalling Gilby from Tuscany. Hyde writes—" for sure if there were ever reason to send for him it holds still." Charles II accordingly recalled Gilby in 1657 to be in command of all the foot of the king's army. Downing, writing from the Hague in 1658 to Thurloe, Cromwell's secretary, thus describes him: " There is one Sir Theophilus Kilby who was Langdale's Major-General in England, and who has since served the Duke of Florence, who is now at the Bril to go to England from Langdale: he is an ancient man with short grey hair, a red face and long nose, middle stature and thick."

It is recorded in the State Papers that after the Restoration Sir Theophilus petitioned for financial help or advancement. In 1660 he asked for a pension, or some subsistence, and mentioned that he had endured chargeable imprisonments, and incurred great debts for his loyalty. At the end of that year he had a grant of £100, and another grant later. In 1662 he petitioned for some appointment, mentioning that he had left his command in Italy by His Majesty's order, and had expected employment ever since the Restoration. As a result he was, in July of that year, appointed Governor of Chester Castle, with grants for expenses. It was at Christmas in this same year, 1662, that we find him at Everingham. Sir Theophilus Gilby probably died about the year 1667. (Information mainly supplied by Mr. B. H. Johnson).

† Mr. Poskett. This was no doubt the well-known priest and future Martyr generally now referred to as the Ven. Nicholas Postgate. It is not necessary to go into much detail about so well-known and eminent a sufferer. A full account of Nicholas Postgate, and of his martyrdom in 1679, may be found in Forgotten Shrines, by Dom Bede Camm, O.S.B. For his parentage see C.R.S., xiv. It will be seen that he had been at one time, before the date of this document, stationed with the Hungates at Saxton, and later with Viscountess Dunbar, of the other family of Yorkshire Constables, known as the Constables of Burton-Constable in Holderness; and also with the Meynells at Kilvington. But all his later life was spent in his own native district—the Yorkshire moors, near Whitby—being particularly associated with Ugthorpe and Egton Bridge, places which have always remained Catholic. This district, even now remote, must in those days have been almost impenetrable. Consequently, we find Sir Philip Constable, in his Will, dated Feb., 1664, leaves " to Mr. Poskett (if living) 5^{l} else the 5^{l} to be disposed as my Executour shall think fit for the good of my soul " (C.R.S., iv, 269). Mr. Poskett had so completely disappeared in his distant moorland mission field that it could not easily be ascertained whether he was alive or not.

It was necessary for Fr. Postgate or Poskett to keep as much out of the way as possible, as his extraordinary success as a Missioner made him very obnoxious to the Protestant authorities. It is noticeable even in later penal times that priests who reconciled Protestants to the Church were severely dealt with; witness the case of Dom Rokeby, O.S.B., in the early eighteenth century, who is mentioned in the valuable correspondence of Dom Potts, O.S.B., now at Everingham (see "Some Annals of Everingham," Dublin Review, Oct., 1917, pp. 268, 269). Father Poskett was particularly successful in this respect, and was therefore a marked man, and, consequently, during the Popish Plot scare he was arrested at Redbarns, a house in Ugglebarnby, in the Whitby neighbourhood, on Dec. 8, 1678. The martyrdom took place at York on Aug. 7, 1679.

As we have seen above, Mr. Poskett is again mentioned in the Will of George Constable, who leaves him £1, and describes him as "my good friend." This was in 1672—eight years later than the Will of Sir Philip, and seven years before the execution of Fr. Poskett, who was evidently well known at Everingham.

In this 1662 list he appears among the guests, and not in the house party, or we might perhaps have inferred that he was temporarily in charge, as no other priest seems to have been there on this occasion—unless Mr. Crossley, described as a schoolmaster, was a priest, or possibly Dr. Dolman, though the latter was more probably a doctor of medicine. Fr. Poskett appears to have come on purpose from the not very distant moorland to take part in this celebration. The name was really "Postgate," but was apparently pronounced "Poskett," and spelt accordingly in these Everingham documents and elsewhere, as, for instance, in Thomas Ward's satire—England's Reformation, we read—

"Nor spar'd they Father Posket's Blood,
A Reverend Priest, devout and good."
(Canto IV, ed. 1715, p. 202).

* Mr. Richard Poole. The family of Poole or Pole was in residence at Drax Abbey, in the West Riding, which had been granted to the Constables by Henry VIII. The original document containing this grant is preserved at Everingham, and also the chartulary of Drax Abbey, which was founded by the Pagnels, ancestors of the Constables; there is likewise a letter from Anne Lady Constable to the Pooles, also two letters from the Pooles to Lady Constable, all dated Feb. 1668–9. The names of the Pooles signing one of the letters are Henry, Richard, Ellen, and R. Poole (Everingham MSS., 2nd Series, 117–119).

On the Poole letters there is the impression of a seal showing a chevron between three birds volant. This bearing is difficult to account for, nearly all the Poles of this family having some variation of the Poles of Radborne, co. Derby, who bear argent a chevron between 3 crescents gules. But we have not so far found the particular variety, represented on the seal used by the Pooles at this time resident at Drax. In Edward Peacock's List of the Roman Catholics in the County of York in 1604, under Carleton, which is near Drax, we find Robert Poules, Wm. Poules—the wife of Thomas Poules—the wife of Robert Poules: Recusants.

Evidently a large number of Catholics of a humbler walk in life also attended this celebration at Everingham in 1662. They are described as "the Naybours that woare invited." In the word "woare," for "were", we have an instance of the local dialect, which even the gentry used in those days; this pronunciation is still common in the East Riding. The places mentioned are within a ten-mile radius of Everingham.

Holme off Spadinge more,* Whaulsey,† Garthum,‡ Shipton,§ Weighton,‖ Thorpe,¶ Pocklington,

* Holme on Spadinge More—now spelt Spalding Moor, about five miles from Everingham—was the seat of Lord Langdale at this time. There is a Catholic church at Holme, built in later penal times as part of the Hall by the fourth Lord Langdale. Some pretence was made at the time that it was for secular uses, but the Vicar of Holme was suspicious as to its real purpose. The pre-Reformation church here stands beautifully on a small eminence rising out of the plain, and was an important beacon. On the occasion of one of Queen Victoria's Jubilees the beacon-light was placed on the top of the church tower; this, no doubt, was in accordance with ancient precedent; the whole district was known as "Holme Beacon." The Catholic Registers, 1744–1840, were printed in C.R.S., iv.

† Whaulsey had probably belonged to Beverley Minster and came to the Constables at the Suppression. The name is now spelt "Wholsea." It is in the parish of Holme-on-Spalding-Moor, and is called "Wholsea Grange." It stands on rising ground, and in the seventeenth century was perhaps a small hamlet, though probably not a separate township.

‡ Garthum was also a spoil of the Reformation, having belonged to Warter Priory (seventeen miles east of York). We find the Prior of Warter leasing "Gartham" to the first Sir Marmaduke Constable, of Everingham, in the third year of Henry VIII (Everingham MSS, 2nd Series, 1). It is probably to be identified with "Gardham," now a hamlet or farm on the high road between Market Weighton and Beverley, and is frequently alluded to in the Everingham accounts. Originally leased, as we have seen, from Warter Priory, it became after the Suppression the absolute property of the Constables; it is about ten miles from Everingham.

§ Shipton. At this place the L. & N.E. Railway has now a station called "Londesborough," to distinguish this Shipton from a place of the same name on the other side of York. But Londesborough is two miles from Shipton, which is a village on the high road between Beverley and York. There were evidently Catholics here in 1662, but there are few, if any, now. Shipton in the seventeenth century was a chapelry of Weighton, and though a fairly large village had no vicar of its own.

‖ Weighton, pronounced locally "Weeton," and now generally known as "Market Weighton," is described by a writer in the sixteenth century as an "uplandish town." It is about five miles from Everingham. Weighton is on the high road between Beverley and York, about two miles from Shipton, and is a junction on the L. & N.E. Railway for Bridlington, Selby, York, and Hull. There have always been Catholics here, and there is now a Catholic church. But until lately the Catholics at Weighton went to Mass at Houghton, over two miles away, formerly the seat of the senior branch of the Langdale family, who also at this period sometimes resided at Cliffe. The present Langdale family at Houghton is descended from the Langdales of Holme. The Faith owes its survival at Weighton, humanly speaking, to this ancient and always Catholic house. The population of Market Weighton is now 1,770.

¶ Thorpe is now only a hamlet on the high road between Shipton and York. Until lately it belonged to the parish of Nunburnholme, but has been transferred to Shipton. There are indications here of a medieval chapel-of-ease; it was a long way from Nunburnholme, its parish church. Thorpe was no doubt a larger place in the seventeenth century that at present; it then, as now, belonged to the Constables, and is often mentioned in the Everingham papers.

 Pocklington—five miles from Everingham, with a population of 2,550—is the largest place mentioned in the list. There were here two Catholic families related to the Constables in the time of Charles II—the Dolmans and the Sotherbys. The grammar school was founded by Archdeacon Dolman in the early years of Henry VIII. There were always Catholics at Pocklington, and there has been a Catholic church here since the middle of the nineteenth century.

Beilbye,* Seaton,† and Everingham.‡

The Dolman family still survives in different parts of England, and remains Catholic, but their property at Pocklington was sold in the eighteenth century. There is a letter at Everingham from the Mr. Dolman of Pocklington of the time to Mr. William Haggerston-Constable, mentioning the straits to which the family was reduced in the latter part of the reign of George III. There are constant allusions to the Dolmans in the Everingham correspondence, and they were connected by marriage with most of the old Yorkshire Catholic families.

* Beilbye was the nearest village, two-and-a-half miles from Everingham, where there have consequently always been some Catholics, probably in the seventeenth century a considerable number. Beilby is in the parish of Hayton, and has a pre-Reformation chapel-of-ease in which is a large Norman holy-water stoup which is now used as a font. Most of the property here belonged then, as now, to Merton College, Oxford.

† Seaton is now generally known as "Seaton Ross." It is a rather large village, very much out of the way. Much of the land here was church property before the Reformation, as we find "a grant of several manors in Seton to the Earl of Rutland, Lord De Ros," 32 Henry VIII (Everingham MSS., 2nd Series, 3A). William Cecil, Lord De Ros, sold Seaton in the reign of James I (Everingham MSS., 2nd Series, 15B). At the time of this entertainment at Everingham, George, 2nd Duke of Buckingham, was Baron De Ros. Later Seaton belonged to the Duke of Leeds, and in the nineteenth century was largely owned by the Constable-Maxwells of Everingham. But the name, Seaton-Ross, still reminds us of the famous Yorkshire family of De Ros, the Lords Ros of Hamlake (now Helmsley), one of whom witnessed Magna Charta. The fact that though there was a church, there was no endowment for an incumbent at Seaton, made it more possible for Catholics of all classes to live in peace during penal times, as was also the case with Beilby, Shipton, and Thorpe.

‡ Everingham, population 200, takes its name from St. Everildis, whose feast was kept on the 9th July; the only other dedication to this saint in England appears to be that at Nether Poppleton, in the West Riding. In the grounds there was a "St. Everilda's Well" until late in the eighteenth century. (See Father Richard Stanton's Menology of England and Wales, 1887, p. 328).

Being the seat of the Constables Everingham has always been a refuge for the Old Religion, and the "non-provided" school here is Catholic. There is a remarkably fine chapel attached to the House, built by William Constable-Maxwell, Lord Herries, and Marcia, Lady Herries. This chapel, which was consecrated by the Right Rev. Dr. John Briggs, Bishop of Trachis, Vicar Apostolic of the Northern District, in July, 1839, serves as the Catholic church for the neighbourhood. The Catholic Registers, 1771 to 1840, were printed in C.R.S., iv.

There are indications, among the Everingham MSS. and correspondence, that the Constables during penal times were generally able to arrange for the appointment of Anglican rectors who would not give too much trouble in religious matters. Dom John Bede Potts, O.S.B., who was the Catholic chaplain in the time of the early Georges, and died there 21 June, 1743, mentions how the Rector of Everingham was most unwilling to obey Archbishop Blackbourne, who was anxious to apply the penal laws. The neighbouring Catholics were accustomed, more or less openly according to circumstances, to attend the chapel at Everingham. Sir Marmaduke Constable, the last baronet, writing in 1740, on the occasion of the death of his sister, Mrs. Haggerston, says to his chaplain, Dom Potts, "On the first Friday in August leet all the friends and neighbours remember my dear sister in their prayers. Make to each a present of ½ a guinea." This seems to indicate a large attendance at Mass at Everingham even on a week-day. Locally a Catholic squire was a formidable person—and under ordinary circumstances, by a kind of tacit understanding,

Charges of housekeeping during the twelve days was as followeth—

The signature is partly illegible, but is probably "A. Constable"—i.e., Mrs. Constable, of Everingham.]

The prices of the various items of food and drink mentioned in this document are in some instances rather remarkable. Thus we have the Catholics attending his chapel were not likely to be interfered with. But this celebration at Everingham in 1662 seems to have aroused the resentment of some Protestant neighbours as a sign of "insolence" on the part of Catholics, for a few months later, that is, in August, 1663, an order of presentment was issued to the Chief Constable of the Holme Beacon (Holme-on-Spalding-Moor), the result being that four hundred Catholics were presented that very session at Pocklington. See for full account of this, C.R.S., iv 267–8. It is mentioned that many of these "had dearly suffered for the King," and that some of the local functionaries were unwilling to present them.

The following is a list of the estates of Sir Philip Constable, of Everingham, as given in the Parliamentary Surveys of Popish Delinquents, 1652–3:— Everingham, Thorpe, Drax, Swyne and Atwood, etc., in Holderness (the Holderness Estates were not ever recovered after the Restoration), Acklam, Gartholme, Whalsey, the Rectorial Tithes of Hayton (leased from the Dean of York), West and Middle Rason in Lincolnshire, and their House in the city of York.

Some of these estates are still the property of the Duchess of Norfolk, Baroness Herries, the present representative of the Constable Family.

£29 for "two Beefes," and eight hogsheads of strong beer £16, which seem high prices, considering the value of money at the period. We cannot make the total as it stands quite tally with the reckoning here given, but this is accounted for by the fact that some items, perhaps referring to sweetmeats, have been rendered altogether illegible by the condition of the document, which is very dilapidated at the bottom.

There is a Constable pedigree at Everingham which appears to have been completed soon after this Entertainment, and very few additions have been made since, so it does not bring the pedigree up to the present date. The Community of Augustinian Canonesses now at Newton Abbot, formerly at Louvain, has a pedigree of the Constable family carrying the succession on to a later date than the one at Everingham, but in many respects it is not so complete.

For the early history of the Constable Family, see article by the late Lord Herries, in the Transactions of the East Riding Antiquarian Society, viii, 51.

BRAMBRIDGE AND HIGHBRIDGE REGISTERS.

POSTSCRIPT.

[Supplementary remarks and notes.]

Page 1. Father William Lane.—In the list of Wills of various priests of the Society of Jesus deposited in the archives of Stonyhurst, printed in Part IV of the Appendix to the 10th Report of the Royal Commission on Historical MSS. (1885), appears the following item (p. 189):—

> Lane, William [Rev.], of Padwell, co. Hants. Sole devisee and executor, Cornelius Morphy, of S. George, Hanover Square, gent. 9 May, 1751. Signed and sealed. 11.22.

——. School at Silkstead.—The Rev. Augustine Tayler, from the English College, Rome, was also there (C.R.S., ix, 107).

Page 2. Sir Henry Seymour's "three Nephews."—According to Robert Duthy's Sketches of Hampshire (p. 310)—

> By the word "nephews" is signified, of course, nepotes, grandsons. They seem to have been truly nepotes in more than one sense.

Page 7. New mission at Eastleigh.—A memorandum, kindly prepared by the Rev. John Doran, covering the transition period of the two missions, will be found at the end of these notes.

——. Dr. William Lewis.—His Will, dated 16 July, 1666, is—curiously enough—preserved in the Archives at Stonyhurst College. In it he mentions his sons, Theodore and John, and speaks of having been in exile and sequestration for twenty years, which, with the iniquity of the times, had much impoverished him (Hist. MSS. Commission, 10th Report, Appx. Part IV, p. 190). He was born in 1592, son of Richard Lewis, of Merionethshire. In 1631 appointed rector of East Woodhay, Hants; was ejected under the Commonwealth, and had to fly abroad, where his two sons became Catholics (Dict. Nat. Biog.).

Page 8. Father Bonaventura Codrington.—Vide C.R.S. ix, 107. There is in the Presbytery library at Winchester a volume in which is written "Ex libris Bona. Codrington." There are also some books bearing the names of Barnabas, John, and Thomas Barlow.

——. Father Peter Curzon, S.J.—In the List of Wills at Stonyhurst referred to above, there is the following item:

> Mason, John [Rev.], of the parish of S. Thomas, Winchester. Devisees and executors, Sir Peter Curson, Bart., of Brambridge, Twyford, co. Hants., and John Tichbourne, gent., of Padwell, in the parish of S. Mary, co. Hants., 21 Sept. 1752. Signed and sealed. 11.86.

Page 9. Father Gregory Martin, O.S.F.—In Bishop Challoner's notes of his Visitation of 1741, preserved in the Westminster Archives, an entry under "Sherwell" shows that he found there, on 9th July, a priest named "Martin," with a congregation of 50, of whom he confirmed "crctr 23." As this item occurs between those relating to "Pennington and Avon" and "Brambridge," it must refer to the Sherfield near Romsey. If this "Martin" was Father Gregory Martin, he may have sometimes administered sacraments in the absence of the Brambridge priest in that district, without himself being resident there.

Page 11. The chapel-house.—Since the first article was put into type the changes foreshadowed have taken place. Gone are the old stately trees and the country hedges—one sees only a length of monotonous new roadway, with wire-strand fencing; the cornfield has been laid down to grass. The building has passed into other hands, consequent on the death of Mr. Williams, the former proprietor. The one-time chapel has been converted into two bedrooms, with flat ceilings, and the sacristy has become a bathroom. The outside staircase has been cleared away, and a garage constructed beneath the upper floor. The outside chimney, visible at the side of the extension in the view* on p. 44, has also been removed. The ground-floor windows on either side of the front door have been remodelled, greatly changing the appearance of the frontage.

——. Area excavated for gravel.—It may be of interest to note that the finding of a few small and geometrically-shaped blanks or implement-forms of tabular flint, exposed on the soil-surface, suggested the digging of a small trial-hole in the year 1914, when a prehistoric land-surface or floor was discovered. Opportunity to make an exhaustive examination occurred only in the following year, when the underlying gravel was required for military purposes, and the existence of a floor strewn with flint-workshop débris was disclosed. An account of the objects found, with numerous illustrations, was published at Southampton by Mr. Rowland E. Nicholas, F.L.S., F.G.S., of Romsey, under the title of a " Record of a Prehistoric Industry in Tabular Flint at Brambridge and Highfield, near Southampton. With a chapter of explanatory notes by Robert Munro, M.A., M.D., LL.D."

Page 15. Joseph and Mary Glasspole, of Otterbourne, 23 March, 1768.—These names appear also in the Winchester Registers in respect of a previous baptism on 4 September, 1765. Similarly, there is the baptism of a child of John and —— Glasspole entered on 4 April, 1768, with an earlier baptism recorded in the Winchester Register, on 27 February, 1766, of a child of John and Ann Glasspole of Bishopstoke.

The following entries appear, under the county of Southampton, in The English Catholic Nonjurors of 1715, by Canon E. E. Estcourt and J. O. Payne:—

> Mary Glasspole, of Horton, in Bishopstoke.—House there for her widowhood.
>
> Catherine Glasspole, of Twyford, widow of Richard G.—House called Drapers, for her widowhood.
> Mary Glasspole, of [Soberton], widow.—Copyhold house.—£16.

There is, in the possession of Mr. A. E. H. Swinstead, of Ditchling, Sussex, a volume, $5\frac{1}{4} \times 3\frac{1}{4}$, which has been rebound in polished leather, gilt, but without lettering, containing 503 pp., gilt edges, with the following title-page:—

> A Little Manual of the Poore Man's Dayly Devotion, Collected out of severall pious and approved Authors. By W. C. The Second Edition. In which are added the Jesus-Psalter, with a Lytanie of our Saviour's Passion; as also a Treatise of the devotion of the Beads and Rosary; & the whole disposed in a better order then in the first edition, by the Author ..... Printed at Paris, By Vincent du Moutier au Mont S. Hilaire, at the signe of the looking-glasse and are to be soulde by him. M.DC.LXX.

On the fly-leaf the following items have been jotted down:—" win Lovell her Book 1729 "—" Decembr ye 13, 1695 "—" My mother dyed July [?] 96 " (indistinctly written: should possibly be read—December ye 13, 1729—My mother dyed 1695 aged 96)—" Ayles "—" Jos. Glaspoles Book anno 1748 " (written lengthways).

* This is from a photograph taken by the writer in 1924.

Commencing on the vacant lower half of p. 503, and continuing on the next three pages, is written the following:—

The volume was purchased recently at a bookstall in the Butter Market at Chichester. There is in the British Museum a copy of this edition (but not of the first), "W.C." being identified as "William Clifford, Roman Catholic Priest" (see Gillow, Biographies, i, 514).

Page 32. Monsieur Angoville.—He gave evidence on the teaching of French at Winchester College, on 30th May, 1862, before the Public Schools Inquiry Commission (Report, 1864, Vol. III, Part I, pp. 362–3).

Page 34. Bishop Wiseman's Confirmations at Southampton.—Although no record has been traced of his having visited this town, there is an account in The Tablet, 11 August, 1849, of the bishop having confirmed thirty-six persons in the chapel of St. Amand at East Hendred on Sunday, 29 July, 1849, and he may have made his way down to Southampton about that time. The prefix "Cardinal Archbishop" is, of course, an embellishment by Father Van Doorne.

Page 43. Alexander Wells.—In the F.J.B. MS. Collections is a sketch of a "Gravestone in St. James' Cemetery, Winchester," bearing the following inscription: "Here lyeth the Body of / Frances Wells, Widow / of Alexander Wells, Esq[r] / of Bambridge who died / May 21[st] 1756 / Aged 59 years / Requiescat in Pace." She was daughter of Bartholomew Smith. "Settlement before marriage dated 20 Jan., 1733; Will proved 16 Sept., 1756: living in St Peter's Street, Winton, 1736–40."—F.J.B.

Page 47. 1660. Charles and Dorothy Wells.—In a list of those cited to the Consistory Court of Winchester for not going to church, 24 February, 1664–5, occurs:

Page 50. Three bends wavy.—This blazoning of the arms of Gerard de Marini may be compared with that in the following extracts:—

Page 51. Dulcibella Wells.—Her position in the Wells family will be seen by the following extract from the pedigree printed in William Berry's County Genealogies of Hampshire (1833), p. 110:—

1. Alice, d. of Sir Thomas Delalind, kt. = Gilbert Wells, [eldest son of Thomas Wells and Mary, d. of John Mompesson]. = 2. Issabell, d. of Nicholas Demaryne. = 3. Elizabeth, d. of Robert Coker, of Mapowder, co. Dorset.

——. Will of Sampson Thomas.—I am indebted to Mr. George Frederick Engelbach for kindly supplying the following notes on the under-mentioned persons:—

Gerard de Marini de Egra was the son of Nicholas de Egra, a naturalized Italian merchant, who was one of the richest men in Southampton and in 1537, owing to the inability of the town to pay its debt to the Exchequer, advanced several hundred pounds to the mayor, Thomas Lyster, receiving as security West Hall, a locally noted tenement which stood on the site of the old Grammar School. This Genoese merchant is sometimes described as Nicolyne Dogra and also Demagrine (Southampton Record Soc., The Black Book of Southampton, vol. iii, p. ix; J. S. Davies, History of Southampton, p. 38).

The Oglanders were an old Southampton family. A Robert Oglander is mentioned in the Will of John Estwell, dated 3 Feb., 1457, as possessing a tenement in the parish of Holy Rood on the east side of the High Street, Southampton (The Black Book, ii, 119).

M^r^ Welles the Customer = Thomas Welles, junior, gentleman, who was admitted as a burgess about 1536. As Thomas Welles the elder was only admitted about 1541, it seems probable that the Thomas Welles who appears henceforth as the holder of various official positions was the younger Welles, as he had held the burgess-ship for a longer time. He was sheriff in 1547 and "customer" of Southampton in 1551. A few years earlier he was one of the collectors of a subsidy of 12*d.* in the £ on all movables. He was associated with John Mylle in the arrest of a Portuguese ship laden with wheat in 1541: he, with Mylle, was to sell the wheat and keep the money for the king. A Thomas Welles was clerk of the Carpenters at Calais in 1552. He seems to have been well off, as in 1546 he bought a messuage and garden on the west side of English Street of John Mylle. This tenement Welles and his wife (Margaret Knight) had formerly held of Netley Abbey, and in 1550 he was presented by the Court Leet for throwing two houses into one, whereby population was diminished. In the same year his wife was threatened with a more serious accusation, since the King's Council sent down an order to examine her concerning a conversation with her nephew, the keeper of Crockham Park, in the course of which she is said to have spoken of the possibility of disturbances in the country about Michaelmas. Thomas Welles must have died before 1566, as in that year his heirs appear in his stead as suitors at the Court Leet (The Black Book, iii, 90*n*.).

Sir William Gy (or Guye) is mentioned in the Valor of 1535 as being one of the three priests—Geoffrey Rudde and Thomas Asheley are the two others—appointed in the Hospital of St. Julian, or God's House, Southampton, to pray for the souls of the founders and other benefactors. One of the three had to act as Steward or Treasurer (Victoria History of Hampshire, ii, 204–5).

John Fletcher was sheriff in 1551 and mayor of Southampton 1555 (J. S. Davies, History of Southampton, p. 176).

Page 52. Richard Bruning.—In the Victoria County History of Hampshire, iii, 240, there is mention of Eleanor, wife of Richard Bruning, and one of the coheiresses of William Wayte. She died in 1593, leaving a son and heir Francis, also a son William Bruning, and a son Richard. In 1612 Richard Bruning died seized of the manor of Denmead. "Denmead is now a tithing in the parish of Hambledon, the whole of which is in the hands of the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, who are apparently lords of the manor. The tithing is now called Barn Green."

[The arms of Bruning are shown as "Gules two bends wavy, the upper argent, the lower or."] See also Foley, Records, S.J., v, 815, and C.R.S. iii, 8.

MEMORANDUM ON THE ESTABLISHMENT OF THE EASTLEIGH MISSION.

CONTRIBUTED BY THE REV. JOHN DORAN.

The Highbridge Mission was succeeded by that of Eastleigh in 1884. Miss Mary Jane Simeon, born Sept. 24, 1845, was second daughter of Sir John Barrington Simeon, of Swainston, Isle of Wight (a convert of the Oxford movement and at one time M.P. for Southampton). Miss Simeon went to Bishop John Vertue, first bishop of Portsmouth, and expressed a great wish to devote her life and her means to the care of neglected children in bad moral surroundings. His Lordship asked her to found an institution at Eastleigh, and gave her every encouragement. Miss Simeon, almost an invalid, a woman of sterling faith and of very strong character, rented a house, No. 28, Market Street, in February, 1884, and the late Canon Gunning, of Winchester, said there the first Mass at Eastleigh.

It was soon found that a Home for the children would have to be provided. In the summer of the same year a few cottages farther up the street were converted into "St. Mary's Home." A little chapel was built which served for the Home and the few Catholics in the neighbourhood. About that time the L. & S.W.R.Co. had purchased large tracts of land near Eastleigh for the removal of their carriage and locomotive works from Nine Elms, London.

The Bishop, with his usual foresight, perceived that Eastleigh would soon become an industrial centre, and bought a piece of land in Leigh Road, the centre of the district. A chaplain was sent to St. Mary's Home in 1887, and as the numbers increased a School Chapel for the local Catholics was built in 1888. Eastleigh had grown from a few scattered houses to an Urban District. The carriage works of the L. & S.W.R.Co. were established in 1891, and the locomotive works later, in 1910. In 1921 the population had exceeded thirteen thousand.

Meanwhile Miss Simeon threw all her energy into the development of St. Mary's Home. She endowed it, and with the help of a few subscriptions from interested friends, carried on the good work until her death on 9 April, 1905, at which time she had 70 children under her care. She was assisted by a staff of devoted women. St. Mary's Home was unique among Catholic Homes in England in that it was completely under lay control.

In 1899 Miss M. A. Ward (whose father was also a convert of the Oxford movement) came to Eastleigh, associated herself with the work of Miss Simeon, and, moreover, took the greatest interest in the furthering of Catholicism in the district. After Miss Simeon's death she took charge of the Home and continued until failing health compelled her to give up on Jan. 2, 1924, when the work of the Home was transferred by the Diocesan Trustees to the care of the Franciscan Missionaries of Mary, at Cold Ash, near Newbury, Berks. The building was sold in 1925, and the chapel has been demolished. Since the foundation of the Home 470 girls received careful training which seldom failed them in after life.

The Catholics of Eastleigh will remember Miss Ward, apart from her work for the Home; it was her generosity which provided them with the present Church of the Holy Cross, built to the design of the late Canon Scoles (Early English), with accommodation for four hundred persons, at a cost of £3,000. The church was consecrated by the Right Rev. John Baptist Cahill, second bishop of Portsmouth, on Aug. 13, 1902, and opened for public worship on St. Helen's Day, Aug. 18, 1902, the relics enclosed in the High Altar being those of St. Paul of the Cross and SS. Perpetua and Felicitas, Martyrs, together with a relic of the True Cross.

Eastleigh has also been fortunate in having a school built by an anonymous benefactor in 1898, with accommodation for 190 children. The present parish priest, in Sept., 1921, bought two cottages on the west side of the church, and had them converted into a Presbytery in 1922. On Aug. 13, 1927, the Silver Jubilee of the consecration of the church, the remaining debt on the Presbytery was paid off. Eastleigh now has church, school, and presbytery of its own. The obligation of five masses for the Smythe family has been transferred to Eastleigh, thus forming a link with the old Mission of Highbridge (see p. 12).

The following is a list of priests who have been in charge of the mission:—

THE TWENTIETH REPORT

OF THE

Catholic Record Society

PRESENTED TO THE ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING AT THE GILLOW LIBRARY, KENSINGTON,

on

THURSDAY, JULY 10, 1924

Together with the Roll of Members, the Constitutions, &c.

Constitutions

1. Name. The name of the Society is "THE CATHOLIC RECORD SOCIETY."

2. Objects. The objects are the transcribing, printing, indexing, and distributing to its members the Catholic Registers of Baptisms, Marriages and Deaths, and other old Records of the Faith, chiefly personal and genealogical, since the Reformation in England and Wales.

3. Management. The affairs of the Society are managed by a Council consisting of twelve members and four honorary officers, viz., The Recorder, Bursar, Legal Adviser and Secretary—four forming a quorum. It has power to appoint a President and Vice-Presidents, its Chairman and Officers, and to fill vacancies on its own body, and has power to refuse or take away membership. One-third of the twelve members and all the honorary officers retire each year, but are eligible for re-election. Nominations of New Members of the Council must be sent to the Secretary fourteen days before the Annual Meeting. The representation and management are reserved to Catholic Members.

4. Subscription. The subscription is one guinea per annum commencing June 1st, which entitles members to any publications issued during the year.

No volume will be issued to any member whose subscription is unpaid, and the names of any members whose subscription shall be two years in arrear will thereupon be removed from the Society, and not be readmitted until all arrears are paid. A member wishing to retire from the Society must intimate his intention to the Bursar or the Secretary, before the 1st day of June, or be held liable for his subscription for the ensuing year.

Personal Life-Membership may be obtained on payment of twenty guineas in advance. Members who have paid subscriptions for ten consecutive years and who are not in arrear may obtain the same privilege on payment of ten guineas. All life subscriptions are to be capitalized.

5. Back Numbers. Members may, on prepayment, obtain back numbers (if in stock) on such terms as the Council may direct.

6. Meetings. An Annual Meeting is held in the month of June or July, of which at least seven days' notice is sent to all the members. At this meeting a report of the work of the Society, with a statement of the income and expenditure, is presented. This is issued together with the list of members and the Constitutions of the Society.

7. Audit. The Bursar's accounts are audited by a member of the Society or professional accountant appointed by the Council, at the close of the financial year, which expires on May 31.

N.B.—The Bursar deals with Membership and Subscriptions.

TWENTIETH ANNUAL REPORT

TWENTY years have elapsed since the formal foundation of the Society on the 10th of June, 1904. The first half was marked by continual improvement and expansion. It seemed certain that we should attain and exceed a membership of four hundred. Sixteen volumes were issued or nearly complete. Then came the Great War to upset everything. Nine volumes represent a similar category in the second term. Some losses in membership were inevitable; but we have to thank the majority for unswerving support, and others who have joined since in spite of the outlook on our Society, and even worse on others equally meritorious in their spheres. The Gillow Library has lately become a new feature, and it is anticipated will be not only most useful in itself, but, in the not far distant future, a permanent and desirable office and depository of the Society.

Volume xxv, Dominicana, is mostly printed and the balance is in type. Some unfavourable conditions have caused delay.

Volume xxvi, the Seventh Douay Diary, edited by Canon Burton, is in progress. The first and second were brought out by the Fathers of the London Oratory. The third, fourth and fifth have been issued by our Society. No trace can be found of the sixth unfortunately; and this makes us happy that the material of the rest will soon be saved for all time by our Record printing.

Transcripts of other records come steadily in and now form a considerable bulk in several depositories. Published lists of Sacramental Registers give little idea of their existence and age. A few of the transcripts in hand are quite two hundred years old, and the numbers increase during the following fifty years. Other transcripts are desirable, and they will doubtless be ready before our funds are adequate for their printing.

During the existing year it is hoped to start another Volume of Miscellanea, which naturally appeal to a larger number of people than special subjects, although those of religious communities, where they give historical and genealogical information relating to families of all parts of England and Wales, and even beyond, can hardly be classed as special.

The Bursar's accounts display a larger balance than would have appeared if Volume xxv had not been delayed. This balance also includes investments of £178 10*s.* 0*d.* paid for life memberships, and so capitalised. A sum of £8 8*s.* 0*d.* given for York City (now St. Wilfrid's) registers is also included. Allowing also for a safety margin, there is enough to cover all expenses for the past year's work, and leave a balance for the work of the current year, whilst subscriptions for the year are coming in.

The Gillow Library catalogue has been nearly completed, and will enable an appreciation of its historical value to be obtained, and direct access will be given to the books. Directions for its use by accredited persons, which must include a charge for the privilege, are under consideration. The first expenses of removal, fitting up, arranging, etc., have been mostly met by generous donations, which it is hoped will be increased, until the Library has been placed on a permanent basis. We are spared the cost of rent for a time; and economy has been exercised over current expenses.

When we look back and compare the few and humble chapels and schools, even up to a hundred years ago or later, with the churches, ecclesiastical and charitable institutions founded by the self-sacrificing efforts of our forefathers, we would be unworthy to think that God will not inspire the hearts of many to place this institution with its great educative power in a great and soundly permanent position at the centre of the Empire, where it will be most accessible and effective. It may appeal also to non-Catholic brethren, several of whom have been Founders and generous supporters of our Society. It was a splendid start to begin with about four thousand books.

Only seven members have joined, in contrast with eighteen last year,—the Rev. Jules Lenders, who has for a long time supplied transcripts for our work; Miss M. A. Smith of Grove Park, Barnard Castle; the Hon. Evan Morgan; Mr Bernard H. Newdigate, who continues the subscription of his venerable father; the Very Rev. Fr Provincial of the Friars Minor at Forest Gate; and two very welcome additions from the States, Yale University Library and Michigan University.

The deaths we have to record are:—Mr Edgar John Meynell; Mr Henry Charles Weetman, a former Pontifical Zouave; the Right Hon. Laurence Ambrose Waldron, P.C., of Ireland; Mr William Joseph Fitzherbert-Brockholes, C.B.E., a patronymic of double Catholic lineage; Miss Mary Angela Christine Cahill, who has recently been succeeded by her brother; and the Rev. TRANSACTIONS
OF THE TWENTIETH ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING.

The Twentieth Annual Meeting of the Catholic Record Society was held at the Catholic Reference Library, 6*a* Duke's Lane, Kensington, in which the Society's Gillow Library is housed, on Thursday the 10th of July, 1924.

His Eminence Cardinal Gasquet, President of the Society, took the chair. There were also present,—Viscount FitzAlan of Derwent, Vice-president; Miss Willis; Miss Wells; Mr W. A. Lindsay, Clarenceux King of Arms; the Very Rev. Canon Burton; the Rev. J. R. Fletcher; the Rev. Dunstan Sargent, O.P.; the Rev. Dominic Devas, O.F.M., vice the Provincial; Dr J. J. Gorham; Major Francis J. A. Skeet; Mr R. C. Baigent; Mr G. F. Engelbach; Mr Charles J. Munich, K.S.G.; Mr Joseph L. Quick; Mr Augustine Quinn; Mr Frederick W. Sherwood; and Mr J. S. Hansom, Hon. Secretary.

Amongst letters of regret received were,—from His Eminence the Cardinal Archbishop of Westminster, Patron, who sent his blessing and good wishes; Admiral of the Fleet Lord Walter Kerr; the Hon. Mrs Codrington; Sir Henry S. Jerningham, Bt.; His Honour Judge Parfitt; Colonel Chichester-Constable; the Very Rev. Edwin Henson, lately appointed Rector of the English College, Valladolid, who wrote that he would do everything in his power to have copies of the records of the College prepared for the Society; the Rev. R. Bede Camm, O.S.B.; Mr J. Rae Baterden; Mr James Britten, K.C.S.G.; Mr Martin J. Cahill; Mr J. Herbert Canning; Mr L. C. C. Lindsay, Hon. Bursar; Mr Charles J. Roskell, Hon. Legal Adviser; Mr J. P. Smith, Vice-president; and Mr Charles Walker.

Cardinal Gasquet said that members present had in their hands printed copies of the Report and Financial Statement, so they might be taken as read. His Eminence formally moved their adoption, and congratulated the Society on them in view of the great difficulties of late years. Speaking personally he thought the time had come when one President should not be regarded as always President, and that it would be well to appoint someone in his place. (At this there was general dissent.) He referred to his age and other important work he had to attend to and which he would like to keep on as being so excellent and interesting—the archives of the Vatican especially, relating practically to the whole world, but a vast amount also relating specially to England. He had been able to bring together a fair general index of the scattered papers relating to Britain. They are arranged in alphabetical order.

Replying to Mr Lindsay, Clarenceux, as to the index being printed, the Cardinal said he hoped so eventually, but the cost at present would be enormous.

A large part relates to the Napoleonic era; others to Cardinal Acton, agent to our bishops when the change took place in the hierarchy, who seemed to have a vast number of correspondents. If anyone were writing about the history of that time, he would do well to consult the actual correspondence.

Two very important additions had been made to the Vatican Library. When Prince Chigi wanted to sell his library, he proposed to the Vatican its purchase at a million and a quarter lire; but Signor Mussolini said—"it should belong to the people and be where they can have access to it." So the library remained in the Chigi Palace; but when Signor Mussolini came into power he approached the Vatican, saying—"This library is in our way; we do not want it here, it is swamping all the space we need for offices. Will you take it?" So it had been transferred to the Vatican, where, with documents in MS., it now forms an interesting and necessary addition to the archives.

Then in the last century a Duke de Rossi, a relation of the celebrated archæologist, had formed a library called the Lanciani, which came to the Duchess on his death. She left it to the Jesuits in Rome; but a later will stated that if they were turned out of Rome it should go to the Emperor of Austria. This took effect, and he appointed the Jesuits at Linz custodians. But the pity of it was that the books had all to do with Italy, five hundred not being at the Vatican. When the upset came the question arose whether something could be done to save the library, as it was thought the Bolshevists might seize and mutilate it. After consultation the holders acted very straightforwardly and it now forms part of the Vatican Library.

One of the books was written by a Greek philosopher at Padua, apparently tutor to Pole, afterwards Cardinal, to whom the majority of two hundred and fifty letters were addressed. Some were addressed to other English scholars who had been at Padua, such as Cuthbert Tunstall, Bishop of Durham. In fact they were a renaissance of letters in England. There was a description of the Sack of Rome in 1527; of the plague and how it swept away the whole of Padua; recalled a meeting with Richard Pace who was ambassador at Padua; and other notable things. These should interest English people, but they are in Latin, so His Eminence had made a free translation of some, as he found people object to read Latin, although when they had read the translation they might want to see the originals. That was what he, a member of the Catholic Record Society, had been doing in Rome. His Eminence congratulated the Society on its report.

Mr W. A. Lindsay seconded the adoption of the Report and Statement of accounts, a very sensible and intelligent document. They could congratulate the Society on its membership, as it was difficult to secure much more than 200 for such societies, whereas their number verged on 400, to which it had nearly attained when the war broke out. This was carried unanimously.

Viscount FitzAlan proposed, Dr Gorham seconded, and it was carried that the retiring members of the Council be re-elected for three years, viz.—the Rev. John Rory Fletcher, Mr J. Herbert Canning, the Rev. Dunstan Sargent, and Mr Cuthbert D. G. Riddell, the two last having been co-opted during the year.

Cardinal Gasquet proposed a vote of thanks to Miss Willis for lending the Library for the purpose of the meeting, closing it during the day for their convenience, and giving housing room for the famous Gillow Library, a great venture for the Society, done with its eyes open; but all would desire to have a monument to their benefactor, and none could be fitter, especially when large enough to house archives and more books, accessible to those who would profit by it. He hoped the whole information condensed into or crowded out of Gillow's Dictionary might be published. He expressed their deep gratitude to Miss Willis for housing the Library. Major Skeet seconded, the motion being carried with applause, Mr Hansom saying that Miss Willis did everything for the Society—thinking she could not do enough.

Miss Willis replied and said that she was extremely glad to have the Library there.

Replying to Mr Lindsay, Clarenceux, the Cardinal said that many things, reported to be in the Vatican Library, were not there, such as—old rental books, the early records of Canterbury, the records of the Garter Order. He wished they were!

Fr Fletcher proposed a vote of thanks for the honour the Cardinal had done them in presiding, and the interesting address regarding the papers at the Vatican and the work he had done. He hoped His Eminence would be spared many years to preside over the meetings.

Canon Burton, in seconding, said His Eminence was not only eminent in the Church, but he was an historian and a librarian. If any fault could be found with him, it was that he should think anyone else could replace him: it was little short of blasphemy!

The motion was carried with applause.

His Eminence said that he was very much obliged by the kind words; but still thought it would be well to contemplate turning him off (dissent.) He had reserved one point. Before he left Rome he told the Pope that he was to attend the twentieth anniversary of the foundation of the Society, and His Holiness replied, "I know about the Society and the work it is doing, I will send them my blessing, but let them know it is not a merely 'God bless you,' but a blessing coming from one who appreciates the work which is being done by the members of the Society."

THE GILLOW LIBRARY.

The financial statement for the year 1922–23 gave payments of £71 9*s.* 0*d.*, and that for 1923–24 gives £81 5*s.* 0*d.* Total £152 14*s.* 0*d.*

In the details to a later date with last year's Report the payments were	£91	3	0
Additional payments, as below, are	61	11	0
Total	£152	14	0

Mr Joseph Louis Quick	2	2	0
Mr Charles J. Roskell, 2nd donation	50	0	0
Mr Joseph S. Hansom, 3rd donation	3	3	0
The Rev. Sebastian Ritchie, Cong. Orat.	1	1	0
Mr Leonard C. C. Lindsay, 2nd donation	5	5	0

This does not cover expenses, mostly of a special character in the initial stage, as,—1° Conveyance of the library from Hale to London; 2° Fitting up shelving etc.; 3° Preparation of the Index. We have to anticipate further expenses, as book-binding, repairs etc. So there is still room for generosity. On the other hand we have been saved from rent in a most generous manner. It is hoped that large contributions will enable the Society to acquire a freehold library, to which would be attached the offices, with a permanent endowment.

Mr R. C. Baigent has kindly undertaken the office of Hon. Librarian.

NOTICES

Members are requested to call the attention of their friends to the Society and its work. A copy of the current subscription form is enclosed to members this year, in case they desire to introduce a friend. It shows also how back numbers are procurable by members desiring to complete a set; but it must be clearly understood that it is liable to alteration without notice.

Transcripts of interesting unpublished documents ready for the press, together with the loan of the originals for the purpose of collation, are invited. It is desired always to have material for half a dozen volumes ready for printing, as special donations for printing may enable the output of work to be increased.

Offers of help in transcribing documents, especially in the Public Offices in London, where the greater part of the documents relating to the country are stored, are invited. Parish priests are especially requested to provide exact copies of old registers in their custody, or give facilities for this being done.

Serious loss of time and expense have been incurred in some cases by manuscript being sent incomplete or modified. It is desired to impress on transcribers that papers should be complete, without excisions, verbatim et literatim, although they may not agree with modern ideas. Merit lies in their absolute integrity and identity, as far as modern printing will allow.

Members desirous of paying annual subscriptions through their bankers can be supplied with a "Banker's Order," on application to the Bursar or Secretary.

Changes of address should be notified to the Secretary.

Major Skeet writes,—Thirty-five copies of the Life of Sir Edward Widdrington have brought in a profit of 17*s.* 6*d.*; and there are still sixty-five for sale, which, as sold, will give a profit of 6*d.* to the C.R.S.

PROGRESS

THE position of our Society as compared with other Record-printing Societies and the dates of foundation will be of interest. These Societies, even with a smaller membership, have done and are doing valuable work. They deserve more support.
